Entered at the post office at Grants Pass, Oregon, as second-class mail matter.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1900.

If we want to see Grants Pass get the recognition she deserves we should combine among ourselves to push our mining interests to the front, with headquarters in this city.

Grants Pass would be greatly benefited if we had a good live commercial organization which would collect data about the resources of Josephine county and publish them. Our mines need development and such an organization could greatly assist our struggling prospectors to get a recognition of the merits of their properties.

King Humbert of Italy was assassinated at Monza, Italy, on Sunday evening by a man named Angelo Bressi, who was immediately arrested. The assassin avowed his guilt. The king had been attending a distribution of prizes in connection with a gymnastic exhibition and had just entered his carriage to return home when three shots were fired in quick succession, one of them piercing his heart.

The hardwoods of Southern Oregon are beginning to attract some attention. The "Oregon Timberman," who has been investigating the subject says: "Along the line of the Southern Pacific, in Douglas, Josephine and Jackson counties, it is estimated there are two billion feet of oak. The hardwoods of Oregon have been investigated comparatively little, and it is only in rare cases parties have taken the trouble to even make a report while cruising the land on which hardwoods are found."

Late reports from the Transvaal gave the news that a Boer army of 5000 has surrendered to the British general Hunter. The big war cloud in China has almost obscured the Transvaal storm from the public gaze as the Chinese affair is an infinitely greater sensation. The Boers have been holding out stubbornly and have been giving Roberts and his generals plenty of occupation, sometimes inflicting on the British what seemed to be severe reverses. If this report is true, however, it probably means that the Boer resistance is nearing its end.

The Chinese situation still remains a Chinese puzzle. Little reliable news comes from the interior, though Russia, Germany, Japan and Italy have messages from their legations in Pekin, saying that the Chinese attack ceased on July 16 but might begin again at any time, though the numbers of the enemy seemed to be decreasing. Reports of riot and massacre outside of Pekin are frequent and Shanghai is threatened by the lawless element. It is very likely that the whole affair may burn itself out before the powers are prepared to take action and the long prophesied partition of China may not take place now nor for some time hereafter.

Good roads are among the pressing necessities of this county. Roads are promoters of active business circulation and industrial activity. Public money judiciously invested in roads gives bountiful returns, but the work should be properly done. Instances of utter lack of judgement in road making are quite numerous in southern Oregon. It is no uncommon thing to see a grade cut on a level along a hill side for some distance and then, with a ridiculously steep up grade, surmount some acclivity, when a uniform grade, reaching the desired height on an easy slope could just as easily have been constructed. Such instances as this are not scarce in this county and these very things retard development, for the only to way correct the evil is to make a new road and it is very seldom on the program to build a new road while the old one is at all passable. Grants Pass receives considerable trade from the Evans creek district. It could double the business with that section by the reconstruction of about three miles of the road between here and Woodville. There are a few hills on that road which are ridiculous in their unnecessary steepness. In each case there is plenty of room, so that an easy grade would have been just as feasible as the present precipitous route. The whole plan and system of the so called road needs a thorough overhauling and change throughout in the vicinity of Dry Diggings and Bloody Run. The river route from Bloody Run to Grants Pass is the only sensible way.

State Fair.

Unless all signs are deceptive, the state fair will this year approach nearer the accomplishment of a comprehensive exhibit of all the industries of Oregon than has been attained in any previous year, and consequently will be of more value both to the visitors and to the exhibitors. The directors are making earnest efforts to bring about such a result, and the prospects are their work will be crowned with success.

It is desirable that every county in the state should have a good exhibit. The people of all the counties are taxed to provide the appropriation for the fair, and therefore all of them should take advantage of it to make their resources and their industries known throughout the commonwealth. Certainly they will have only themselves to blame if they do not, for a special appeal has been made to them to profit by the exceptional advantages provided for such exhibits this year.

Doings on Galice.

One of the most lively episodes in the late history of Galice occured Monday at the post office, when J. B. Harvey's four mule team with a heavily loaded wagon of blankets and outfits of about a dozen men who are engaged to work on the A and B mine for the new company came in. Lively interest is being centered in Galice properties outside of the preparations for monstrous operations contemplated by Mr. Harvey and his associates; and the daily stage brings in new comers each trip.

