The people of Medford should support the new enterprise.

Editors Nickell and Jackson respectively of the Jacksonville Times and Sentinel, were in town looking after "delinquents," during the court session, and paid this office several visits. The newspaper business appears to agree well with them. Another gentleman, Mr. T. Kent, probably known to the readers of the COURIER as the formerly district attorney, also paid us a visit and showed himself very affable.

The August Court session is certainly not a success. It is held just when farmers should be attending to their harvesting and threshing and they can attend only at a sacrifice of their own interests. There was a very light docket for the recent session and most of the cases were disposed of on Monday and Tuesday. Owing to physical disabilities under which Judge Webster was suffering, he was obliged to adjourn the court until the 17th inst.

A bush fire south of the town caused considerable uneasiness on Wednesday last to parties living in that direction, and no doubt would have caused serious trouble and swept into the town had it not been for the determined manner in which a few citizens fought the devouring elements. J. B. Hutch of the Commercial Hotel was on hand as usual where there is any excitement and by judicious and prompt back firing the flames were prevented from crossing the road through the wood. A considerable area of land was burnt over, the fire coming up from the Applegate.

About $1,800 has already been promised toward the new brick Opera house. Twelve hundred Dollars more are required by the committee before they let the contract. The plans are for a handsome brick structure with stores underneath and an auditorium 50 by 90 feet above. There is no doubt but that such a building would pay a handsome dividend to the stockholders and we think there should be no difficulty in getting the required amount. We believe Pro. Benson has the matter in hand and will carry it through.

Southern Oregon grows a most superior article in the hop line. So says our pioneer hop grower, Mr. J. S. Denise. This gentleman has ten acres of hops on the Applegate, which were put in three years ago. Last year they did remarkably well and this year Mr. D. estimates that he will have nearly 30,000 lbs of as good hops as ever were grown. As the best hops are at present worth 18 cts per pound it can be seen at a glance that those ten acres will pay a nice little profit. Allowing a very liberal figure for expenses we could still count on $200 profit per acre, which certainly is not a result to be despised. Mr. Denise grows the variety known as English cluster and he expects they will be ready to gather by 1st of September. He advertises in this issue for hop pickers.

The contract has been let by Gen. Anderson, of the Northern Pacific, to Huffman & Bates, of Portland, for construction of a drawbridge in the trestle across Commencement bay. The bridge will work on a pivot. There will be two openings of seventy feet each, on each side of a central pier. In the trestle at the head of the bay will be placed a sixty-foot span.

R. M. Day, a prominent furnitnre manufacturer of Eugene City, fell from the roof of his factory, a distance of 25 feet, July 25th, sustaining injuries from which, for a time, his life was dispaired of. His right elbow was crushed, and both bones of the lower arm broken and pushed through the skin. He was otherwise terribly bruised and injured, but hopes are entertained for his recovery.

In spite of the 3000 feet of warehouses that are now under contract and going up along the water front, the fear is expressed that Tacoma will be unable to handle her share of the immense wheat crops of Eastern Washington and Oregon, and so leading business men and builders, of the city, who are shipping large quantities of brick from Seattle, propose to load the steamers engaged in this trade with wheat on their return trip to this city at 35 cents per ton, thus enabling Seattle to overcome the discrimmation of 50 cents a ton made against her by the railroads.

From Williams Creek.

The grain crop is now being housed and prospects are good for a fair yield. It will probably go 25 bushels to the acre.

Thos. Stevens who died here two weeks ago, aged 74 years was a Missourian by birth, but for many years had lived in this locality. He was a great reader, and well-known throughout the district. His demise was the result of fever brought on by exposure.

Mr. Biglow and son are preparing to build the handsomest residence on the river. It is to be a T shaped building, two stories high, with nine rooms. The main structure will be 36x26 and the other 20x16. When completed it will be one of the best farm houses of the district.

J. T. Bryan, ex-assessor of this county succumbed to an attack of heart disease on Saturday, 23rd ult., aged sixty-five years. He was a man of good education and well-posted on current events. He was highly esteemed by his many acquaintances for his strict integrity and many good qualities. He was a native of Illinois.

MEDFORD, Aug. 4, 1887.

We hear the threshing machines busy at work.

All the young folks are going to Crater Lake for a pleasure trip.

The market is over-run with apples, peaches and water melons.

The Ladies Aid society will give a free entertainment at Howard's hall on the 17th of August. Every one invited.

Work has commenced on the school house enlarging the rooms. School will commence the first of September. Four teachers will be employed.

There was a grand ball here last night. Two prizes were offered—one for the ladies and one for the gentlemen. The lady should be the best dressed, best looking, and the best dancer, for which, Miss Alice Matthews was chosen. The winner of the gentleman's prize was a young man from Portland, we did not learn his name. The prizes awarded to the young couple were elegant. Medford deserves praise.

MARS.

WILDERVILLE, Aug. 2, '87.

The north winds are drying up the gardens very fast, and some think the corn crop will be somewhat injured by the same means.

The people of this vicinity are very busy just now, getting their grain in the stack and threshing. Some crops are turning out very well.

The hop crop on Applegate and Rogue rivers promises a good yield this year. The picking of the same will give employment to a great many hands this fall.

Rev. Riddle preached his farewell sermon to the people of this place last Sunday. He will soon leave this circuit to attend conference. We regret very much to part with him.

COMO.

ED. COURIER:—Returning from Roseburg last week, it was my good fortune to make the trip by daylight, the train being several hours late The wild scenery along the Cow Creek Canyon was viewed with a great deal of interest, not only by myself, but by many others who witnessed it for the first time.

While standing on the platform of the cars, the train swept around a curve where there was just room between the base of a perpendicular rock dome and the creek for the track, a stranger standing near me, gazing in wonder upon the wild and romantic scenery around us, turned to me with awe strickened face and earnest tones with the question: "Sir, is this Grants Pass?" With a feeling of disgust, we turned and walked into the car with no enviable feelings that the name of our beautiful town should be associated with such an unpromising region of country. However, it is in keeping with our first thoughts on arriving here from the East. That is, the name is a give away to the place. Nine out of every ten people coming from the east get the idea that it is simply a narrow pass or defile through the mountains where the town is located.

Take the fact of its being a mountainous country, and how natural for strangers to fall into that idea. Notwithstanding the fact of all the associations connected with the name of the great leader and foremost soldier of the world, a different name than that of the present would be a better advertisement for our town abroad.

J. P. COVERT.

J. M. Chiles has made a first class ladder, twenty six feet long and hung it on hooks on the west side of his store building, and notifies the public that the same can be borrowed without asking, whenever a fire breaks out, but on no other occasion whatever.

The Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock.

'Twas a question 'f the nation should such tender youth employ
As Robert Henry Hendershot, the little drummer boy;
A prodigy at drumming, being only twelve years old—
And a prodigy of valor if you hear his story told.
At Fredricksburg's great battle
The soldiers heard the rattle
Of his drum!

There stood Burnside with his army in the soft December mud,
With the Rappahannock rolling like a
war-dividing flood;
While the batteries of Robert Lee that crowned the farthe ridge,
Dealing death, forbade the building of the needed pontoon bridge!
For Burnside came for battle,
And they knew it by the rattle
Of the drum!
