HARNEY VALLEY ITEMS.

SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1903.

The best way to get business is to make an effort for it, and if this is important at one season of the year it is important at all seasons. There are many who will not have the opportunity to do more than merely announce their intention of doing what is fair for the people. There are others who are anxious to expand and who have the ability to plan the expansion and to get the best for the energy expended. The time to work for better business is all the time, and the way to be sure of better business is to do what will bring it. There are no points of business enlargement which can be neglected if a merchant wants to do all he can in a given year. The year will best show the results of his efforts if he starts when the year is young and makes the best of the opportunities of each day. Keep the business booming all through the year in order to be sure that the greatest amount may be reached as a total for that year. What is needed is action which will make business, intelligence which will properly guide action, and energy which will give the merchant the stamina to keep at his work until it is finished. The year will show the advantage of the activity of the early months. The amount of business will be greater the merchant hustled when others were resting.—Ad-Alt.

Don't be afraid to be called a "booster." The man who helps the other fellow along does two good deeds, and in the end gets his reward—if he doesn't get it in the neck. There is no gospel that does more for this world than the gospel of boosting and it has the sanction of divine authority for it is nothing less than the gospel of charity—the substance of the best too religious teaching. There is no labor too arduous to be sweet when someone speaks kind words of appreciation. A little praise or friendly encouragement seems to make blood circulate through the tired limbs with fresh energy; it makes the weary throw back his head and take a full breath of reviving air into his lungs; it brings restful dreams at night. And all this is accomplished at almost no cost whatever. The "booster" is not poorer but richer for his generosity; he is the man who moves things and keeps everything going but a neighborhood quarrel. Blessed is the "booster" for he shall inherit the earth—if some one don't break the will.—Ex.
