

Courtesy Danny Miller

Clatsop Community College's Kevin Leahy.

Lecture is on region's economic history

Astoria's economic history is the topic of the next Ales & Ideas lecture at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 6, in the George Lovell Showroom at Fort George Brewery, 14th and Duane streets, Astoria.

It's a tale of booms, busts and recoveries, says lecturer Kevin Leahy, director of Clatsop Community College's small business development center. Three advisers and coordinators at the center also will participate.

Astoria is the oldest American settlement west of the Rockies, and has seen more than its share of trials and tribulations in the 217 years since its founding.

Leahy and his team will use an economic lens to tell their tales about the industries that built Astoria and Clatsop County, including downtown Astoria, and attendees will learn how the community has a bright economic future.

Leahy grew up in Astoria and returned after 27 years of executive experience with May Department Stores (Meier & Frank and Robinsons-May) and six years owning his own small business. He has served as CEDR's executive director since 2011.

The lecture series is co-sponsored by the college and Fort George.

Doors open at 6 p.m. with food and beverage service, although no purchase is required. Minors are welcome.

"I liked the personal approach I received from Ocean View and I'm relieved to think everything will be in order when the time comes."

—from Sherryan Reische

Trust us to take care of your final wishes when the time comes

Ocean View
Funeral & Cremation Services
Serving the area since 2008

1213 Franklin Ave., Astoria
503 338-7200

www.OceanViewAstoria.com

Brian Dutton, Owner

Automated hunting, fishing license system to launch

Oregon's new outdoor sports licensing system launches Saturday, Dec. 1.

Hunters and anglers should use their hunter/angler identification number to verify their account in the new system, which can be done either online at MyODFW.com or at a license sales agent. The ID number is printed on all licenses and tags and stays the same from year to year. It will be known as the "ODFW ID#" in the new licensing system.

Hunters and anglers can enter a phone number or email

Stores selling licenses

Locally, try Fred Meyer, Walmart, Big 5, Tackle Time or Super Mart 9.

associated with their Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife account to verify it in the new system.

Those who don't have any of the information can visit a license sales agent or call ODFW Licensing at 503-947-6101 for help.

ODFW's new electronic licensing system was announced in early August.

With the new system, hunters and anglers can carry their documents electronically on their smartphone or tablet and tag fish and wildlife with a mobile app that will even work offline.

Sportsmen and women still can use paper documents, but will be able to buy the licenses online and print licenses and tags at home on regular paper.

The majority of license sales agents have agreed to continue selling ODFW documents through the new system.

This weekend

Concert series continues with Kim Angelis and Friends

The Music at Pioneer Concert Series presents Kim Angelis and Friends at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2, at the church, 33324 Patriot Way.

Three local musicians will present a program that includes the premiere of Angelis' recent composition based on the Magnificat, "My Soul Glorifies the Lord," which was commissioned by Pioneer Church.

Joining Angelis, a violinist, will be soprano Bereniece Jones-Centeno and pianist Jennifer Goodenberger. The program includes both classically influenced compositions and contemplative works.

Admission is by donation and refreshments will be served. For more information, call 503-861-2421.

Kim Angelis

Seaside Festival of Trees includes free open house

A free community open house and Candy Cane Lane, part of Safeway Providence Festival of Trees, is from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, at Seaside Civic and Convention Center.

A dinner and auction will be from 5:30 to 9 p.m. that evening.

The event, held for more than 20 years, raises money for the Providence Seaside

Hospital Foundation.

Tickets for the dinner and auction are $100 per person and include food, wine and silent auction packages.

Advance purchase is required as the event is limited to 350 guests.

More information about the festival is available online at providencefoundations.org/events.

