Wauna donates to Astoria High

Wauna Credit Union has donated $6,500 to Astoria High School's Net Shed, a free shop for students.

In its seven years, the non-profit shop has given away more than 32,000 items of clothes, shoes, undergarments, hygiene products and costume jewelry to students and their families.

"It is set up to look just like a store in the mall," said Linda Ho-Martin, founder and director. "Students come and shop for whatever they want always for free."

Wetland exchange helps Fort George

Clatsop County's Board of Commissioners approved a permanent conservation easement on 40 acres of county-owned wetlands as a way to help Fort George build its warehouse and tasting room in the North Coast Business Park.

The easement fulfills the county's obligation to minimize damage to wetlands as part of the 2016 sale of 10 acres to Big Beams LLC, the construction arm of the brewpub's operations.

The conservation easement means the county's land will be off limits to development.

Radio Shack to close Aug. 25

Youngs Bay Electronics, Warrenton's Radio Shack for 30 years, will close by the end of the month.

Ron and Iva Strozzyk have sold a wide variety of electronics, from citizen-band and ham radio equipment to cell phone signal boosters.

Nearly everything in the store is at 50 percent off.
