The Columbia Press publishes free obituaries of community members who pass away. These free obituaries are 7 to 12 inches long and include a photo. We'll do the writing for you.

Those who want to write their own obituaries to honor a loved one may do so. These are $7.50 per column inch and can include a photo. Please call us at 503-861-3331 or send an email to office@thecolumbiapress.com.

DAR offers student history and citizenship competitions

The Astoria Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has several opportunities for local students to win scholarships and awards.

The Good Citizen contest for high school seniors includes the chance to move on to the district, state and national level through DAR. One student is chosen from each high school.

The theme for this year's American History essay contest is "The Boston Massacre." The contest is open to students in grades five through eight, including those in home school.

The Junior American Citizens contest is for preschool through grade 12 and has different categories for each grade level.

The theme is "The 400th Anniversary of the Mayflower: Rise and Shine for New Opportunities in a New Land."

Entry categories include poster, stamp design, photo essay, banner, poem, short story and community service.

Judging is by grade level as well as categories of gifted, general and special needs.

For more information, contact your school or Sue Glen at 503-861-0574.

Museum: City's heritage preserved at new site grade," Gramson said. "I've always admired the work she's done with our heritage in Warrenton and I felt I could help out."

The new museum is across the street from Warrenton City Hall.

"When I heard they were closing out at the (Youngs Bay) plaza, you could almost see the handwriting on the wall if we didn't do something," Gramson said. "The museum, or heritage center, in order to be successful, needed to be downtown and I thought this was a great location."

Preserving the city's history is vital, he said, "so people know who we were, who we are now and where we're going. I really want it to succeed because we don't have anything in the way of museums in Warrenton."

In February, Collier and her friends and helpers organized a party at City Hall in celebration of Warrenton's 121st birthday.

Many people came to look at memories from the past and it was clear the public is interested in knowing more.

Now, they'll have a convenient place to view objects, books and photos all year long.

us this," Collier said, surveying the just-completed museum in Sandridge's front room. "And now I'd really like to have the room next door so I could put more of my crap – er – treasures in."

She says this in deadpan jest. The photos and other items are invaluable and possibly the largest collection of Warrenton history anywhere.

Collier and her longtime friend, Carol Snell, who is helping with the museum, are grateful for the opportunity brought by Gramson.

"He thought it was important for the people who live here to know what the heritage is here," Snell said. "There's a lot of history."

"Gil is a Warrentonian through and through," Collier added.

Gramson points out that local resident George Warren is the grandson of the city's founder, Daniel Knight Warren.

"Nobody knows those kinds of things except people like me who've been here forever," Gramson said.

The group plans to offer quarterly programs with speakers and living history activities, although that will wait until after the pandemic has passed.

In addition to books and photos, items in the museum's collection include high school annuals, old city laws (no dirty dancing here, for instance), memories of young people who died too soon, an autographed photo of Arnold Schwarzenegger from "Kindergarten Cop" days, pennants from the city's centennial, arrowheads, and a bamboo-and-straw fishing basket found by Warrenton crab fisherman George Plummer in the 1950s.
