THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1899.

Alger and Pingree formed a combination. This should surprise nobody. It is our experience that roasted beet and potatoes go together excellently well.

Brained, bleeding and stunned, assailed in front and rear, weary with the heat of conflict, Secretary Alger hauled down his flag and surrendered on July 19, after a protracted siege. It was inevitable. He would soon have been carried by assault.

The quartz mining industry here has been held back by the reputation of this section as a "pocket" country. We do have pockets here, and some rich ones, but we would like to have it distinctly understood that we also have permanent quartz ledges, and some that are seldom equalled in richness.

The Hon. Adelbert M. Dewey is the author of a book, "The Life of Admiral George Dewey and the Dewey Family History," a work which is described as being nearly as large as Webster's Dictionary or the Bible. While we are always glad to hear from Admiral Dewey, we think that the honorable is going a little too strong, and working the name of his illustrious relative a little too hard, and therefore we hope he will not sell a single copy.

It has been coming in for fully his share of criticism lately, and the popular opinion is that his retirement is a matter of a short time only. Opinions differ in regard to his ability as a soldier, but there is one thing certain, if he had the military genius of Napoleon, and had not the confidence of his men, he would be powerless, and that is one thing he seems to have signally failed to command. Our opinion is that one who is so high an authority on tactics to fight savages in swamps and jungles.

In this issue appears an article from "Baltimore News," entitled "The Passing of the Organ," which is full of good, solid sense. The time cannot come soon when men will cease to let their opinions and principles be created for them by the "committee," and when political belief shall cease to be hereditary. Conditions are always changing. A man's political stand-point must be influenced by changed conditions. He would be wise indeed who could wisely outline his unchangeable policy for the next 10 years. Different conditions require different remedies. What the people want are facts, ungarbled by party prejudice.

In one of last week's dailies, we read these words: "Nearly every man in Clay county is armed and on horse-back, hastening to either one side or the other, carrying and going for news, and protecting one another's homes. Lights are flashing from house-top to house-top, and the coach horns are blowing signals from hill to hill, conveying information that cannot be read but by the clan for which the message is intended." The delightful state of affairs exists in the state of Kentucky and is the result of a "dead" battle which took place there the day before. One of the injured is designated thus: "He is an ex-member of the Kentucky legislature and has killed three or four men." Truly a man of eminence. Is Clay county civilized or is it barbarous? We have been led to believe that divorce of law and order and the sacredness of human life was a symptom of savagery rather than of civilization. Now, Kentucky is an old state, in fact the second state admitted to the Union after the federation. How has Kentucky missed the true path of progress, that such a condition can be not only possible, but so frequent as to excite little comment outside its immediate vicinity? Oregon is a much newer state than Kentucky. It has more lately been in contact with savagery. But how would we feel if some such state of affairs should exist in some county of Oregon? In Lake county, for instance, or Malheur. What is the matter with Kentucky? Has the spirit of her world-famous whiskey taken possession of her, or must the name of Kentucky always deserve its significance?

It is with a feeling of exasperation that the American people begin to appreciate the fact that they have not been fairly treated in this Philippine matter. It is understood of course, that press censorship may sometimes become a military necessity. But when it is for the purpose of deceiving the people at home in regard to the real state of the matter, there is no excuse for it, in such a country as America. Have we forgotten how we ridiculed the Spaniards, for sending lying messages home to Spain? On paper turning, crushing defeat into victory, until the truth could be withheld no longer, and then there was riot and blood shed at home. The American people have too much sense to riot over a little thing like that, but they want to know what is going on, and if things are not going right, they want to know the reason and act remedily. Not so very long ago, we were hearing of the ever victorious army, and of how the American boys were sweeping every thing before them. It was true but the trouble was that every thing would not stay swept. The Filipino fight is in a way most annoying to civilized troops. It must be intensely annoying to this, who is authority on tactics. If the Filipino would come out and fight right, he would not last a week, and perhaps he has sense enough to know it. He is not ashamed to run away, when he thinks he is whipped. He will fight again on the next corner. You can gain victories over him all day long with little effect. It is a sad matter that this ignorant, misguided little savage cannot understand what we want of him. It makes one heroic act to have to kill off so many of these imps, but what can we do? Some say withdraw and let them misgovern themselves to their heart's content, and gratify also their long cherished ambition of looting Manila. That would be easy but cowardly. No, we are responsible before the world for the future of these islands. We have taken hold of this matter and we can't let go. We must see it through.

