EAST 14TH
SEPTEMBER 25

Growing up in Oakland, California, Don Reed's mother and stepfather raised him to be a middle-class, straight-A, God-fearing church boy, but Don wanted to be like his biological father. Too bad he didn't know that dear old dad was an actual pimp.

SEMI-FAMOUS
NOVEMBER 12

With stories from the famous to the infamous, Don Reed returns to the stage with a collection of delightful Hollywood tales - from panic attacks auditioning for Spike Lee, to almost being shot by the Secret Service at a television taping. All true. All wrong. In this story Don takes us from his humble beginnings in Oakland, California to embark on a journey into the soul-grinder that is the entertainment business.
