NOT IN ANY TRUST

Many newspapers have lately given currency to reports by irresponsible parties to the effect that

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO. had entered a trust or combination; we wish to assure the public that there is no truth in such reports. We have been manufacturing sewing machines for over a quarter of a century, and have established a reputation for ourselves and our machines that is the envy of all others. Our "New Home" machine has never been rivaled as a family machine. It stands at the head of all High Grade sewing machines, and stands on its own merits. The "New Home" is the only really HIGH GRADE Sewing Machine on the market.

It is not necessary for us to enter into a trust to save our credit or pay any debts as we have no debts to pay. We have never entered into competition with manufacturers of low grade cheap machines that are made to sell regardless of any intrinsic merits. Do not be deceived, when you want a sewing machine don't send your money away from home; call on a "New Home" Dealer, he can sell you a better machine for less than you can purchase elsewhere. If there is no dealer near you, write direct to us.

MODERN NAVAL GUNS.

Their Power Well Illustrated the Reaction of One of Them.

Some time ago the English government experimented with a 13-inch gun on a ship of the Royal Sovereign class. At the first firing of the gun the entire upper deck was lifted from its position and sprung along its entire center, so great was the shock. The United States battleship Indiana has been specially equipped to provide against any such disaster and her decks have been constructed in such a manner that naval experts agree that no such damage can befall her when the 13-inch guns send out their flaming message.

Naval experts are agreed, however, says the Philadelphia Times, that when she is in action and the four 13-inch guns are performing their deadly work the explosions will shatter every piece of woodwork and glass in every portion of the vessel. That is expected and prepared for, and for that reason the battleship Indiana is composed almost entirely of iron and steel. She has been aptly described as an enormous floating steel tort with a ship built around it for purposes of navigation. Fully one-half of her could be shot away and she would still float and retain her unequalled fighting power.

These facts and figures should bring us to a realization of what a serious thing war is in these modern times.

Embalming.

It is often the case that it is necessary to preserve the body of some person for some special purpose, and for this the services of the embalmer are called into requisition. Much dissatisfaction is sometimes expressed because the preservative process is not all that is promised. While the embalmer is largely responsible for failures, it must not be forgotten that there are widely different climate conditions, and that processes that were and would now be eminently successful in Egypt and other exceedingly dry climates, would not answer at all with us. The methods most popular in this country are injecting chemicals into the large arteries and filling the large cavities of the body with the fluid. Cresote, pyroligneous acid and similar substances are employed for this purpose. When properly performed this operation is of great use; but imperfectly done, it is worse than nothing at all, for there is an enormous bill to pay, and decomposition sets in almost as soon as though there had been no attempt at preservation. By this means the friends are disappointed, the estate is forced to pay an unjust claim, and there is also danger to health in trying to keep a body that may be in an advanced stage of decay. A perfect preservative of this sort is something that is generally needed.—N. Y. Journal.

HAD HIM FAST.

A Yankee's Remark at the Tomb of Lord Nelson.

The English people will never understand the humorous temper of the American, which makes him ask such questions as that recorded by Mark Twain as having been asked by a friend of his in the British museum. A guide had exhibited an Egyptian mummy, and discounsel long upon the antiquity of it, and the Egyptian process of embalming, and so forth; and at last the American asked: "Is he dead?"

It was only recently, according to a letter in an exchange, that in St. Paul's cathedral a London guide held forth thus to an American gentleman: "That, sir, is the tomb of the greatest naval hero Europe or the whole world ever knew!"

"Yes?"
"It is, sir, the tomb of Lord Nelson. This marble sarcophagus weighs 42 tons. Inside 'at is a steel receptacle weighing 12 tons, and inside that is a leaden casket, 'ermetically sealed, weighing two tons. Inside that is a mahogany coffin 'olding the ashes of the great 'ero."
"Well," said the Yankee, after reflecting a moment, "I guess you've got him. If he ever gets out of that, telegraph me at my expense."

The Viagraph.

The viagraph is a newly-invented machine for accurately determining the inequalities of a road surface. It resembles a sledge, and in principle is a straight edge applied continually to the road on which it may be drawn. The machine carries a roll of paper which receives the impression of two pencils. One of these is fixed and marks a perfectly straight line, while the other rises and falls according to the variations of the surface. These variations are transmitted by a serrated wheel which travels on the road surface and is attached to one end of a lever which is pivoted in the center. At the opposite end of the lever is the second pencil, and as the wheel rises and falls with the undulations of the road surface the pencil rises and falls correspondingly, thus making an infallible record of the surface. The viagraph has been extensively used in England, where its records have been frequently used by bicyclists for the purpose of showing the authorities how much some roads are in need of repair. Such a record is the more valuable as a piece of testimony from the fact that the actual degree of unevenness of a given road can be indicated where desired by a numerical index in feet, which can be attached to the machine.—St. Louis Republic.

PERRIN'S PILE SPECIFIC

THE DRAUGHT'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A sallow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney troubles. Stomach and bowel disorders, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. The Draught's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It drives up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by The Draught's Black-Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than The Draught's Black-Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Audius, S. C., March 12, 1901.
I have used The Draught's Black-Draught for three years and I have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it. It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints. Rev. A. G. LEWIS.
