Longtime county band to perform

Brownsmead Flats, an acoustic band founded in Clatsop County in 1984, will perform in a donation-only concert at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 7, in the Performing Arts Center, corner of 16 Street and Franklin Avenue in Astoria.

The group, made up of John Fenton, Ned Heavenrich, Ray Raihala, Robert Stevens and Dan Sutherland, play family-friendly folk, traditional, popular and original works and each member plays a string instrument.

For more information, call 503-325-0590.

Hike club holds planning session

The Angora Hiking Club will have its 2018 trip-planning meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 7, in conference room 231 at the OSU Seafood Lab, 2001 Marine Drive, Astoria.

For more information, contact chief hiking guide Bill Herold at 503-468-0474 or President Kathleen Hudson at 503-861-2802.

Preventing cyber attacks is topic of class

Two instructors with experience in business and technology will present a class, "Cyber Security for Small and Mid-Sized Businesses," on Tuesday, Jan. 9.

Participants can select a class in Seaside or Astoria.

Cost is $20 and registration is required.

The lecture is designed for business owners and those working in facilities, human resources, internet technology or as an office manager.

Participants will hear about the latest threats and vulnerabilities affecting small businesses, strategies for minimizing threats, remedial measures, free resources and initiatives under way in Oregon to develop a more cyber-aware workforce.

Instructors are Lewis Howell, founder and chief executive officer of Hueya Inc., a company that helps people take control of their online identity and secure their digital world, and Leslie Golden, who has worked in technology for nearly 20 years, spanning the public and private sectors as a chief information officer in charge of security and compliance.

The first session is 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. in Room 2-3 at Clatsop Community College, South County Campus, 1455 N. Roosevelt, Seaside.

The second session is 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in Room 310, Towler Hall, Clatsop Community College, 1651 Lexington Ave., Astoria.

For more information or to register, call Tammy Lambert at 503-338-2402.