L. G. Longfellow is visiting Dan Green and looking for desirable investment in our section.

Eugene S. Merrill and Frank Crow have a cool snap at the Yank ledge this hot weather "Jene" nearly had a chill from which there is no recovery the other day. He was running ahead of his timbers about 15 ft. when happening to go out to the light to examine a piece of quartz several tons of rock caved in. Mr. Crow working in another tunnel heard the crash and rushing in was sure his partner was underneath and a dead man. Hurrying out for assistance he was surprised to find the "corpse" unconcernedly mentally assaying his quartz.

The hot weather and wind has completely dried up the water supply for placers whose owners are contentedly sawing up wood for winter, repairing ditches and getting ready for a more prosperous season than the last one.

J. J. Giddings and W. A. Watts of the right hand fork are away on a prospecting trip in the Illinois river country. Mr. Patterson and Frank Fox are working a small bar with good results which is about all the mining going on up the creek these days. Mr. Patterson, late of Alaska enjoys these hot days.

Mrs. A. B. Cousin and her sister Miss Florence Champlain who has been visiting with her for the past six weeks leave for Portland on Wednesday. Mr. Cousin is building a reservoir and can not leave at present.

Our Chinese friend Toy has a son at San Francisco detained there for lack of proof that his parent is a merchant and he has been in a great stew about getting him ashore and to Galice.

Cigarettes Killed a Boy.

Excessive cigarette smoking is given as the direct cause of the untimely death of Alonzo Perry, of Shelbyville, Ind., a 14 year-old boy, who dropped dead on the street there. Young Perry was walking along one of the principle thoroughfares of the city when he suddenly reeled over and, with a look of intense agony on his countenance, toppled to the sidewalk, a corpse. The young boy was an excessive cigarette smoker and the doctors assign this as the cause of his death. They say the poison caused his heart to become weak.

Attractive Summer Resort.

The hotel at Colestin, the popular summer resort, is in charge this summer of H. C. Telford, formerly of Grants Pass. Colestin is located in the heart of the Siskiyou mountains and is one of the most pleasant and attractive localities on the coast in which to spend the hot months of summer. Superior accommodations may be secured at very reasonable rates at the hotel, or very desirable camping privileges may be secured.

The Colestin mineral springs are famed for their health restoring qualities and this fact, in addition to other pleasure-giving attractions of this resort, beautiful scenery, pure water and invigorating air, makes Colestin the camper's ideal.

Mr. Telford is also bottling the Colestin water to supply the valley towns. Those who are unable to visit Colestin in person will thus be enabled to enjoy at least a part of its pleasures at very moderate expense.

Mining Notes.

Another dredging plant is to be constructed near Waldo.

Extensive copper locations have recently been made in the vicinity of Elder butte in the Waldo district, by Captain Draper and others.

It is reported that Thos. and Z. Cameron have sold their interest in the Simmons—Cameron mine to J. T. Logan who has been connected with the mine for some time.

W. and J. B. Hawthorne, of Tacoma arrived in Grants last of the week to visit the Rising Star mine on Williams creek, in which property they have an interest.

The half interest in the Hutchins quartz property at Galice recently purchased by L. L. Jewell and Dr. Moore from Henry Hutchins has been sold for $3000 cash to Willis Kramer of Myrtle Point, who is now sole owner of the mine, which is a very promising property.

The May Queen mine still keeps up its lively sale on the Portland stock exchange. With Helena and Helena No. 2, Bohemia, the May Queen led the market in the number of shares traded in. The weekly report of Wagy, Hengen and Wagy says: "The continued reports of rich strikes in Bohemia and around Grants Pass sent in almost daily by the representatives of the local daily papers stationed throughout these sections, have without doubt been the primary cause for the demand for shares in companies whose properties are located in either of the above named districts. If the present increase in demand continues, we look for considerable higher prices in the shares of all companies whose property possess real merit."

The Oregon Bonanza, one of the most promising quartz propositions of the Williams district, will be opened up in proper shape for successful operation. W. K. and Wm. R. Rogers owners, arrived here last week from San Francisco to visit their property and will soon begin extensive development work.