"Vengeance demands a victim." In a case like that of the murder of Miss Fitch, as in the Durrant case and others, when the crime is so shocking and so horrible, public sentiment demands that the punishment of the guilty party be swift and sure. And that is right. No stone should be left unturned to discover the perpetrator and the penalty should be prompt and severe. But too often, in the haste to punish the crime, eagerness outruns sober judgment, and simply to arrest a man is to condemn him. In the case of Durrant, although there is little room for doubt as to his guilt, yet it cannot be denied that public sentiment convicted him long before the evidence was known. One murder will not right another. It behooves us all to be fair and impartial toward young McDaniel and to give due weight to all evidence bearing in his favor, as well as that which seems to implicate him in the crime. One thing that has been considered a condemning discrepancy in his story was his being told of the death of Miss Fitch before the body had been identified. But the boys who informed him have been found and they fully corroborate his story in that particular. At this time, and until further evidence is brought forward, the writer is strongly inclined to believe in the young man's innocence.

Later-McDaniel's story has been further corroborated, and shown to be true up to the time when he says he left the lady near her home. On the other hand, evidence has come forward which fully furnish a motive in going to Portland. His guilt is as far as ever from being established, yet public opinion is condemning him as usual without trial, and the great dailies are helping along that sentiment by speculative surmise, which is not evidence by any means. If he is the guilty party, no gallows is too high for him, but his guilt should be proven by substantial evidence, and not by hasty surmises.

Ingravel Dead. Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll, the famous apostle of agnosticism and one of America's most brilliant orators and jurists, died suddenly at his home at Dobbs Ferry on July 21. Heart disease is stated as the cause of his death. It came very suddenly. He had been feeling indisposed, and his wife had just suggested that his luncheon be sent up to him in his own room. He refused saying that he did not need to be waited on yet, settled back in his chair and died.

Edgerton-Paddock. Mr. Arthur Edgerton and Grace Paddock were united in matrimony at the home of the bride on Wednesday, July 19. The wedding was a very quiet one, the only guests present except the immediate families of the contracting parties being the officiating minister, Rev. Robt. Leslie and Mrs. Leslie and one friend, Judd Taylor.

The decorations were not elaborate but very tasteful and pretty, and in keeping with the quiet tone of the whole event. After the ceremony, refreshments of cake and cream were served and were enjoyed by the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton have been spending their honeymoon in camp on the banks of the river near Savage Rapids. On their return they will go immediately to housekeeping.

Mr. Edgerton is foreman in the box department of the S. P. D. & L. factory. He began at the bottom and has acquired his present position by diligence and capability. Mrs. Edgerton is a graduate of the Grant Pass academy of the class of '98. She is one of the brightest and most talented young ladies of our town. Both she and Mr. Edgerton are members of the Baptist church of this place, and are active and earnest workers.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgerton, while not old in years, are both old residents of this city and both have hosts of friends here, who both best wishes attend them. The Catholic joins with these friends in wishing these young people a long life of happiness and a bright future.

The New War Secretary. Elihu Root of New York has accepted the war portfolio to succeed Secretary Alger, who resigned. He is a prominent New York lawyer but whether or not he knows anything about war, remains to be seen.

Shafter at Chautauqua. Major-General Shafter told the story of the Santiago campaign at the Chautauqua last Friday. The general is described as being immensely large, a "huge mountain of flesh" with a small voice totally out of proportion with his anatomy. He is not a ready speaker, and makes no pretensions to oratory, speaking with hesitation and seeming embarrassment. Yet his speech is brim full of interest, plain and straightforward like the man himself.

