ROOSEVELT ON ANARCHY.
Extracts on Anarchy and Anarchists from the President's Message.

We mourn a good and great president who is dead; but while we mourn we are lifted up by the splendid achievements of his life and the grand heroism with which he met his death.
When we turn from the man to the nation, the harm done is so great as to excite our gravest apprehensions and to demand our wisest and most resolute action. This criminal was a professed anarchist, inflamed by the teachings of reckless utterances of those who, on the stump and in the public press, appeal to the dark and evil spirits of malice and greed, envy and sullen hatred. The wind is sowed by the men who preach such doctrines, and they cannot escape their share of responsibility for the whirlwind that is reared. This applies alike to the deliberate demagogue, to the exploiter of sensationalism, and to the crude and foolish visionary who for whatever reasons, apologizes for crime or excites aimless discontent.

The anarchist in the United States, is merely one type of criminal, more dangerous than any other because he represents the same depravity in a greater degree.
The man who advocates anarchy directly or indirectly in any shape or fashion or the man who apologizes for anarchists and their deeds, makes himself morally accessory to murder before the fact.
The anarchist is a criminal whose perverted instincts lead him to prefer confusion and chaos to the most beneficent form of social order. His protest of concern for workingmen is outrageous in its impudent fealty: for it is the political institutions of this country that do not afford opportunity to every honest and intelligent son of toil, then the door of hope is forever closed against him. The anarchist is everywhere not merely the enemy of system and of progress, but the deadly foe of liberty. If ever anarchy is triumphant, its triumph will last for but one red moment, to be succeeded for ages by the gloomy night of despotism.
For the anarchist himself, whether he preaches or practices his doctrine, we need not have one particle more concern than for any ordinary murderer.
He is not the victim of social or political injustice. There are no wrongs to be remedied in his case. The cause of his criminality is to be found in his own evil passions and in the evil conduct of those who urge him on, not in any failure by others or by the state to do justice to him or his. He is a male-factor and nothing else. He is in no sense, in no shape or way a "product of social conditions," save as a highwayman is "produced" by the fact that an unarmed man happens to have a purse.
It is a liberty upon the great and holy names of liberty and freedom to permit them to be invoked in such a cause.
No man or body of men preaching anarchistic doctrines should be allowed at large any more than if preaching the murder of some specified private individual. Anarchistic speeches, writings, and meetings are essentially seditious and treasonable.
I earnestly recommend to the congress in the exercise of its wise discretion it should take into consideration the coming to this country of anarchists or persons professing principles hostile to all government and justifying the murder of those placed in authority.
Such individuals as those who not long ago gathered in open meeting to glorify the murder of King Humbert of Italy perpetrate a crime, and the law should insure their vigorous punishment.
They and those like them should be kept out of this country; and if found here they should be promptly deported to the country whence they came; and far reaching provision should be made for the punishment of those who stay.
No matter calls more urgently for the wisest thought of the congress.

The federal courts should be given jurisdiction over any man who kills or attempts to kill the president or any man who by the constitution or by law is in line of succession for the presidency, while the punishment for an unsuccessful attempt should be proportioned to the enormity of the offense against our institutions.
Anarchy is a crime against the whole human race, and all mankind should band against the anarchist. His crime should be made an offense against the law of nations, like piracy and that form of man-stealing known as the slave trade; for it is far blacker infamy than either. It should be so declared by treaties among all civilized powers.
Such treaties would give to the federal government the power of dealing with the crime.
A grim commentary upon the folly of the anarchist position was afforded by the attitude of the law toward the very criminal who had just taken the life of the president. The people would have torn him limb from limb if it had not been for the law he defied was at once invoked in his behalf. So far from his deed being committed on behalf of the people against the government the government was obliged at once to exercise its full police power to save him from instant death at the hands of the people. Moreover, his deed worked not the slightest dislocation in our governmental system, and the danger of recurrence of such deeds, no matter how great it might grow, would work only in the direction of strengthening and giving hardness to the forces of order. No man will ever be restrained from becoming president by any fear as to his personal safety. If the risk to the president's life became great it would mean that the office would more and more come to be filled by men of a spirit which would make them resolute and merciless in dealing with every friend of disorder. The great country will not fall into anarchy, and if anarchists should ever become a serious menace to its institutions they would not merely be stamped out, but would involve in their own ruin every active or passive sympathizer with their doctrine. The American people are slow to wrath, but when their wrath is once kindled it burns like a consuming flame.

Enjoyable Winter Trip.
A winter trip to Southern California and Arizona via the famous Shasta Route is one never to be forgotten. Renewed acquaintance with this section will ever develop fresh points of interest and added sources of enjoyment under its sunny skies, in the variety of interests and added industries, in its proliferous and among its numberless resorts of mountain, shore, valley and plain.
Two trains leave Portland daily morning and evening for California.
These trains are equipped with the most improved pattern of standard and tourist sleeping cars, and the low rates place the trip in reach of all.

