

MILITIA IN ALASKA.

Conditions Not Wholly Bad Notwithstanding Extreme Cold.

Some Particulars of a Soldier's Life Given by One Who Has Lived in the Yukon Country.

The government having at last expended considerable sums of money toward establishing military posts in Alaska, it is reasonable to suppose that the army must in the future look forward to regular details of service in that part of our country. As service in high latitudes is now to most of us, and as the hardships of Arctic life have been so much exaggerated, says a writer in the Army and Navy Journal, I shall presume to give my fellow-officers the benefit of a year's experience on the Yukon, with the expectation that it may be of use to them.

It certainly does get cold in Alaska. The thermometer for five consecutive days in January registered 63, 62, 63, 62, and 40 below in quite common, and cold weather lasts from November 1 to March 31. Substantially, however, have been so restricted at Fort Egbert, Gibbon and Cape Nome, and the post at St. Michael will be built during the coming summer.

An officer coming to Alaska need fear no greater hardships for himself and family than those which attend the isolation of a one or two company frontier post. A well-stocked subsistence department furnishes all the necessities of life, and most of the luxuries. Fresh meat has thus far been brought in abundance in the form of moose and caribou. Potatoes and onions freeze solid in November, and, if properly prepared, are as good as fresh vegetables until they thaw in the spring. All the early vegetables like radishes, lettuce, onions, parsley, etc., come to perfection in August. It is dry, and ordinarily still, though a hard wind at intervals is not unknown. The snow falls gradually, an inch or so at a time—and never melts until the April sun and rain wear it away. In May the ground is free from snow, rills continue, gardens may be prepared, and about the 15th the ice in the river breaks up and drifts off to the sea. Near the end of May steamers that have wintered in some tributary of the Yukon come up the river to their winter quarters. Steamers from St. Michael, bringing passengers from the states, do not come up the river until about July 1 to 15.

From June to October a goodly number of people come to Alaska to require about the same clothing they would wear in the states. Mosquitoes abound, and window screens and mosquito bars are a necessity. Mail is received twice per month throughout the year, except in fall and spring when it is furnished in November, or breaking up before navigation opens. Unless new arrangements are perfected, second-class mail is not delivered after navigation via St. Michael closes. Arrangements must be made with friends to forward envelopes of clippings if one desires to keep up with the news. A telegraph line connects Skagway with Dawson, but I received one telegram from Washington that was just a month on the way.

As to clothing, heavy underwear is indispensable. In addition to those garments, heavy short coats or wraps must be provided to put on whenever it is necessary to go out of doors. The government furnishes caps and mittens and most excellent footwear in the form of felt shoes. Ladies will find a fur park the best all-around outer garment. One can be purchased in San Francisco for $12. The felt shoes cannot be improved upon. It is not necessary to remain within doors during the coldest weather, unless the wind is blowing. The ordinary routine of a post goes on without regard to temperature, and all can take exercise at any time without fear of frost bites. Being plenty of books and games for the long winter evenings. As the quartermaster's department will doubtless construct this as service across the seas, bring all your furniture. Nothing can be obtained in the country except at prohibitory prices.

To sum up, I would say that Alaska is no worse than Keogh or Assiniboine, and the greatest trial will be the lack of a daily paper.

SHE WAS NOT A LAWYER.

Declined to Answer a Question and Gave Her Reason Why.

"Now," said the lawyer, was conducting the cross-examination, "will you please state how and where you first met this man?"

"I think," said the lady with the sharp nose, "that it was—"

"Never mind what you think," interrupted the lawyer. "We want facts here. We don't care what you think, and we haven't any time to waste in listening to what you think. Now, please tell us where and when it was that you first met this man?"

The witness made no reply, says the Cleveland Leader.

"Come, come," urged the lawyer, "I demand an answer to my question."

"Still no response from the witness."

"Your honor," said the lawyer, turning to the court, "I think I am entitled to an answer to the question I have put."

"The witness will please answer the question," said the court, in impressive tones.

"Can't," said the lady.

"Why not?"

"The court doesn't care to hear what I think, does it?"