Corliss and Rush seem to have discovered a bonanza in the "Double Eagle" situated near the old Lucky Queen mine. The richness is in a seam of decomposed matter with quartz on each side. The seam is from one to two inches wide at the point of discovery, but widens as it goes down. The seam yields at the rate of $10 to $15 to the pan. Quartz is also good, carrying about $50 to the ton in gold. The Lucky Queen section is one of considerable richness and quite a number of promising mines are located in that vicinity.

Washington Letter.

(From Our Regular Correspondent).

WASHINGTON, July 23, 1900.

"Americans, Japanese and Chinese fighting side by side against Europeans, for the maintenance of the Chinese empire, is one of the possibilities of the near future in China," remarked an European member of the diplomatic corps. That is probably an extreme view, but it is certain that the European powers, whatever may be their professions, wish to divide China among themselves, while the United States and Japan would prefer that the Chinese empire remain as it is.

The situation in China at this time so far as we know, is largely a matter of opinion. Officials believe that the message received from Minister Conger, saying that himself and other foreign ministers in Pekin, were safe, although much in need of assistance, was genuine, while nearly everybody else regards it with suspicion and not a few as being a bit of Chinese trickery. The one bit of absolute fact in sight is the disappointing cablegram from Admiral Remey, saying that the allied forces would not begin the march to Pekin before the middle of August, owing to lack of harmony among the allies. General Chaffee will probably arrive at Taku early next week, but he can do little without the assistance of others, as he will have less than four thousand men.

Americans do not monopolize important industrial discoveries and inventions. The United States consul general to Germany, in a report to the department of state, briefly describes a new and successful method of welding cast iron pipes, tramway rails, etc., which is both cheap and simple. The process is thus described in the report: "Briefly stated, it consists in mixing powdered aluminium with oxide of iron and adding to it an easily ignitable substance. This powder is put into a clay crucible and ignited by a match. The resulting chemical action renders the mixture liquid, and this liquid is then poured around the place to be welded, the object assumes a white heat and the welding is done by a very simple apparatus. The welded places show the same firmness as the original piece, and manifold application of the method is possible.

When present plans of the navy department are carried out, there will be about 4,000 marines in China to act in concert with the army forces. This will not only be the largest force of American marines ever on foreign soil at once, but will be the largest force of American marines ever assembled at any one place. The full authorized strength of the marine corps is 6,000 and special efforts are now being made to recruit up to the limit.

Mr. C. Tower, United States ambassador to Russia, who is unfortunate enough to be away from his important post at this particular time, on vacation, arrived in Washington a day or two ago. He left St. Petersburg before the Chinese trouble had resulted in the attacking of the foreign ministers in Pekin. He doubts the stories of Russia's intention to declare war on China and go it alone, and believes that the powers will act together. He thinks that this government will necessarily be a sort of umpire in all disputed questions that may arise among the allies or between the allies and the Chinese government, because it is the only government which possesses the unreserved confidence of all the others, and which is regarded by all as being absolutely without selfish motives in its policy towards China. Mr. Tower said of the Trans Siberian railway, which the Russian Government will complete in two years: "Americans will profit much by the commercial field it will open to them, although Vladivostock is to be the real end of the road, another terminus will touch Dalney on the Gulf of Pe-chi-li, near Port Arthur. That will be a free port, and a stretch of territory around it is to be set apart for the use of manufacturers desiring a base for manufacturing the products imported there from the rest of the world. That means a great opening for American materials." The official announcement that this government will get out of Cuba just as soon as the Cubans set up a stable government of their own and that the election for delegates to the Cuban constitutional convention, which will construct the framework of that government will be held in September, seems to effectually dispose of all the stories about this government encouraging the annexation movement. That annexation will eventually come is the opinion of many of those who have deeply studied the matter, but it now looks as though it would not be until after the Cubans had full opportunity to go it alone long enough to determine for themselves.

If Mr. W. W. Rockhill, who has been given a diplomatic commission as special envoy, ranking something like an ambassador, and ordered to proceed to China at the earliest possible moment, can't get information in China, which is what he is to go after, probably no outsider can. He is one of the few white men who can speak and write the Chinese language thoroughly.