John W. Mackay says that telegraphic communication between San Francisco and Honolulu may confidently be looked for next fall.
Gravel is now being taken out of the Gray and Wing mine at Folsom, Cal., that goes $100 to the pan. Further operations in the neighborhood will begin soon.
The opening of settlers of the San Jacinto forest reserve, says a Los Angeles dispatch, will not take place until March.
Insurrections to this effect have been received from Washington.
Neil G. Nelson, aged about 23 years, shot and killed himself while insane in his room at a lodging-house in Los Angeles. It is stated that Nelson, who came from Mason City, Ia., was suffering greatly from hunger, which is supposed to have been the cause of his insanity.
John Heinrichs, 22 years of age, who last May picked Secretary Wilson's pocket while the presidential party was at the Soldiers' Home at Santa Monica, and has lain in the county jail ever since under two charges of grand larceny, pleaded guilty at Los Angeles, and was sentenced by Judge Smith to three years at San Quentin. Heinrichs shed tears on his way to jail. He says his home is in New York.
Jack Wright, an engineer on the Oregon Railway and Navigation company's line along Snake river, with a train of seven cars covered 65 miles in 56 minutes, making but one stop in that distance, when a minute was lost taking water. The track was laid on a new grade two years ago and has many curves.
Armed with a club and hissing like a serpent, an insane section hand employed by the Southern Pacific, charged a party of railroad laborers at Ontario, Cal., scattering them. In trying to escape, Sheriff Brown and a Mexican were badly injured, the Mexican having his head split open. While Brown was fleeting from the maniac another officer arrived with a lasso and succeeded in roping the fellow's legs, throwing him to the ground. He was then tied to a tree until a team could be procured to take him to the asylum at Yuma, where he was taken to the Highland asylum.
While being taken through the city it was found necessary to keep a heavy cloth about his face to prevent his hissing and spitting.
Governor Rafael Ysabel of Sonora, Mexico, notified Governor Murphy of Arizona that he had been directed to surrender Guillermo Llanza, wanted for the murder of a woman at Yuma, thus testifying a willingness on the part of the Mexican government to work in harmony with the American border states for the punishment of criminals.
The South African Vaudeville company, whose road object is of a mercen-tile nature, gave a free entertainment at the Athenaeum in Santa Rosa, and sold to citizens cheap jewelry at high prices.
Medicine signs were alighted for $10 a day. Many of the purchasers, believing they had been swindled, gathered at the entrance to the theater to wreak vengeance on the principal members of the company, and it required the efforts of the sheriff and two assistants to protect the salesman from the fury of the mob. He was escorted to his hotel and left the city on the early morning train.
Several seceding clergymen from the evangelical faith and some other persons who declare themselves dissatisfied with the existing conditions among the denominations will make a new religious experiment in San Francisco. Under the name of "Christian Comrades" they are about to launch a movement which they term the "New Evangelism." This movement will be prosecuted with all the zeal and devotion that characterize the Salvation Army, but without its sensational methods. Rev. Robert Whitaker of the Baptist church in Palo Alto, Cal., is the leader in the movement, and with him are associated Rev. C. Calvert Smoor, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church of Eugene, Rev. E. Wheat, formerly pastor of the Park Congregational church in San Francisco, and Warren L. Puse, now vice principal of the Stockton High school.

The lumber barge Wheeler, bound for San Francisco from Nahalet, in tow of the tug Vosburg of Astoria, is believed to have turned turtle as a result of a terrible storm which raged off the Oregon coast last week, and it is feared the crew must have perished.
The barge was seen about the time the tug was lost. The towing line parted during the blow, and the tug was returned to port. Captain Chris Almes having given up all hope for the safety of the barge and the men.
An immense scaffolding used in the construction of the Southern California Ice company's plant at San Bernardino, suddenly gave way, injuring 15 workmen, at least four of whom will lie. It is supposed that the frequent passing of trains along the Santa Fe tracks close by the structure caused it to become weakened.
To avoid the penalties which the California law imposes on those who marry within a year of the date of divorce, the divorcees of Southern California are making Tia Juana almost as noted a place as Reno with northern California people who desire to marry in contravention of the law. Most of the risking couples seeking the services of the alcalde of Tia Juana come from Los Angeles, and they make the trip to Mexican soil over the National City and Day railroad or secure a team and drive from San Diego.
As a result of one of those periodical outbreaks between rival Chinese towns in San Francisco, two men were shot dead, while other two were taken to the Receiving hospital to be treated for serious wounds inflicted.
Miss Klumpke of San Francisco, who for 15 years has been assistant at the Paris Observatory, is going to Stanford university as chief assistant to Professor Isaac Roberts. Her specialty will be astral photography.
Charles F. Charles, the Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger who made so gallant resistance in the recent holdup of the Oregon express near Eugene, was presented by his employers with $1,000 in greenbacks and a beautiful gold medal, cavalry inscribed. The presentation was made in the offices of the company at San Francisco, in the presence of the officers and directors.

