to come before the Warrenton Planning Commission. All four ultimately received approval.

Jetty Apartments is in the preliminary stage and owner Jason Palmberg told commissioners he wanted approval for his site design and conditional use of the property for multi-family housing before moving forward.

"There's a point where you can't spend all this money without knowing where you (stand)," Commissioner Chris Hayward said. "It's a great piece of commercial property right on 101, but housing is also needed."

The project is within walking distance of both Fred Meyer and Walmart, which is nearing completion in the North Coast Business Park.

Several work crews are busy this week installing Walmart's façade and making improvements to the parking lot and landscaping.

Planning commissioners expressed concern that a wall designed to block views of the store's freight area from drivers on Highway 101 had been forgotten by builders. City staff members said they'd review the project and contact the company to ensure it gets built.

In addition to the construction jobs created by Walmart, the company plans to hire 250 to 300 employees to operate the store, set to open in the fall.

In Youngs Bay Plaza, Natural Grocers is preparing to open its 21,800-square-foot grocery store in March. Employee interviews began last month.
