"A Brief History of Oregon."

An Attempt to Introduce This History in the Schools.

The state superintendent of public inphlet, poorly written and not yet completed, which Mr. Irwin styles in his circular letter to county superintendents, "A Brief History of Oregon " Here is is circular which explains his scheme:

SALEM Or., Sept. 20, 1897. Instruction in the history and keography of the state of Oregon, should, in the judgment of the state board of edu cation, be a feature of the teaching in our public schools. Therefore, the state board of education asks the attention of the county superintendents and the mem bers of the state board of examiners to a small work especially prepared for in-
