Miss Estella Robinson had the misfortune to cut her foot quite badly one day last week. The young lady had come on horseback to visit some friends and when returning was obliged to dismount in order to open a gate, and while attempting to mount her horse again, the horse started and her foot was caught between the horse and fence, inflicting quite a severe wound.

W. D. Paddock of the second hand store says that a good many people have acquired the idea that the second hand man will pay them scarcely anything for the goods of which they have to dispose. Therefore, those who have goods to sell, often dispose of those of value first, and take the remainder, old worn-out and unsalable goods, to the second hand man, and receive next to nothing for them, because they have next to no value. He suggests that if they would bring the good articles to him, that they would receive a fair price for them, and in almost all cases they could be more advantageously disposed of to him than in any other way, for the plain and simple reason that when people have to sell in a hurry they have to sell at a sacrifice because they are unable always to find those who want the particular thing they have to sell. The second hand man is prepared to keep an article until he does find a buyer. He is a medium of equilibrium and a necessary factor.

E. E. Redfield, Joe Redfield, Roy Bartlett, Henry Harth, L. L. Jennings, Ed Gray and Ed Tynan returned Sunday from Battle creek. Their success was not very elating, the deer having evidently been informed of their approach, and absented themselves from the vicinity. They got what few were left, however. Little Joe Redfield killed one himself.

Will Taylor, who has been taking an extended trip in the northern part of the state and in Washington, returned Wednesday morning. He has been as far as Walla Walla, and in returning, came on his wheel from Portland to Glendale, where he broke down, and had to finish his journey by rail. He reports plenty of work all along the line. He worked a short time in the Booth-Kelley mill at Saganin, but wisely concluded that he could do as well at home. He will remain here indefinitely.

We inadvertently failed to mention last week that Miss Edna Steward, sister of Mrs. C. S. Price, arrived from St. Louis, to spend the summer in Grants Pass. Miss Steward was on the excursion train from St. Louis that was wrecked in Southern California. There were two persons killed outright on the train and a number badly injured, but Miss Steward was not hurt in the least as she was three or four cars back from the one badly wrecked.

Who Wants One? An up-to-date, excellent Corset, which positively will not break down on the sides—selling for $1 at the RED STAR STORE.

An Adventure. Some Grants Pass ladies who are camping at Bybee Springs experienced quite an adventure last Friday evening. They had gone to a ranch up on the mountain somewhere for the purpose of securing some butter to somewhat alleviate the privations of camp life. On returning they were advised to take another and easier route than the one by which they had come. They did so with the result that when they should have reached camp there was no camp appearing. As it was growing late, and darkness coming on apace, they quickened their steps and the later it grew, the faster they walked, and the rougher grew the country. At last, after an interminable time, they saw a light, and going nearer, found a house where they elicited the information that they were 10 miles from Bybee Springs. They succeeded in getting a team to bring them home, arriving there at a scandalous hour, and finding almost the whole camp out hunting for them. One of the ladies was almost completely exhausted by the experience.

Sad to say they left the butter on the mountain and came home without it.

Notice to Dog-owners. The law providing for a dog tax in this city will hereafter be enforced. The tax is $1 for a male, and $3 for a female dog, per year. Parties paying their tax receive a tag, which is supposed to be forthwith attached in some way to the canine in question. What becomes of tagless dogs, is a matter too dire for speculation.