On Every Bottle Of Shiloh's Consumption Cure is this guarantee: "All we ask of you is to use two-thirds of the contents of this bottle faithfully, then if you can say you are not benefited return the bottle to your druggist and we may refund the price paid." Price 25 cts., 50 cts. and $1.—W. F. Krenner.

Cavalry Horses Wanted. Wm. Kriecheidt, inspector under Col. Wallace Randolph, of the Third United States Artillery, was in Ashland Saturday looking for horses for cavalry service. Sixty-one are needed, which are to be shipped to Manila for use in the Fourth Cavalry, stationed at that place.

Found. A pair of spectacles in case, near the residence of H. C. Peckins. Call at this office for further information.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER. ABSOLUTELY PURE. Makes the food more delicious and wholesome.

Coring Home in a Body.

A letter received last Monday from Major Percy Willis of the Second Oregon volunteers, now at the Presidio, by Eugene Willis of Salem, says the regiment will be mustered out August 7, and will reach Portland August 10.

"The regiment," the letter says, "will stop and parade at Astoria, Roseburg, Eugene, Albany and Salem and then finally at Portland."

It is stated that the regiment will come home in a body.

Murder of Miss Clara Fitch. Last Friday the news came over the wires that Miss Clara Fitch had been found murdered in Cyster Park in Portland. Her body was found early Friday morning, by a man named George Arnold, who was hunting for some cows in the park. She was last seen in company with a young man named Frank McDaniel, who has been arrested for the crime.

Miss Fitch was the daughter of Engineer Fitch who runs over this road, and the niece of Mrs. P. McCarthy, formerly of this place. She lived here at one time and had a good many friends here, who were surprised and shocked at the manner of her death.

Church Notice. Rev. G. W. Black will preach at the M. E. church South next Sunday at 11 a. m. All are cordially invited.

Ball Game Friday. The "Kid" nine of Grants Pass will cross bats with the Medford "Kid" nine at the ball grounds on Friday next. The line-up for Grants Pass will be as follows: Welch, pitcher; Harvey, catcher; McKenney, short-stop; McCroskey, first base; Galvin, second base; Smith, third base; Mitchell, left, Colvin, center and Hackett, right field. The boys have been practicing for the event and expect to put up a strong game. Seats in the grand stand, 10 cents.

Some Valuable Specimens. C. L. Mangum brought in some specimens of quartz the other day, which are absolutely startling in their richness, being filled with gold in all shapes, chunks, seams, flakes, and particles. One piece assays $200,000 to the ton. Another not so good, gives $61,150. The ledge is about two feet wide, and the specimens were taken at a depth of about 105 feet. This new found Eldorado is in Josephine county. What is the use of going to Klondyke, when such fortunes as this are waiting discovery here at home.

The Young Ladies' Club of this city will meet at the home of Miss Vida Moore Tuesday, Aug. 1, at 2:30. All young ladies invited.

Expensive. A young man leaning against one of the large sashes in Fitch's front window one day last week leaned just a little too hard. Result, a shattered glass and a $12 bill.

Choral Union. A meeting of the executive committee of the Eugene River Valley Choral Union was held Saturday in Ashland. Mr. E. D. Briggs was elected president succeeding E. E. Washburn, who resigned.

A committee was appointed to provide for an orchestra for the midwinter convention of the Y. W. C. A. of Ashland, Miss Hubbard of Medford and Prof. J. M. Horton of Jacksonville were named. The convention will be held this year in Ashland. The several unions are expected to organize for work in September.

Good Wages at Happy Camp. J. W. Brown says he can see no reason for people to grow in this country, as he is 70 years old and is getting $1 a day in Happy Camp. He says common laborers are getting $2.50 per day there.

Happy Camp is on the Klamath river, and is about 30 miles from Walds, by trail. All of Happy Camp's supplies must be hauled by mule train, and this makes the cost of living there somewhat expensive. It is an old mining camp and has been lively times in the old mining days. Activity has been renewed there considerably in the last few years.

