GREEN-APPLE WISDOM.

The accumulated wisdom of ten generations can't keep a boy from eating Green Apples. You can talk to him till you are tired, but it will do no good. He simply can't learn from anything but hard pot-of-the-stomach experience. He must have his own belly ache before he will believe what you tell him. Now, men are just boys grown up. It isn't green apples any longer, but it's the same old comedy with new properties. It's the question, perhaps, of a Mower. It's the old chimera of getting value without cost. It's the Mower which "is just as good as the Osborne." And the lesson is only learned after the loss of many dollars you might have earned. Why not use the green-apple common sense that you learned as a boy?

GREAT OREGON CAVES.

The largest limestone caves in the world are in Oregon; in Josephine county, far up in the depths of the Cascade mountains; 45 miles from the railroad. These great and remarkable labyrinths lie in the midst of a forest solitude, are reached only by a narrow trail, and are comparatively unexplored. Remote and undisturbed, the great caves lie, remarkable, wonderful to the greatest degree, yet almost unknown except to those who live and dwell near about them.

A few years ago a hunter pursued a bear through the southern Oregon mountains. He followed it to its den, and was led into the mouth of these wonderful caves. Following into the opening the hunter was led into an endless labyrinth of passages, tunnels, halls and caverns, all of limestone of purest white and the most beautiful brilliancy.

There are two entrances to the caves, one above the other and about 250 feet apart on the mountain side, forming practically two caves, the explorer can climb from one to the other on the interior. The only difference between the upper and the lower cave is that the upper one is possessed of fine stalactite formations, while in the lower one none appear. Entering the lower cave the explorer finds himself in a small hallway, from which an endless number of passages ramify into the depths of the mountains.

Following these one will find himself being led through tunnels that at times open up wide and high enough to admit several teams abreast, while at other times they are so low and narrow as to be passed through only on hands and knees. A strong current of air passes through these tunnels, making it difficult to keep a torch lighted, and proving that there must be a corresponding outlet on the opposite side of the mountain that has as yet not been discovered.

There are no square chambers or halls in the caves. Irregularity is manifest everywhere throughout them, and in this particular they are unsurpassed. There are no parallel walls, few straight ones, but corners are everywhere. Beautiful views of stalactites and stalagmites of limestone stand out in bold relief against snow-white walls, and in the light of the explorer's torch, the crystals on the walls and columns sparkle and glitter like so many diamonds.

One of the wonders of the cave is the Devil's bannet hall. This is an immense chamber that is found far back about three-fourths of a mile from the lower entrance. It is a large circular hall, 150 feet across, and with a domed ceiling that stands 60 feet from the floor at the highest point, with long and brilliant stalactites hanging like extravagant floral decorations from every point above. On each side of the immense room and opposite each other are the two arched entrances of the great hall. Standing in one of these entrances and gazing across with uplifted torch, the explorer witnesses a sight he will never forget. Beautiful, yet awe-inspiring and almost gruesome, is the spectacle presented.

The dismal shadows from the flickering lights, leap hither and yon about the walls and ceiling and impart a ghoulish, dance-like aspect. Multitudes of little streams trickle down the walls and fill the hall with rippling music, pleasant for devils, perhaps, but not at all such for superstitious explorers; and by the way, nearly all the explorers of these caves find that they are superstitious in some degree so long as they are in the caves. But the music! As one looks and listens they can easily imagine that the devil is holding high carnival in his favorite banquet hall. One can see the myriad little imps as they caper in and about the dark corners and crevices of the great hall. Up and down they dance, swinging their arms in fiendish glee until the explorer gets enough and makes his retreat, but the devil and his imps continue to make merry and the dance goes on.

Just how far these caves have been penetrated and the winding passages explored, is not known, but probably no exploring party has ever gone more than a mile into the bowels of the vast rock mountain. Distance in these caves is something that cannot be measured with accuracy. The subterranean openings wind in and out, and turn and twist with endless variations. From a single room or hall, a half dozen low and narrow passages lead out into other stone-walled, stone-ceiled, snow-white apartments; some, after describing a curve, or after making many short turns, and acute angles, return to the same room. Some of the openings lead down to unknown depths, while others lead to passages aloft. Beyond any doubt the whole mountain is one vast honey-comb of limestone, and many years will pass before they will be completely explored, in truth they may never be. For any party of explorers to enter the caves without a guide would be risky, a very risky undertaking. If one once became fairly entangled in the intricate labyrinths of rooms and the narrow tunnels and the wide halls, it would be impossible to find the way out to the open world.