"No."

"Then there's no use questioning me any further. I am not a lawyer, I can't talk without thinking."

So they called the next witness.

ONE-LEGGED BALL PLAYER.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Runs Base Without the Aid of His Right Leg.

Members of the Kenwood Country club have a mascot in Willie Howard, the one-legged baseball player, says a Chicago paper. The little fellow, eight years of age, is considered one of the most expert amateur ball players on the south side. He manages to run the bases on one leg. Of late the young man has frequently been asked to appear on the tennis grounds. It is said that whatever side he champions is sure to be victorious in the tennis contests. Any fine afternoon when there is a tennis game in progress Willie Howard is very conspicuous. He is regarded by some of the best tennis experts as the forerunner of good luck. One day late Willie was in great demand. It is said his services were bid for long before the champion tennis contests began at the Kenwood Country club.

Little Willie, as he is familiarly called by his many friends, takes a prominent part in baseball games when there are no regular games in progress. He is said to be the equal of anyone on the Kenwood grounds. Of late the young fellow has discarded his habit of running the bases with a crutch in hand. It is said that Willie believes it undignified to run the bases in his former way. The result is the youthful ball player now covers the bases in a hop, skip and jump fashion.

BROKE THE NEWS SUDDENLY.

Content Episode in the Meeting of Long-Separated Brothers in England.

A curious little story reached us the other day from the lips of an officer invalided home from South Africa, says the Liverpool Post. The eldest son of a well-known duke had a younger brother in London, and was naturally anxious and eager for his safety. He himself was serving with the forces of Gen. Buller and was through all the long and arduous campaign which preceded the relief of that place. When it became known that the road was at last open, the young nobleman was sent forward with the first force to enter the town. He soon found his brother, whom his eyes had been yearning to see for so many long and weary months. "Hallo, Jack!" he shouted, and then, in his excitement and pleasure, for the life of his brother, he thought of what to say next. At last he blurted out with: "Old Tom, the gardener, is dead." An anti-climax which, in spite of the apparently mournful character of the news, caused both the brothers to roar with laughter. Such was the first item of home news which the younger one heard after a sickening period of anxious waiting.

LASTING QUALITIES.

Trait of the Chinese Which Would Accomplish Much if Turned to Good.

The Chinese have many traits which, if properly developed, would cause them to assume a leading place among the nations of the globe. They are industrious, hospitable, frugal and hard working. They are strong and wiry. They have lasting qualities. The Chinese can live anywhere, eat anything and be like anything. They outwear the tribes of southern Asia, are more conservative than the Japanese and less peevish than the Hindus. They are good and much common sense. Their religions and superstitions enter into everything, even their cheating and lying. Gambling is the national sin. The little children on the streets throw dice for the candy with the salesman. The missionary from the Occident, outnumbered by the opium vendor and the whisky peddler, has been unable to keep the vice of the west from being introduced along with the virtues, and after five centuries of contact, the Caucasian has done the Mongolian more harm than good.

ONE OF CHINA'S SUPERSTITIONS.

Black dogs and black cats are the favorites in China in the line of food because when eaten in midsummer they will insure health and strength.

JUST SAVED HIS LIFE.

It was a thrilling escape that Charles Davis of Bowdoin, O., lately had from a frightful death. For two years a severe lung trouble constantly grew worse until it seemed he must die of consumption. Then he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and lately wrote: "It gave instant relief and effected a permanent cure. Such wonderful cures have for 25 years proven its power to cure all Croup, Croup and Lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at Dr. King's drug store."

Sailor is Killed by a Devil Fish While Swimming Near His Ship.

John De Her, a sailor on the bark Olympic, was dragged down by a devil fish while taking a swim near his ship. His shipmates saw him dive, and went to his rescue, but he was unable to get to the surface. He was found floating in the water, and was taken to the hospital, where he died. The cause of his death was a wound inflicted by the tentacles of a devil fish. It is supposed that he was pulled down and held by the tentacles of the fish, and was unable to get to the surface. The fish was found near the ship, and was killed. The body of the sailor was found, and was taken to the hospital, where he died.
