A BRIGAND WHO LEVIES TAXES

He Also Preserves the Peace and Protects Property.

"Brigandage is still rampant in many rural districts in Italy," said Dr. Ravogli, the resident Italian consul, to an Enquirer representative recently. "From advices I receive occasionally I keep in touch with home affairs, and a letter from a friend in Trieste contains a reference to Tiburzi, one of the most picturesque of these freebooters. Tiburzi is about 45. At the beginning of his career he was as bad as others of the same vocation in life; in 1872 he was caught, convicted of highway robbery and murder, and sentenced to imprisonment for life. He escaped in 1874 and took refuge in a wood near Viterbo, where he lived in security, in spite of 17 warrants and a large reward for his arrest. The reason of this security is simple enough. He was good to the poor—any peasant in need of help could always get a gold coin from Tiburzi—and he punished traitors. Consequently the peasants were ready to assist him against the police or government emissaries, and those who would willingly have given information were afraid to do so.

"After his escape Tiburzi altered his method of gaining a living. He caused it to be made known to all the well-to-do people in the district that if they paid him an annual contribution he would not interfere with them, and would protect them from molestation by others. It was considered advisable to agree, and Tiburzi has been for years in receipt of a large income, one man alone paying him $150 a year. Crime has considerably diminished in the district; the smaller fry dare not molest Tiburzi's proteges, for he is still a good shot with his English repeating rifle. Tiburzi does what the government cannot do; he collects taxes without trouble and he keeps down crime.

"It must not be supposed that he hides in the woods all day. He can walk about the whole district without fear of capture, and he lives in good style. He goes to Rome sometimes, presumably in disguise, and has even seen abroad. Will he ever be arrested? Time alone will tell."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

VALUABLE COLOR TEST.

How the Course of Water in German Rivers Was Determined.

A color test on a large scale occurred recently near Geseke, Germany. The Volme, the Weid and the Hedder are three brooks which have their sources near Geseke, and according to tradition their waters had subterranean connection with the Alme, a mountain stream whose bed is some five miles distant. Millers located on the lower Alme, says the Philadelphia Times, dumped refuse in certain eddies of the upper portion of the stream, and the millers on the Volme, the Weid and the Hedder claimed that by doing this the water supply of the latter streams was materially diminished. To determine the connection about four pounds of potassium fluoresceinate was dumped into one of the Hedder. This substance is marvellously powerful, and a solution containing one part in 10,000,000 shows a distinct fluorescence in transmitted light. Twenty-five hours later the Hedder took on a beautiful dark green color, showing conclusively the connection between the two streams. An experiment at another point showed with equal clearness that there was subterranean connection between the Weid and the Volme, though in this case 44 hours elapsed between the depositing of the dye stuff in the Alme and the appearance of the coloration in the other streams.
