

Projects: Improvements coming to a street, park or marina near you

licensing, technology implementation and online public access to look up books and reserve them ($20,178).

"This is one of the promises we made to the voters" when they approved the library levy in September, City Manager Linda Engbretson said.

"This is about all we need," site manager Nettie-Lee Caglog said. "We've been in the dark ages for so long. This is about all the technology I can handle."

STREET IMPROVEMENTS

- Southwest Fourth Street from Main Avenue to Robinson Community Park would get sidewalks, plus power lines would go underground, a new water line would be installed and the road repaved ($836,000).

- Anchor Avenue south of Harbor would get a new water line and minor street paving ($100,000).

- Bring the sewer system to an unserved area that includes North Main Avenue and Northwest Seventh Place and rebuild the road ($867,000).

- Widen and improve the intersection of South Main Avenue at Ninth Street, where buses and other large vehicles headed to Warrenton Grade School have difficulty passing ($867,000).

PARKS

- Replace tennis court fencing fabric ($25,000).

- Replace Carruthers Park viewing dock. The old structure would be removed and replaced with a picnic table or bench and interpretive signs ($7,000).

- Improve Carruthers Dog Park drainage ($30,000).

"We've been having some issues with mud," said Kyle Sharpsteen, Public Works operations manager. "We put bark out there and it seems to be doing pretty well."

But it's an ongoing maintenance issue that requires installation of catch basins, base rock, landscape fabric and pea gravel.

- Install water service to Fort Stevens Parade Grounds. A water line would be extended to the expansive grassy park between the officers' houses at the former military compound. ($5,000).

EQUIPMENT

- Two 2018 patrol vehicles for the police department to replace aging vehicles ($110,000).

- A 2018 tanker tender for the fire department, which will replace a 1978 water tender that can no longer be repaired ($375,000, of which 95 percent is funded by a grant).

"We may end up buying in this fiscal year. We got a FEMA grant for $350,000 and our portion is $17,000," Fire Chief Tim Demers said.

- Other equipment purchases include a side-loading garbage truck and a forklift for the water treatment plant.

MARINAS

- Bank stabilization between a dock and the old fuel dock at Hammond Marina ($75,000).

- Dredging at Hammond Marina ($700,000).

PUBLIC WORKS

- Remodel of the public works office, a fuel depot spill control area and an automatic gate out front ($35,000).