"I was suffering with what the doctor called chronic indigestion, torpid liver and vertigo," says Mrs. Martha E. Barham, of Newville, Prince George Co., Va. "My symptoms were giddiness in the head, pains in my chest and an uneasy feeling all over. I also had female weakness. I was all run down, and could not do any work without suffering from nervous attacks, so I wrote to you. You advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription.' I used five bottles of each. I gained in health and strength. When I commenced to use the medicines I weighed only 112 pounds, now I weigh 140. My husband and friends all thought that I would die, but to-day I am a well woman."

Mrs. Barham's experience is not singular. Thousands have given similarly strong and convincing testimony. There are no other medicines in the world that have such a long and continuous record of cures.

There are no other medicines "just as good" or "just the same" as Doctor Pierce's. Like all valuable things these medicines are sometimes imitated. Don't be imposed upon. See that you get what you ask for.

If you have any doubt as to the nature of your ailment write fully, giving your symptoms, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. He will consider your case carefully, and will tell you, absolutely free of charge, what to do to get well.

BURIAL INNOVATION.

Some Up-to-Date Women in France Have Pall-Bearers of Their Own Sex.

The women of Avesnes-lez-Aubert, a little hamlet that lies white under the blue skies of northern France, indifferent to the events of this life, insist with an energy that has drawn the attention of all France on arranging to suit themselves the ceremony of their going hence. They have decided that from now on, they shall be carried to their burial no longer by men, but by women. In pursuance of this decision, they recently opposed the burial of one of their number by ordinary routine, and asked that it should be done as they desired. This was not so easy. France is a land where all the men are functionaries, and where each believes that if he is ousted the wheels of the universe will stop. The men then insisted; the women were firm; the police intervened. Hence scandal. The battle remained with the women, and they will have their own way in the future, for they have decided that henceforth their written testament shall express in the matter their formal desire.

This little episode has nothing to do with women's rights as officially understood. The women of Avesnes-lez-Aubert probably never heard of feminism. It is not an innovation, but a matter of sentiment and a return to the past. There is an old tradition in the country that the women shall bury the women. The men have invaded, usurped and raised into a public function a pious duty that formerly belonged to the women, and which the women wish to resume. And those who have seen it say there is no more touching spectacle than this of a woman carrying their own to the tomb. Among the winding paths of pasture land the white coffin of some young girl is borne by those of her own age, while the pines and the winds make melancholy music in their ears, and the horizon seems to widen and stretch away to infinity. And the wheels of the universe continue to turn as if there had never been any functionaries in the world.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SMOKELESS POWDER.

The Firing Said to Be Extremely Terrifying to Both Men and Horses.

In the British army the four-legged recruits are drawn up in a ring round an instructor, who fires a pistol. Some take the flash and report very quietly and these are soon passed on to severer trials, while the others have lesson after lesson until they are quite convinced that there is no danger to them and before long you might fire a seven-pounder within a yard of them and they would hardly look around. After this they are taught to face fire—that is to say, to gallop fearlessly up to a line or square of infantry, blazing away with their rifles, and to charge batteries of quick-firing guns. Of course, only blank cartridges are used, and so to a trained horse going into battle for the first time there is no difference between the harmless thunder of the maneuvers and the death-dealing storm which sweeps over the battlefield. The poor brute only learns what the difference really is by bitter experience.

When smokeless powder came into general use it was found that in many cases horses which would face the smoke of guns using black powder without flinching flinched and shied at the flash and roar unaccompanied by smoke. Continental opinion is somewhat divided as to the moral effect of smokeless powder on men and horses, but the general conclusion seems to be that in daylight it is not more terrifying than black powder, although some hold that to see men and horses struck down by an invisible agency must necessarily be so. But it is generally agreed that the use of smokeless powder at night has a much more disturbing effect than that of the old powder, because the flashes of the guns, unobscured by smoke, are a great deal more vivid. The fear thus inspired can, however, be overcome by training, but there is another fear which must, in the nature of the case, be felt for the first time on the battlefield, and that is the often uncontrollable terror produced both in men and horses by the whistling of bullets and the screaming and banging of shells. Some authorities have, indeed, said that since the introduction of smokeless powder and the great increase in the range and accuracy of weapons, it would be impossible to keep cavalry in hand under the fire of modern artillery, but this is probably an exaggeration.—Pearson's Magazine.
