There's bad information out there

I have recently been informed that there was a post on Facebook that any worker who tested positive for CV19 would have their children removed by Children's Services.

It is not true. If parents contract CV19 and are unable to care for their children, then they can ask Children's Services for help, and the children could be placed where they will be provided for while the parents recover. It is up to the parents.

Also, I've heard a rumor that if someone asks for a CV19 test, the information could be acquired by Immigration and Customs Enforcement. That also is not true.

If anyone feels the need to be tested because they believe they might have contracted CV19, contact the Clatsop County Health Department about getting tested. The test won't determine if you've had CV19 in the past; that's a different test.

Any information exchanged is covered under doctor/patient privacy laws, and cannot be released without the patient's consent.

It is a sad thing we have this kind of untrue information circulating when prevention and control, testing and tracing are such an important tool.

A thank you to Clatsop Behavioral Health for offering to assist in finding services for anyone struggling to deal with mental distress from the CV19 ordeal (also covered under confidentiality laws). This has proven to not be just the seasonal flu.

And a thank you to our Mayor, Henry Balensifer, for doing an excellent job as an area leader during this unusual time.

Masks protect,
yet they annoy

A few thoughts on wearing a mask: It's hard to breath and wear a mask for very long; at least I find it to be so. So I feel for the workers at stores who wear them for hours. Thank you store workers!

Also, I can't tell if people are smiling or crabby when only eyes peek out. One day, I told a man in the store that I was smiling under my mask. He said he was, too.

We all do look strange walking around faceless. But, hopefully, soon we can resume our identities.

My great-granddaughter who is 4 went to the grocery store with her mom and she wore a mask. She later said that she liked wearing a mask because she could stick her tongue out and no one could see her.

So, take care everyone. Hopefully things will be back to normal.