The Southern Pacific company's agent at Indio, Cal., had closed down the windows for the night and was about to leave for his home, when a powerfully built insane man, armed with a revolver, entered, and demanded of the agent why he had put out the sun. The agent supposed the man to be joking, but the manic pointed the revolver at him and threatened to blow out his brains. The agent was ordered into a corner, where all night he tried many ruses to effect his escape, which he finally did at 7 o'clock next morning. The insane man was arrested.

In a dance for which shrouded San Francisco bay a collision occurred between the steamers Sausalito and San Rafael, the latter going to the bottom within 20 minutes. The number of lives lost is still unknown, but many passengers were severely injured. Only three are known to have been drowned in the wreck, and of these but one body has been recovered. The two vessels were approaching each other, each hidden from view by the dense fog, when suddenly, through some error in the signals for passing, the bow of the Sas-ualito crashed into the starboard side of the San Rafael, entering the restaurant, where many people were eating, many of them being severely injured. The San Rafael at once began to sink, and panic prevailed. As the vessel settled nearer to the surface of the water, her lights went out and the terror of the passengers once more became unrestrained. Ropes were thrown from the Sausalito, and many persons were dragged up by ropes. Many jumped overboard and were picked up by the boats of the two steamers. When the San Rafael had sunk, the Sausalito brought the rescued passengers to San Francisco.
The captain of the San Francisco steamer Laura Madison, employed in the lumber trade between Grays Harbor and San Diego, required a stowaway who was discovered on board to sign the ship's articles to serve as a member of that party to the end of the voyage, and was marked on the articles as a stowaway. The stowaway, while hauling on the braces, fell to the deck and was severely injured. Dr. Scamwell and Overmyer of Aberdeen, Wash., liberal the schooner to enforce payment for their services as physicians in treating the injured man. Judge Hanford, in the United States court at Tacoma, decided, however, that the vessel did not become liable for such services, as the stowaway went aboard wholly at his own risk.

William Alexander Selkirk died of heart failure at Seattle, aged 73 years.
He was one of the last of the earlier newspaper men of the coast, an old associate of Mark Twain, Bret Harte and others who were identified with pioneer journalism in California. Mr.
Selkirk was born in 1828 in St. Louis, where he received his early education.
He graduated from Columbia college and came to California overland in 1850. He founded the Auburn Stars journal and was one of the founders of the United States at Tacoma. He was one of the founders of the Sacramento and was interested in the Alta California when it was first published.
Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, in order that the students at the university of California might have an opportunity of hearing the singers of the Grand opera company, arranged for holding two concerts at the university, inviting half of the 2,000 students to each concert. When the cards were counted after the first concert it was found that a large number of bogus invitations were in the lot.
Professor Bacon, speaking of the matter to one of his classes, said: "Mrs. Hearst is a gracious lady, who is always working to help the university, and who plans many things for the pleasure of the students. Strange to say, she never does anything for them without having her courtesy shamefully mistreated by some of them."
George M. Pullman, son of the builder of sleeping cars, died at his home in San Mateo, Cal. He had been ill with pneumonia for some days, although the immediate cause of death is said to be the bursting of a blood vessel, due to a fit of violent coughing. Mr. Pullman was only 26 years of age, but a life of dissipation had left him with insufficient vitality to battle with disease.

At midnight Frank Soto, about 30 years of age, entered the Lafayette saloon in Sacramento, and, at the point of a pistol, ranged about a score of men in front of the bar, at the same time ordering the bartenders to hand over the money. Just as Soto was about to transfer the money to his pocket Police Bergman Robert Ash entered the saloon, but he was at once ordered by Soto to back out, which order Ash proceeded to obey, as Soto had the drop on him.
Soto's attention was distracted for an instant, and the sergeant immediately threw himself upon the robber and a terrible struggle began. A Japs barman in with a billiard cue and struck Soto a blow on the head, which stunned him. He was quickly handcuffed and taken to jail. Superior Judge Harsen sent Soto to Folsom prison for life.

Sheriff Attached a Train.
Saturday's westbound Choctaw passenger train was attached by the Sheriff of Parkersburg, Okla., and detained until a judgment of $70 was satisfied. When the engineer was about to leave the station, he found that his engine was prevented from continuing on its journey because of a log chain which had been fastened to it by the sheriff. A discharged employe had secured the attachment. H. E. Yerman, treasurer of the road, was in his private car at the rear of the train, accompanied by a party of Eastern friends. After parley-ing with the determined sheriff for half an hour, Mr. Yerman paid the judgment, then the train was released.
