Historical marker dedicated today

The Oregon Historical Marker Program will dedicate a new historical marker that tells the story of the U.S.S. Shark, which wrecked at the mouth of the Columbia River in 1846.

The dedication is at 1 p.m. today, June 15, on Highway 101 at the wayside on Highway 101. Parking is at the Arch Cape Fire Station just south of the wayside.

Three of the ship's carronades (short, smoothbore cast-iron naval cannons) were found at various locations near what is today Arch Cape. A replica of one of those cannons is on display in the same roadside pullout as the historical marker.

The former routed wood marker had been standing for decades and was in dire need of replacement. The new, modern marker tells a more in-depth story through photographs and expanded text.

The Arch Cape Falcon Cove Beach Community Club sponsored the marker's development and secured a grant from Clatsop County to fund the project.

The Oregon Historical Marker Program is administered by the Oregon Travel Information Council.
