Blue Mountain Eagle

MONUMENT — Water rights and toxic plants are among the topics at Monument Soil and Water Conservation District's 2016 land-owner seminars and meeting,

Wednesday, Jan. 27, at the Monument Senior Center. The event will begin with a welcome and introductions at 10 a.m. Three seminars are scheduled: • "Water Rights" from 10:15-11 a.m., led by Grant County Watermaster Eric Julsrud. • "Allocation of Conserved Water Program" from 11-12 p.m., led by Assistant Watermaster Hailey Boethin. • "Toxic Plants in Your Fields and Around Your House" from 1-2 p.m., led by Mark Porter, Oregon Department of Agriculture noxious weed representative from the northeast Oregon Region. From noon to 1 p.m., Monument FFA will serve a barbecue brisket lunch for $8 a plate. The seminars will be followed by the Monument SWCD annual meeting and election of officers at 2:15 p.m. RSVP by Friday, Jan. 15, by calling 541-934-2141, or mswcd@centurytel.net.

Steele sentenced 25 months for drug charges

By Sean Hart
Blue Mountain Eagle

Anthony Scott Steele was sentenced to more than two years in prison after pleading guilty to a number of drug-related charges.

At a plea hearing Thursday in Grant County Circuit Court, Steele pleaded guilty to one count of manufacture of methamphetamine, four counts of delivery of methamphetamine, six counts of possession of methamphetamine and one count of menacing. He entered an Alford plea — pleading guilty without admitting to committing the criminal act — on one count of felon in possession of a firearm.

The plea came after negotiation with District Attorney Jim Carpenter, whereby additional charges — three counts of manufacture of methamphetamine, three counts of possession of methamphetamine and two counts of felon in possession of a restricted weapon — were dismissed. Per the plea agreement, the parties stipulated to a crime severity and criminal history level for a 25-month sentence for the manufacturing charge. Carpenter said Steele was also required to assign his $2,500 bail security to the Grant County Sheriff/Drug Task Force.

Judge William D. Cramer Jr. sentenced Steele to the 25-month prison sentence, with a variety of lesser sentences for the other charges to be served concurrently. Cramer also imposed three years of post-prison supervision, with added recommendations of substance abuse treatment and no contact with Shelby Pickenpaugh, and a $250 fine. Cramer said Steele could receive credit for time already served and was eligible for consideration for early release.

Armed group accesses government files at refuge

By Rick Bowmer
Associated Press

BURNS — The leader of a small, armed group occupying a national wildlife refuge in southeastern Oregon said Monday he and his followers are going through government documents stored inside refuge buildings.

Ammon Bundy told reporters the documents will be used to "expose" how the government has discriminated against local ranchers who use federal land for cattle grazing.

Bundy said the documents would also help secure the release of Steven and Dwight Hammond, two area ranchers convicted of arson who returned to prison last week to serve longer sentences. The Hammonds' case set off the occupation of the Burns-area refuge on Jan. 2. Bundy said his group is not accessing government computers at the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge, including personnel files.

After the news conference, the group drove in a convoy to a ranch near the refuge and tore down a stretch of government-erected fence. The goal, according to the armed men, was to give the rancher access to the range that had been blocked for years. It's not clear where the fence was located or which rancher sought the group's help.

The refuge is administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Spokesman Jason Holm said because the documents and files at the refuge may have personally identifiable information, the agency "is taking necessary steps to ensure employee and family safety." The agency strongly condemned the destruction of the fence and said the action undermines hard-earned conservation impacts achieved in the area.

"Removing fences, damaging any Refuge property, or unauthorized use of equipment would be additional unlawful actions by the illegal occupiers," Fish and Wildlife said in a statement. "Any movement of cattle onto the Refuge or other activities that are not specifically authorized by USFWS constitutes trespassing."

Sixteen full time employees and one part time employee usually work at the refuge, Holm said. Some who can't work away from the refuge have taken administrative leave, while others are working from home or another office.

majority of whom he believes will vote to allow "making money and bringing jobs here" through marijuana businesses, despite the fact 65 percent of the county voted against Measure 91 in 2014, which legalized recreational marijuana.

"We believe that the county court will do what the people of Grant County expect and give them a voice in this process through a vote," he said. "... My clients and I are confident that the people of Grant County, if given a chance to vote on whether they want jobs and tax revenues from a legal activity in (the) State of Oregon or no jobs and no tax revenues, they will (choose) to reject the Measure 91 opt-out passed in Grant County Ordinance 15-01 and allow businessmen in Grant County access to the free market to bring jobs to our county suffering nearly 10 percent unemployment."

Although bills enacted by the Oregon Legislature in 2015 only allow taxes to be collected from retail marijuana sales, county residents who argued against the ban on marijuana growers and expressed interest in growing — including Russell and Paul Cooper — volunteered to pay a 3-percent fee of their growing revenues to the county.

The complaint that was withdrawn alleged the Grant County Court improperly passed the ordinance as an emergency, effective immediately, without a unanimous vote. The complaint further alleged that, although the commissioners discussed the ordinance at four consecutive weekly meetings in December, Myers' language stating the hearing was continued from one meeting to the next legally indicated the four dates were a single meeting.

BABY STEPS

Birth & Beyond

We believe having a baby means so much more than just labor and delivery. Prenatal classes help parents feel calm and confident with the birthing process, while reducing the duration of labor. Parents also gain a profound awareness of the importance of their role. The first 1,000 days of a child's life provide the foundation for success in school and in life.

This prenatal class will cover:

- Touring the family birthing unit
- Prenatal and postpartum nutrition
- Relief of common discomforts during pregnancy
- Creating a birth plan
- Stages of Labor
- Comfort Measures & relaxation tools during labor
