There is not a line in Secretary Carlisle's recent letter to the chairman of the Kentucky central committee that bars his nomination, should the Chicago convention think him the best man to lead the party.

Buttons and a bride are being made the basis of a new Harrison boom for the republican nomination.

McKinley's wind appears to be in danger of giving out at a very critical part of the race.

The A. P. A. is taking a rather prominent part in the business of nominating a republican candidate for president, if all that is said on that subject can be believed.

The opinion of Mr. Harrison's new wife is now being diligently sought for by republican politicians

It may be merely a coincidence that Bosses Platt and Quay should have been simultaneously ordered to Florida by their physicians; but it would be wise for McKinley to take another reef in his cinch on the Florida delegates to the St. Louis convention.

Those who know Czar Reed the best say that his prejudice is much stronger than his judgement.

The republican river and harbor bill illustrates the policy of deception which that party has adopted in congress. It provides for actual appropriations of only about $9,000,000, which is comparatively small, but it also provides for the making of contracts which will involve a future expenditure of $40,000,000.

Perhaps the country might survive even if Tom Reed carries out his threat to retire from public life if he isn't nominated for president.

Of course Chauncy Depew isn't doing any political work during his travels. All the same the wise candidate will have him shadowed.

The McKinleyites may discover that the active support given their candidate by Russell Sage, the greediest of the Wall street sharks, is not the good thing some of them appear to think it is.

And ex Congressman Butterworth, of Ohio, who was disciplined for opposing the McKinley tariff; what does he think of the presidential outlook?

The warmer that republican fight gets the more chance there will be for the democrats to win. That's a point worth keeping in mind.

If Tom Reed had his way "Little Billee" Chandler would be made to wear a hoodoo sign as big as a bass drum.

Women drug clerks will hardly be popular in prohibition communities.

To anxious republicans: You might ascertain who will be the nominee of your party by addressing the firm of Quay and Platt, republican candidate makers, who are now in Florida.

The people should not fail to ask republican candidates for congress to tell what their party has done since it got control of the fifty fourth congress.

The National League of Musicians have been holding their annual convention in Washington, and its members are thoroughly convinced that when it comes to blowing they are not in it with congress.

It is rather difficult now to find a well-informed republican who thinks his party will carry New York this year, no matter who may be nominate for president.
