The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop.
The Tetong Indian Reservation is the scene of Mr. Hamlin Garland's new novel of Western life, which he calls "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop." Mr.
Garland's hero is a young army officer who has been detached from his regiment and sent to relieve a dishonest Indian agent. The resourceful captain's guardianship of an Indian tribe beset by starvation and driven to desperation by cattlemen and politicians is full of drama and adventure. The daughter of a United States Senator, a land grabber of the worst sort and the captain's sworn enemy, is Mr. Garland's heroine. The story is a powerful and vivid picture of reservation life, glowing with color and fairly alive with action.
The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop will appear serially in The Saturday Evening Post, of Philadelphia, the opening installment being scheduled for the issue of December 14. The story has been illustrated with spirited pictures by Messrs. Frederic Remington and Jay Hambidge.

Footpads appear to be numerous in San Francisco at present, as many robberies have been reported to the police.
Alexander Boyd, a San Francisco millionaire, was declared by Judge Coffey incompetent to manage his business affairs, and his wife was appointed his guardian. He is upward of 80 years of age.

Robert Thora, alias Lisholm, posing as a son of the lost prophet of Glasgow, Scotland, was arrested at Portland, Or., charged with passing forged checks.
The police have been looking for him since last May.
James Young, a miner, while in a drunken condition, wandered into the engine-room of No. 1 pit at Nanaimo, B. C., and turned off the steam from the engine which drives the big fan supplying air to all parts of the mine, in which 400 men were at work. The engineer fortunately came along a moment later, and, noticing the trouble, turned on the steam. Had the fan remained stationary but a few minutes the air in the mine would have become so bad that the miners would have been suffocated within a short time. Young was arrested.
The sum of $50,000, says a Redding (Cal.) dispatch, will be spent by the French-Glean Lumber company in draining the great Blitzen swamp in Oregon. A ditch, 60 feet wide by 9 feet deep, will be dug, and it will follow the course of the Blitzen river for 30 miles and empty into Malheur lake. The swamp, which is in Harney county, is 25 miles long by five to seven miles broad, and when drained it is estimated 60,000 acres of land in Malheur county, Oregon, will be available. The company has 75,000 head of cattle, besides many horses. The swamp, ornithologists say, contains more ducks, geese, swans and pelicans than any other spot of like area on the globe.

Miss Mary Arnold of Sacramento, while staying at an apartment house in Butte, Mont., was awakened at 2 o'clock in the morning by the light from a ball-eering lantern in the hands of a burglar.
He was helping himself to her jewels and valuables, and she also noted that he had taken her revolver. Miss Arnold sprang from her bed, leaped upon the astonished burglar and wound her arms about his neck in a strangling embrace.
She then shouted for help, and the occupants of other rooms came to her aid, and held the burglar until the arrival of the police. At the station he gave his name as George W. Miller. On his person were found two revolvers, one of them being the property of Miss Arnold.
James Lull, 45 years ago, of San Jose, was arrested on a charge of forgery, sworn to by Charles A. Lynde.
He succeeded in cashing several checks in San Francisco, and the signature of his guardian, Dr. E. M. Patterson of 1096 California street, San Francisco, drawn on a San Francisco bank. The checks were afterward found to be forgeries.
Lull's family at one time lived in Colusa county, and when his father died Lull was left a small income, which Dr.
Patterson sent to him monthly.

Frank Newman, who gives his age at 19 years and his home address 673 Harrison street, San Francisco, shot M. C.
Arps, third mate of the steamer Newport, on the mountain trail above Gasparito, Cal. Newman surrendered to a deputy sheriff at Frohm and was taken to the county jail at San Jose. Arps was taken to the county hospital, where it is said he will recover. Newman admitted that he had shot Arps without knowing why he did it, and then rifled his victim's pockets. The two were out on a hunting trip.
Francis Johnstone and R. Rankin, two Vancouver (B. C.) prospectors, to escape a pack of about a score of large timber wolves, had to remain in a tree for a day and a half. They were returning from the coast packing supplies to a mine in the mountains, and it was while carrying their meat that they were attacked and forced to take refuge in the branches of a tree. The wolves tore their packs to pieces, and in a few minutes not even a vestige of the leather straps remained. A snowstorm raged for several hours and a heavy wind followed, but the wolves still kept up their fight through the night and the next day. The employer of the men had, in the meantime, started out to look for them, and finally rescued them after shooting a number of the wolves.
Charles Briggs, while drilling for oil for the Riverside company, a mile and a half south of Volcano springs, a station on the Southern Pacific in Salton basin, 265 feet below the sea level, knocked the bottom out of the well at a depth of 330 feet, and the men at work barely escaped being blown to pieces by the sudden emission of gas, hot water, steam, boiling mud and stones. There are more than 200 mud volcanoes in the vicinity. The one just tapped beats all the rest in size and violence. A column of steaming mud is spouting 150 feet into the air, and the fountains of boiling mud can be seen for miles. Briggs has lost his entire rig, as no one can venture near the point of eruption to rescue the tools.
Colonel W. R. Wallace, one of the most prominent mining men of the west, died at Whittier, Cal., of Bright's disease. He was one of the prime movers in the opening of the Coeur d'Alene region, and the town of Wallace, Ida., bears his name. He came to Los Angeles from Arizona, a year ago, for the benefit of his health. Colonel Wallace was born at Lexington, Ky., and was a squire of General Lewis Wallace.
E. P. Lowenthal of New York city, a dealer in precious stones, had diamonds valued at $10,000 and $200 in money taken from his room in the Portland hotel at Portland, Or. The thief escaped.
Fire destroyed the mining camp of Cinnabar, Trinity county, Cal., and nothing remains standing but the boiler works, and these are damaged. The loss will approximate $75,000.
Two ice-cream freezers, containing 30 gallons of ice-cream, were stolen from the Guild hall at Pelatuna, Cal., while the Children's Relief society was giving an entertainment to raise funds for benevolent work during the coming winter. The children had planned largely to increase their receipts by the sale of ice-cream. The audience, however, had to leave the hall without having their ice-cream thrust assailed, for it was found that some person or persons unknown had made off with the ice-cream and freezers.

