We would suggest that should another death occur in our town, the bell be tolled and also, that after funeral services in the church are concluded until the corpse has been removed. The congregation should follow the corpse from the church instead of preceding it.

The Homelides.

On last Friday evening just before 10 p. m., news reached this city of a battle unto death which occurred at the ranch of old Indian "Umqua Joe," about sixteen miles down the river, between Joe and a granger named Albert Pico the son-in-law of Joe. The coroner not feeling well enough to undertake so hard a journey in the night, he requested Justice of the peace John Goodell to go to the scene of the conflict and hold an inquest. Accordingly he in company with Dr. Vandyke, Prof. Benson, Robt. S. Smith and others started about 10 o'clock for Joe's ranch, to reach which they had to travel a very hilly and rather bad road over a dozen miles, there leave their team and walk across the hills three miles to the Rogue river, which point they reached about three o'clock in the morning. After hollowing, Pico's wife, leaving her infant and another small child with the two men, came to the river and ferried them across. We are indebted to the acting coroner Mr. Goodell, for the additional facts concerning the horrible affair. Upon their arrival at the ranch, they found both men dead and no mistake, which came about in this way: Pico had just bought a new Marlin rifle and a good supply of whiskey had been obtained which we understand the Indians got from Lee Jack a Chinaman of this place, thus stocked up with glory the two men went out in the afternoon to shoot at target, after which they returned to the cabin and played a few games of cards. About this time Pico appeared to be very guilty and inclined to be mean, and noticing the dogs after a while, he got his new gun and went for the dogs' killing both of them at three shots. About this time it seems that Joe suspected that Pico had made up his mind to kill everything on the ranch, so he shot a load of bird shot out of his old yager and loaded it with buck-shot, he then shut and fastened the door with a chain. Pico soon returned in a perfect state of frenzy, apparently bent on the destruction of everything before him, and finding the door locked against him, he attempted to force it open, when Joe told him to come in but to go away and let him alone, to which he replied by smashing the door down bodily and plunging into the house; the same instant Joe fired the entire charge of buckshot entering Pico's body at the left groin, severing the phrenal artery and leaving a hole through him nearly as large as a man's fist. Pico fell, but with his hip shattered to pieces, and his life's blood rushing from his body, he arose to his feet and fired three shots at Joe with startling rapidity and unerring aim, one of which tore Joe's heart into shreds, and another of which passed through his body entering the left side of his back and coming out below the left nipple. The third shot is not accounted for. Both men fell dead at the same instant. The family consisted of Joe and two daughters and Pico, he having married one of them. When the shooting began in the house the two women ran out doors, remaining until all was quiet in the house, when upon their return, they found to their horror that both men were dead. One of them started immediately to Anderson Vannoy for assistance. Arriving there, Holman Peter kindly came to town for a doctor and coroner. Prof. H. L. Benson, Robt. S. Smith, Holman Peter, Ira P. Sparling, A. Vannoy and W. L. Gibson acted as a jury of inquest, finding that Umqua Joe came to his death from a gunshot fired by Pico, and that Joe shot and killed Pico while acting in self defence. Those who attended the inquest say the scene was one of blood and desperation carried to the utmost extreme. It seems that Pico was a dangerous man and that Joe wanted to get rid of him, and a 4 o'clock Sunday evening November 14th. She was converted to the Baptist faith about 17 years ago, joined the M. E. church at Myrtle Creek, Douglas county Ore. and about six years ago. Three years and a half ago the little son died, aged three years. She has gone to meet her loved son in a brighter clime.

N. P. Elsbree, living six miles below this city, brought to our office eight potatoes which weighed twenty three and a half lbs., one of which weighed just four lbs. They were of the Prolific variety. 'Also a stalk of corn twelve feet high and very large, having three ears of very large corn, nine feet from the ground. These samples were forwarded by us to the Board of Immigration rooms at Portland.

We understand Mr. Hartman feels hurt about our remarks last week that certain unlawful acts had been perpetrated in the vicinity of the new bridge, he supposing that we meant to say that the persons committing them lived near the bridge. This we did not say nor did we mean that. We were informed of these acts and requested to mention it in the paper, but Mr. Hartman was certainly not accused nor was his family.

The S. P. D. & L. Co. shipped last week as follows: Two car loads of sugar pine lumber to Ogden, Utah; one car load to Salem; one to Central Point; one to Gold Hill and one to Medford, besides a lot of doors and lath for Medford and Central Point, and a lot of doors for Linkville; also a lot of fruit boxes for Salem. The O. & C. R. R. has made freight to this company as low to Albany as from Portland to Albany, thus giving our factory the advantage over Portland.

