ANTS AND LEMONADE.

The Little Insects Know How to Make Drink.

"Did you ever know that anta will make lemonade?" asked the talkative grocer, relates the Philadelphia Rec-ord. "Yes, it's a fact. I happened to cut a lemon the other day, and left it on the counter. A couple of minutes later I noticed a bunch of auts making a great to do around the lemon. The antics of the little insects were so methodical that I took a few minutes if to investigate. A little sugar had been spilled on the counter near the spot where the lemon lay, and the anta were busy making trips between the ugar and the fruit. You may not the little creatures made the trip he carried back a grain of augar, which was dropped into the lemon juice and then eagerly devoured. "It struck me that maybe the manufacture of the lemonade was only an accidental process, due to the close proximity of the augar and the lemon, so I carefully swept the augar away. It seems incredible, but as true as I'm standing here those ants hunted around until they found the sugar bar rel, when the whole bunch trooped back laden with sugar, which they dipped in the juice and swallowed Wonderful is no name for it!"

Glant Oak of Germany

Naturalists in Germany are much interested in a wonderful old tree which has been discovered near Homburg. It is an oak, and is notable not only on account of its great bulk, but also for the fact that at the base of the trunk is entirely hollow. The trunk, indeed, is not more than eight or nine feet high, but it is more than 20 feet in circumference. Some idea of the size of its interior may be gathered from the fact that four persons re cently found ample room in it. In winter the old oak looks very bare and gaunt, but, according to peasants in the neighborhood, who have known it for many years, it regularly puts forth new twigs and foliage every spring, so that, ancient and decayed though its trunk may be, it is nevertheless crowned and surrounded with masses of green leaves, just as it was in the days of its youth. The people of Homburg are very proud of this natural curiosity, and it is safe to say Commencing Wednesday, February that many tourists will have a look at it during the coming summer .- Chica-