Believing that they were being charged excessive advance rates, a number of Paget sound lumber men are taking steps to organize an insurance company having for its special object the insurance of lumber mills and sawmills of the state of Washington. Lumbermen say that insurance rates have gradually been increased to a point so high that they cannot afford to pay premiums out of ordinary profits. The new insurance company will begin business next January.
James J. Jeffries, the heavyweight boxing champion, defeated Gus Ruhlin in five rounds in the Mechanics Pavillion at San Francisco. Ruhlin was clearly outclassed from the start, and Billy Madden, to save Ruhlin from further punishment, threw up the sponge before the going round for the sixth round.
By an arrangement between Mexico and the United States a detail of Arizona rangers, in command of Burt Gover, have been commissioned by the Mexican government as officers, thus acquiring the privilege of hunting criminals on either side of the international line. It is believed that the Mexican gendarmes and rangers have joined forces in Sonora for the purpose of roving the Bill Smith gang, which recently murdered two ranchers in a bloody battle in Arizona.
The circuit court of appeals denied the application for an order staying the execution of the order of the circuit court of Oregon, and ordered the United States marshal to tear down the fences of the Jesse D. Carr Land and Live Live stock company. The fences in question are situated on and around 88,000 acres of land in Malheur county, Cal., and are built of loosely piled stones.
These fences have been standing for the last 25 years, but were built on government land.
Miss Dora Brown, the sister of Mrs.
Cornelia Botkin, who, by poisoning candy, murdered Mrs. John P. Dunning and Mrs. J. D. Deane, is now hopelessly insane. When the evening train stopped at Healdsburg, Cal., the engine left the cab for a moment, and upon his return he found Miss Brown occupant of the cab. For the purpose of frightening her away, the engineer opened the furnace door. This was what she wanted, and had the engineer not prevented her she would have leaped in upon the burning coals.
Miss Brown, who is 45 years of age, has been a great deal upon the disgrace brought upon the family by her sister's crime, and her reason has given way.
The United States land office at Los Angeles received an order, signed by President Roosevelt, opening to settlement 70,000 acres of fertile land in the San Jacinto forest reserve, and lying south of Indio, in the arid belt adjacent to the towns of Walters and Thermal. The lands will be subject to entry at the land office in Los Angeles on or after Jan. 23, 1902.
W. C. Giles, formerly superintendent of the Oakland (Cal.) Water company, and his wife were burned to death in their cabin near Glaco, where they had been residing since Mr. Giles took charge of William J. Dingo's mine near that place. It appears that a fire occurred in the cabin while Mr. and Mrs.
Giles were asleep, and the flames spread so rapidly that the unfortunate couple had no time to escape.
Joseph Has Brouck, while suffering from an attack of mental trouble, committed suicide by placing the muzzle of a shotgun in his mouth and firing the fatal shot at his home, near San Rafael, Cal. He was 62 years of age, and was connected with the Bancroft-Whitney Law Publishing company of San Francisco.
Ten Japanese were killed and 28 injured, three probably fatally, and the others more or less seriously, in a collision between a freight train and a work train on the Great Northern railway near Culbertson, Mont. One of the cars on the work train was a tank or sleeping car, in which were 41 Japanese laborers, only three of whom escaped death or injury. A stove in the car ignited the wreckage, but the treatment of the three injured Japanese, by land work, saved the victims from certain death in the flames. Seven of the cars were burned. The men seriously injured were taken to Great Falls, while those who were not so badly hurt were taken to Glasgow.
Mrs. Mattie Schumacher, on the main street of Walla Walla, Wash., broke a stout buggy whip to pieces over the face and head of Walter Lungenfelder, editor of the Walla Walla Evening Statesman, while the husband of Mrs. Schumacher backed her up. Lungenfelder's face and head are badly injured. Schumacher asserts that during his absence Lungen-felder insulted his wife, and the two men fought in the street recently. Lungen-felder getting the best of the fight.
A walking article afterward appeared in The Evening Statesman, and this was the cause of Mrs. Schumacher's assault on the editor.

