Scandi fest: Put a little Viking in your step

More than a dozen Scandinavian music, dance and theater groups will perform. Sixty-nine retail booths will offer Scandinavian handcrafts, imported goods and ethnic food. And the outdoor activities will be loistava (Finnish for wonderful).

People throughout Scandinavia and other Nordic countries celebrate on the longest day of the year because winter can be long, dark and dreary.

With so many Nordic people immigrating to Astoria, it wasn't long before traditions from the homeland took hold. The first documented summer gathering of Scandinavian immigrants was in 1938, according to the festival's website. It was first called Scandinavian Midsummer Festival in 1968.

"The things I like best are family. And heritage," Lampi said. "You can go to the festival and see multigenerational – four generations of families – who've all come to the festival to celebrate their heritage."

Highlights include featured entertainers Harald Haugegard/Helen Blum Band from Denmark and Bjorn and Ole from Norway as well as Icelandic horses.

All three days include vendor booths, a beer garden, entertainment and the horses. The outdoor "Empire of Chivalry and Steel Viking Encampment" and the "Barnef-