A. F. Shultz was in this place the forepart of the week with two teams hauling coils of wire for the Postal Telegraph which is to be put up through here forthwith. Large wire is being used, weighing 1200 lbs. to the mile, large cedar posts are also being used. One set of men digging post holes and another set digging posts are in the vicinity of Canyonville now, and will arrive here in about two weeks. The sooner the better. There will be an office at this place and then comes a reduction in telegraph rates.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Orr and child, wife and son of our fellow townsman John Orr, which took place from the Methodist Episcopal church last Monday, was one which touched the hearts of many of our good people who were there present. The cortege bearing the corpse followed by the husband and children and many friends arrived at the church at a quarter past 3 p. m. At the church, services were conducted as follows: Singing by the choir; fervent prayer by Rev. John McIntire, during which many tears traced the burning cheeks of tender hearted sympathizing friends. Exhortation by A. J. Wilcox. A feeling discourse by Rev. S. E. Stearns, bearing directly upon the 14th verse of the 14th chapter of the book of Job, "If a man die, shall he live again." The Rev. gentleman spoke from several chapters of the book of books to show that the righteous do live again. After singing No. 210, friendly hands conveyed the corpse to the cemetery, a large concourse of sympathizing friends following. At the grave after remarks by C. B. Bristow and the singing of No. 20, a last prayer and panging word was offered by Mr. Johnson. When the clouds began to fall on the casket that contained the wife and mother the wail from the bereaved ones that went up shook the hearts of all present. Mrs. Martha Orr was born in Arkansas, in the year 1845, she was therefore 41 years old at the time of her death. The poor woman has been confined to her bed for nearly a year with internal cancer, which ended her life about 4 o'clock Sunday evening November 14th. She was converted to the Baptist faith about 17 years ago, joined the M. E. church at Myrtle Creek, Douglas county Ore. and about six years ago. Three years and a half ago the little son died, aged three years. She has gone to meet her loved son in a brighter clime.

From Brownsborough. Nov. 13th '86. Cold frosty nights. Roads getting muddy. Grass hay is selling at $9 per ton. Mrs. Ida Jones and her daughter Mary, of Lake View, came in to spend the winter. Murder is becoming altogether too frequent in Oregon for the safety of the people or the good name of the state. The Oregon & California railroad company is having all the bridges along its line housed in and covered with shingle roofs. Wm. M. Turner who has been confined to his bed for some time past is improving slowly and is able to sit up part of the time. The worst portion of the staging between Yreka and railroad will be cut off to-day (Saturday) by railroad connection at Sisson's. In a few weeks more the terminus will be as far as Butteville, only 25 miles from Yreka and 75 miles from Ashland. SHILOH'S COUGH and Consumption Cure is sold by us on a guarantee. It cures Consumption. Kramer keeps it. JAMES SULLIVAN of Salem, Oregon, says he was cured of Asthma by Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir. Kramer keeps it.

GRANTS PASS, OR., Nov. 15. ED. COURIER.—With your permission, we would like to make a few suggestions through your columns to the good people of our town.

In the first place, would it not be better when the funeral procession arrives for those who are in the church to quietly rise to their feet and remain standing until the coffin is in its place and the mourners seated.

In the second place would it not be a good way of showing our respect to the deceased and the bereaved family, if at the close of the services in church we would quietly rise to our feet and remain standing until the corpse and mourners pass out before we move to the door.

In the third place would it not be well for those boys to be a little more careful about crowding between the mourners and the deceased.

These are a few suggestions out of many which might be made. We think if people will observe these, it saves the feelings of those we respect and we would not wish to cause them any more anguish or sorrow than we can possibly help, knowing they have their full share of affliction.

From Linkville. Nov. 16th. FRIEND WEBB EVENING.—I met Curley Webb last evening. He is driving the stage between Fort Klamath and Linkville. He informs me that a petition is being circulated in Klamath county for the purpose of changing the mail route between Ashland and Linkville to that of Yreka and Linkville. If that should be done it will be very detrimental to the interests of Southern Oregon, as the trade will go entirely to San Francisco instead of Portland. I think it advisable to write an article remonstrating against such proceedings. I expect I could have done so myself while writing this letter, but will leave it to you, and will give some good items shortly. Send me a copy of your paper next week. Yours, FRANK.

FREE TRADE. The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefited the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Bosanko's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the Green Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.

E. MARTIN & CO. Col. Burns occupies the proud distinction of representing the oldest and most reliable house in the trade in the United States, and he again greets his many friends, reminding them that the season of "peace on earth and good will toward men" is rapidly approaching, when prosperity and generosity go hand in hand, and the whole civilized world seeks for those tributes and monuments which serve to bind closer the friends of fleeting years. After the full comes the storm, the season of depression is rapidly passing away. The signs of the times indicate a better and more active future, and in anticipation of an increased demand for fine whiskeys, he will give personal attention to the best of European and Eastern liquors. He now offers to patrons the advantage of selecting from these fine whiskeys, which he guarantees will not be excelled on the coast. The firm he represents has in stock J. F.