$3,336,114 net, assuming that the assets of $149,454 are collectible at face. The total cost to the company was $3,585,757.

The court of inquiry, says the New York Times, has cost Admiral Schley $30,000, his entire savings of 45 years.
"I cannot say I wish I had it back," said Admiral Schley, "but I wish that I had the assurance now that I had a year ago that my wife would never come to want."

Henry Laffame, a barber, of Cambridge, Mass., was fined $20 for drawing the color line and refusing to shave Thomas S. Bruce, a negro divinity student of Harvard university. Judge Almy said the case was clearly one of discrimination. The barber had the right to reject objectionable customers, but not for reasons of race or color.

Yidil Yidiloun, a Jewish rabbi, says a Denver dispatch, was attacked by six men and had his robes torn, his face and his face badly bruised. The Jewish colony, previously to the coming of the rabbi from the east, had been regarding the Mosaic law which says that one man shall kill another and inspect it. The Hebrew took sides on the question, and the rabbi declared a boycott upon the butcher shop. It was the mothers, wives and daughters of the men employed in the butcher shop who wreaked their vengeance upon the rabbi.

At a Montreal banquet tendered to the Manufacturers' association of Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier was unequivocal in his declaration for the continuance of the present tariff, which is highly protectionist. Minister of Finance Fildes, who is the tariff sponsor, followed the premier with an even more emphatic pronouncement. Thus what, for the past quarter of a century, has been the chief point at issue in Canadian politics has finally become a thing of the past, and protection is now accepted by the leaders of all parties as a guaranty of industrial development and the prime factor in the prosperity of the country.

Grace Snell-Coffin-Coffin-Walker-Coffin, four times married and now as many times divorced, is again her own mistress. She was married only two weeks when she was released from her last bond at Racine, Wis., on the grounds of drunkenness and cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Coffin, who married Frank N. Coffin for the third time Oct. 15, less than 48 hours after she had secured a divorce from James G.
Walker of Waukesha, is the daughter of the murdered Chicago millionaire, Amos J. Suedl.

The mayor of Ottawa, Ont., has been unseated, because while entertaining some gentlemen at the Russell House he purchased liquor in violation of a clause in the Ontario liquor license act, which provides that if any member of any municipal council is convicted of having committed an offense under the act he shall forfeit and vacate his seat and shall be disqualified for two years thereafter. Political enmity is said to be responsible for the downfall of Morris.

At the national convention of the Knights of Labor at Indianapolis, General Master Workman Simon Burns attacked the American Federation of Labor, and said that the steel companies in the recent strike were victorious because of treachery and the failure of organized labor to do its duty. The Amalgamated association expected at least the friendship of the American Federation of Labor, said Mr. Burns, but they received nothing but deception and opposition.

In a test at Sandy Hook, the ordinary army 12-inch rifle, with an armor-piercing shell filled with a small charge of high explosive, drove a hole 13 inches in diameter through a hardened steel plate 1 1/2 inches thick, and immediately thereafter, before the shell had emerged from the steel cofferdam behind the plate, it exploded, making a hole in the interior steel construction through which a man could run an automobile.

In the opinion of the officers present, no battleship can stand against even one 12-inch gun equipped with the new projectile, which is the invention of a United States army officer.

"Prince Ranji of Baluchistan," the mysterious potentate from India who aroused the curiosity of London by his lavish luxury and haughty reserve, and who was an object of great interest in Montreal, turns out upon his arrival in New York to be only a cook, the curry cook in Sherry's famous restaurant.
His name is Joe Ranji Smiles, whom hundreds of New Yorkers know well.
The newspapers, he said, were the cause of all the talk as to his being the head of some princely power.

Justice O'Gorman, in the supreme court at New York, of his own motion set aside a verdict for $500 in favor of Julius Wilson, who sued the Metropolitan Street Railway company for $15,000 for the death of his 5-year-old son Lawrence on the ground that such a verdict was utterly inadequate. The justice's action is said to be without precedent in the New York courts. "The verdict," said Justice O'Gorman, "is perverse, and the damages arbitrarily and capriciously fixed at such a low figure as to shock the moral sense."

The Christmas number of The Delintor is about the first of the special Christmas issues. It is a beauty. The cover is a most artistic production, showing a beautifully gowned woman standing gracefully in a brilliantly lighted salon. Two charming love stories, one by Cyrus Townsend Brady, plenty of advice regarding Christmas gifts, timely points on Cookery, Winter-time care of Plants, all the fashions of the day interpreted into simple language, can be found in the Christmas number of The Delinctor. It is a splendid magazine, satisfactory inside and out. There is no magazine for women at present published that is more practical in all its pages. As a Xmas gift itself, it bears its own recommendations.

J. B. Labor, representative of the San Francisco Bulletin, has been spending the past week in Grants Pass in the interest of that journal.
