Robyn Miller

Q. What do you do?

A. I'm the Humbolt Elementary special ed teacher for kindergarten through sixth-graders.

Q: Why did you choose this career path?

A. I grew up in a family full of educators and had an amazing fourth- and fifth-grade teacher who inspired me to want to be a teacher. I have always loved working with children and knew from an early age that I wanted to be an educator. I wanted to be able to inspire and help students meet their full potential.

Q. What's the most rewarding part about working in education and/or a special ed teacher?

A. The most rewarding part of working as an educator is seeing students make incredible progress and develop skills that will help them be successful lifelong learners and citizens.

Q. What goals do you have or what do you hope to accomplish in your career?

A. My goals for the future are to continue to improve myself professionally through education and training and to serve the students of Grant School District No. 3, helping them to become involved, active learners who think critically and creatively, communicate effectively and achieve academic and personal excellence.
