On the road to Burns last Tuesday, Grant Union won the nonleague match 3-1 with scores of 22-25, 25-18, 26-24 and 25-17.

"We struggled defensively during the first set loss, but we were able to make adjustments to win the next three sets," said head coach Shae Speth.

She highlighted Prospector senior Chelsie Kodesh with having "one of the best defensive matches of her career," with 31 digs in the match.

"We served much better than we have been, which made a huge difference," she said.

The Prospectors found the energy for a 3-1 win over Union on Friday.

Grant Union overtook the Bobcats with scores of 20-25, 25-20, 25-11 and 30-28.

After the hard-fought matches earlier in the week, Speth said the girls were physically, mentally, emotionally spent, but they were "still able to fight and come out with a good win at Union."

RODEO

Holly will compete in the PRCA circuit finals on Nov. 4-6 in Yakima, Washington.

For the brothers, rodeo has been a part of life since they were young.

Finley said it was his grandpa Ben Finley who started the family's rodeo tradition.

Chad said his grandpa didn't come from a rodeo family, but was introduced to the sport and competed in Vancouver; he later moved to Mt. Vernon with his wife Donna and the family.

"He made it where we could do what we wanted and got us mounted so we could rodeo," Chad said. "He taught us all we know and kept us on good horses, growing up, and gave us cattle to practice on."

Chad added, "He passed it on to us — all my cousins have done rodeo growing up."

He said he and his brother and their cousin Trisha (Legg) McCoin of Terrebonne continue to compete.

McCoin finished 17th in breakaway roping in the NPRA Year End standings with $2,518.

Chad's aunts and uncles were also past rodeo competitors — Jeff Finley, Larry Finley, Clay Finley, Cindy (Finley) Legg, as well as his mom Christy Finley.

Chad said he'll continue to rodeo "as long as I'm able to keep going at it, and as long as I've got the horses to do it."

Other locals competing in rodeo include:

Trevor Knowles, Mt. Vernon, 14th in PRCA World standings, steer wrestling, $58,653.42; 2nd in Columbia River Circuit Standings, $18,555.87

Tucker Wright, Canyon City, 11th in NPRA Year End standings, steer wrestling, $3,295.60;

23rd, Columbia River Circuit, $1,121.89

Cauy Pool, Long Creek, 4th in ICA novice bulls, $282

David Clark, Long Creek, 11th in the ICA standings for steer wrestling; placed 15th in ICA Idaho Independent Bank Steer Wrestling, $580.80

David Clark competed at rodeos last summer with his sons Riley Clark, who also rides for Blue Mountain Community College, and GW Clark, a Monument High School senior who finished 10th in steer wrestling at the Oregon High School Rodeo Finals last June.
