WEDNESDAY JANUARY 1 1896

He Knew His Own Name.

A witness in Judge Low's department of the police court came near being sent to jail for contempt of court for telling the truth. The witness was called and sworn.

"What is your name?" asked Prosecuting Attorney Madden.

"I. Denau," repeated the witness. "What's that?" demanded the judge.

"I. Denau," repeated the witness. The judge and prosecuting attorney stared at each other in blank amazement.

"Look here, sir," roared the judge when he had recovered his breath "You will not be permitted to trifle with this court."

"Well—er—I only know what I have always been told was my name," explained the embarrassed witness. "Of course I can't swear to it, but if it is not my true name, I'd like to know it, your honor."

"That is all any man knows of his name," declared the judge. "What have you been told your name was?"

"I. Denau, sir."

"You don't know? Mr. Clerk, enter up an order—"

"I didn't say I didn't know," hastily explained the witness. "I said my name was I. Denau—Ignatz Denau, sir."

"Oh," said the judge. "Oh," echoed the prosecuting attorney.—S. F. Post.

All the same.

"Have you any flounces?" asked Tony Pippin, with an abstracted air, as he inserted his legs under a table in one of those quick dispatch restaurants in Park row.

The fluffy haired waitress glanced down at her plain black skirts, blushed laborously and said:

"What was that you wanted?"

"Flounces."

"How'll you have 'em—baked, boiled, shirred, or bias?" the girl responded facetiously. She thought Mr. Pippin was given to repartee.

"I want them fried with bacon," Tony responded, with some severity. "Will you take my order?"

"Yes, if you call for anything on the bill. This ain't no Chinese laundry."

Struck by a sudden fear, Mr Pippin grabbed the thumb painted menu, scanned the oyster list for a moment and then said meekly:

"I made a mistake. It's scallops I want."—New York Journal.

Albuquerque, N. M. Dec. 28—Francis Schlatter the "Healer," is in the vicinity of Fort Wingate and Gallup on the line of the Atlantic and Pacific road. A party of men who recently saw him have returned to this city. They were E. H. Huston of Evansville, Ind. who is receiver of the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville; J. w. Snyder, a business man of Paris, Ill. and L. H. Stanley a Chicago commercial traveler.

Mr. Huston was suffering from partial paralysis of one arm and side. He was treated by Schlatter and is much improved. He said: "I have traveled all over America and Europe and I have consulted the finest physicians in the land. They did me no good. I am much benefited by the healer's treatment and will be completely cured in a short time."

A number of persons are here from Colorado and the East in search of Schlatter. He told the men who have just returned that he was going to the southwest, and thought he would go to Central America