The New Schoolhouse. The board of directors of this district have advertised for bids for the construction of a three room wooden ward schoolhouse to be completed by September 9.

At a school meeting held long ago in the city hall, long being present, the motion was made and carried that the board be instructed to select a site, and prepare plans for a four room ward school house, material not specified in the motion. These plans were to have been prepared and presented to the people at a school meeting which was to have been called later, for the purpose of voting the bonds to raise the necessary funds.

However, as there is expected to be funds enough forthcoming for the erection of this building, without issuing bonds, it is probable that the board will proceed with the construction of the schoolhouse, without calling another school meeting.

We learn that our Wolf creek correspondent has taken up her abode at Tunnel 9. Perhaps we will hear from her in the near future. She is a good local news writer.

We are very sorry to hear of Dr. Meyers leaving Grants Pass. He is a good physician and a very charitable man. He would attend a patient whether he received his pay or not, and he was reasonable in his charges.

J. H. Robinson has been quite sick during the past week; an attack of malaria is the cause. Blackberries are getting ripe. There will be an abundant crop.

Mrs. W. H. H. Taylor seems to be improving a little although the cancer on her face is still enlarging some. People are complaining generally of attacks of malaria in our vicinity and adjoining neighborhoods.

R. M. Robinson has about 75 acres of small grain to cut this season except harvesting progressing nicely, excepting a little difficulty with his binder. He expects to finish by the middle of this week.

Mr. Jess is cutting a fine piece of fall sown grain. Mr. Jess reports it as very good. All the grain sown in the fall is much better than that sown in the spring.

Mr. W. H. H. Taylor is getting considerable wood cut this season. This gentleman generally keeps on hand a nice lot of dry oak and fir stove wood for market.

Rev. J. Sams and family narrowly escaped being burned out early Thursday morning of last week. The family had retired for the night as usual. About 1 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Sams were suddenly awakened by a loud noise occasioned by the falling of some heavy objects.

At the same time two little girls, who were sleeping in an adjoining apartment, were frightened by the noise and the light of the fire and ran screaming out of the room. No time was lost in investigating the cause of the disturbance and it was found that the kitchen floor was on fire and burning briskly. The fire had started from a pan of ashes that had been taken up early in the evening, and placed under the stove. The noise had been caused by the falling of the stove and articles into the cavity and by the fire. Had it not been for this timely warning the house and its contents would, no doubt, have been destroyed. As it was, however, the fire was quickly extinguished before any serious damage was done. A hole in the floor about a yard square and some badly frightened people were all the casualties.

He was married at Grants Pass, Ore., Oct. 10, 1898, and returned to Mill Creek to resume his labor but in November had the misfortune to have his leg broken while at work on a dam, and again in April had his leg broken by a ranch horse breaking and striking him. Being unable to work, he came back to Merin, where he worked for the S. P. D. & L. Co. through the winter season. Moving his wife and baby to Grants Pass he went to Igerna, Cal., where he worked till December. Then he returned home, where an offer from the Burns-Kelly Lumber Co. was made.

waiting him. With his family he moved to Saguin where they lived till last April when he returned and soon after went to Eugene where he obtained employment with Mr. A. Weed again. His wife soon joined him and they resided there till his death, which was a terrible shock.

He left the house after dinner, so cheerful and in good spirits and 40 minutes later was carried out of the mill with head and face mangled almost beyond recognition. He has been caught by a belt and thrown against a pulley and a piece of timber. After 22 hours of unconsciousness and terrible agony he passed away. His body was brought to Grants Pass where kind friends had tastefully decorated the home of his widow's parents for the sad occasion.

Mr. Fulmer was an energetic, honest man, kind to all, and very devoted to his wife and little girl, who mourn his untimely death, yet are comforted with the knowledge that never a harsh word or an impatient look ever marked the sympathies of their married life. The sympathy of the entire community is with the bereaved. He was laid to rest in Granite Hill cemetery July 17. The same minister that married them was in charge of the funeral. And several of the former wedding guests being present, all constrained to make the occasion more pathetic. Truly in the midst of life we are in death. A FRIEND.
