OREGON NOTES

Interesting News From Different Parts of the State.

The Pacific Miner, a semi-monthly publication devoted to mining, has just made its appearance in Portland.

Five grocery stores in Salem were entered by tramps the night of the 25th, but only small amounts of money and goods were taken.

Carl Jones, chief clerk in the Baker City postoffice, died last Sunday at St. Elizabeth's hospital of appendicitis. He was the oldest son of Ben Jones of Vale, Oregon.

Robert E. Glaze, recently convicted of the murder of William Trowall; his business partner, in San Francisco, has been sentenced to life imprisonment at San Quentin. Glaze formerly lived in Polk County, Oregon.

B. S. Pauge, ex-forecast official at the Portland weather station, and recently relieved from duty at Detroit, has been assigned to Buffalo, N. Y., as assistant in charge of the Weather Bureau exhibit at the exposition.

Adolph Anderson, a large grape-grower near Forest Grove states he will have the largest crop this year of cherries, Italian and silver prunes and grapes that he has ever had. It is the intention of the vineyardists this year to make wine from their grapes, as this will net them the greatest profit.

A wild bull got into Baker City several days ago and made a great disturbance on Washington street. He saw his reflection in a large plate glass in the Antlers Annex, and very nearly demolished the building, but he was headed off and prevented from doing any damage. The police finally drove the wild beast out of the city.

A six years' lease of the Hot Lake property near Union, with an option to purchase, has been secured by Dr. G. W. Tape of Sumpter, who will take charge of this well known health resort on the first of the ensuing month. Dr. Tape will convert the hotel at the lake into a first class sanitarium, with hospital facilities and accommodations.

H. H. Wilcox who arrived here last week brought with him a mother opossum and seven little ones direct from southwestern Missouri, where the finest specimen of this luxury is said to flourish. Mr. Wilcox presented the little family to J. B. Thompson of North Union who is taking good care of the curious animals.—Union Republican.

The twenty ninth annual reunion of the Oregon Pioneer Association will take place in Portland, in the Exposition building, on June 14. All persons coming to, or born in, the original territory of Oregon prior to February 14, 1859, without regard to where they now live, are eligible to membership. A fare and a fifth rate will be given for round trip over all railroad and steamboat lines centering in Portland.

The following officers were elected by the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of Oregon at its session in Baker City last week: Grand master, J. N. Nelson, of McMinnville; deputy grand master, Robert Andrews, of Portland; grand warden, Joseph Micelle, of Roseburg; grand secretary, E. E. Sharon, of Portland; grand treasurer, Byron E. Miller, of Portland; grand representative, Charles L. Palmer, of Baker City. The next session of the grand lodge will be held at Newport.

PRIMARY LAW TEST

Election Reform Legislation Alleged to Be Void.

Portland seems to be having more than its share of trouble regarding laws passed at the last Legislature. The Legislature last winter passed two primary laws, one known as the Morgan law the other, the Lockwood law, affecting elections in cities having more than 10,000 inhabitants. The laws are said to conflict, and as one party in Portland seems to be doing the kicking they are evidently very happy for the loop hole of escape. This fight in the metropolis may probably have its effect for good on the whole state, as the Multnomah delegation has been nearly the whole thing when it came to legislating. But at the next legislature instead of legislating to reform politics in one particular county, let it apply to the whole state. Primary laws are successful in other states, why not in Oregon? The laws in question apply to Portland and Multnomah county alone, but just why those in Portland seem so determined to down them may cause a suspicion of their true intention. It is evident that the faction they wish to be victorious cannot win out under them, hence the probable legislation to test their constitutionality. Regarding probable action in the matter the Oregonian of the 25th says:

A suit to test the constitutionality of the two primary laws passed by the Legislature this year, will probably be filed in the State Circuit Court today by Wallace McCamant and E. W. Bingham, attorneys. One is the direct primary law, known as the Morgan bill, and the other was introduced by Senator Hunt and framed by Charles E. Lockwood, political reformer and club organizer, and is entitled: "An act to provide for primary elections in cities having a population of more than 10,000 inhabitants, and providing the manner of conducting the same, and to prevent frauds and punish crimes at such elections, and to apply the principles of the Australian ballot and the registry law to the primary election held in such cities."

The provisions of these laws have frequently been published. The Lockwood law applies only to Portland, which is the only city in the state having more than 10,000 inhabitants, and provides for the election of delegates to political conventions and all that sort of thing, and the direct primary law aims to do away with city or county conventions in this county.

The opponents of these laws contend that they are repugnant one to the other; that their operation would cause much unnecessary expense and increase taxation, and that they are unconstitutional. Various reasons for their unconstitutionality are alleged, and it is stated that three decisions by the California Supreme Court have been rendered adverse to laws containing features similar to those embodied in these acts. It is alleged, for instance, that such laws cannot be made to apply only to one city or county in a state, as one county is not entitled to have more security or safeguards in elections than another, or burdened with more cost proportionately in such matters than another county, and that there cannot be a special election law governing only one part of a state covering a general election.

Paralyzed the Court.

A case of common drunk came before the police court of Pendleton today. The case, however, was not of common words, for the greatest conglomeration of phraseology was fired at the judge that ever came from the lips of an officer. The luckless fellow was not yet over his intoxication. So the officer, presenting him to the court, (he had apparently been reading the New York Sun, for the same combination of words appeared recently in that newspaper's account of the culprit: "Your honor, this man is intoxicated. He is drunk, inebriated, tipsy, full, loaded, jagged, fuddled, tight, top-heavy, slewed, half-shot, half gone, evergone, overtaken, primed, afflicted, elevated, exhilarated, genial, happy, mellow, corned, beery, winy, groggy, boozy, soaked, chock-a-block, lousy, muggy, bory-eyed, muddled, jiggered, foggy, bazy, dizzy, stunned, dazed, moody, dopy, ossified, petrified, paralyzed. "He has a (glorious or elegant) jag on, a load on, a skate on, a bum on, a brannigan on, a shine on, a still on, an edge on, a skin full, he has got a cup too much, he has looked on the wine when it is red, he has a bee in his bonnet, he has an applejack gait, he has been taking a little of Paddy's eye water or of red eye, he has been crooking his elbow, he has more sail than ballast, he has his main-brace well spliced, he has the sun in his eye, he can't see a hole in a ladder, and he can't down without holding on. "He is half-seas over, three sheets in the wind, on his beam ends under the influence of the weather, over the bay, in the clouds, in his cups, in his pots, off his trolley, off his nut, on a drunken, on a spree, on a bender, on a racket, on a tear, on a ran-tan, on a ree-raw, he is feeling his oats, he is full of mountain dew, full of dope, full of forty-rod booze, full of Jersey lightning, full of tanglefoot, full of bug juice, he is as full as a tick, full as a goat, full as a bedbug, he is as drunk as a lord, drunk as a boiled owl, drunk as a fiddler's bitch, drunk as David's sow, he is weak (wobbly) on his pins, all mops and brooms, and about to cast up his accounts."

And at last accounts the court was running yet.—East Oregonian.

An Honest Medicine for La Grippe.
George W. Watt, of South Gardiner, Me., says "I have had the worst cough, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done any good whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the chills, cold and grip have left me. I congratulate the manufacturers of an honest medicine." For sale by H. M. Horton Burns, and Fred Haines Harney.
