boxes of vintage postage stamps. Individual stamps are set into decorative pendants she sells for about $20.

Denise Bruchman of Warrenton brought a collection of coasters, trivets, magnets and spoon rests she makes from her photographs. She's been selling her photos since 2002, but began making custom housewares about four years ago.

"For the first day, we're doing real good," Roberta said.

Several vendors reported brisk sales despite the chilly weather and overcast skies.

Nearly all the sellers make the circuit of farmer's markets, which include Ilwaco or Longview on Saturdays, Astoria on Sundays and Seaside on Wednesdays.

"I think it's just going to continue to grow and people are excited about it," City Manager Linda Engbretson said at Tuesday night's City Commission meeting.