The lost explorer in these great Oregon caves might wander in helpless bewilderment through gloomy regions for days, weeks and even months without finding an outlet from his mountain prison.

There are some people who concede that these caves were, in prehistoric time, the abiding place of human beings, of a strange people who lived in the time of the cave dwellers' age. If this be true it would seem that there would be something left to show that such a people once dwelt in the mountain labyrinths. No trace can be found where human beings have at former times inhabited these dungeons like abodes, or even visited them.

The most remarkable feature of the upper cave is what is known as the Queen's chamber—a great, spacious hall, well worthy of the name given it. Countless stalactites depend from the ceiling, from the needle points of which, from everyone a single drop of water, hangs and elings and glitters in the light like a huge solitary diamond. The great ceiling to the Queen's chamber, hung with its countless stalactites with their glittering points, reminds one of a huge Arctic grotto, thickly hung with snow-white icicles. These stalactites have been forming, slowly forming for countless years, centuries perhaps. Slowly, steadily the process goes on, each little drop forming at the needle point, then growing larger, clings desperately, glittering and sparkling the while, more brilliantly than the richest diamond; desperately the little drop clings to the stalactite's point and at last with a final quiver, a final sparkle, lets go its hold and dashes against the point of the protruding stalactite below.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SPECIAL RATES FOR FOURTH.

The Southern Pacific Company announces the sale of reduced rates on account of the Fourth of July. These figures will be based at one and one-third fare for the round trip, making four cents per mile round trip passage to and from stations in Oregon. Tickets will be on sale July Third and Fourth and will be good for return up to and including the Sixth.

Celebrations will be held at the more important points. Local agents will furnish all details on application. W. E. Coman, G. P. A.

PLAN TO SETTLE OREGON.

The management of the Harriman lines has just perfected the details of the largest colonization plan ever attempted by a railroad in the east. The organization of a colonization bureau, and the appointment of G. M. McKimney to be general colonization agent in charge of the bureau, with headquarters in Chicago, has been announced. A large sum has been appropriated to carry on the work which is to be on a scale hitherto unattempted. It is the purpose to appoint colonization agents in all the Eastern and Middle West centers and to draw largely from the population of the Eastern states. The bureau will represent the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Oregon Short Line, and the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Co. It is the purpose of the management of these roads, through the colonization department, to thoroughly exploit, develop and settle Oregon and Washington. Special attention will be given to the mineral, agricultural and timber resources. It is stated there are many millions of unoccupied fertile lands in these states, and that no other states have so brilliant futures from a mineral standpoint. The bureau with all the railroads back of it is going to pay special attention to irrigation in the way of inducing the government to promote irrigation, and redeem the immense areas of land which need only water to become the most fertile fields of the northwest.

Holds Up a Congressman. "At the end of the campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had utterly collapsed. It seemed that all the organs in my body were out of order, but three bottles of Electric Bitters made me all right. It's the best all-around medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter." Overworked, run-down men and weak, sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Dr. Kremer.

THE TIMBER SHARKS.

Indignation still continues here on the part of the miners, regarding the wholesale manner in which timber lands, so called, are being taken up by Eastern locators.

The miners say that timber claims are being filed on daily in Josephine that are valuable mineral lands. In some cases it is stated there is scarcely enough timber on the claim to fence it, the evident purpose being to get the mineral land. The miners have no objection to timber being taken up, but they believe that the Easterners are taking up much land and calling it timber, merely for the value it will have from a mineral standpoint in the future.

The idea the miners have in view is to solicit subscriptions and procure funds to employ a competent judge whose duty it will be to examine all lands located in the county, and if he deems it more valuable for its mineral than its timber, to enter a protest against the issuing of patents for such lands.

RAILROAD SURVEY COMMENCED.

Mr. Chas. Wetherell, a civil engineer and an employee of the Oregon & Pacific Railroad Company, who has been waiting here for some time for assistants to arrive from San Francisco, started for the scene of his labors Tuesday last. Three men arrived by the Crescent City and several men who are residents of this county were employed also. The company will start the survey at a certain point on the Edgerton ranch on Smith River and run to or near Crescent City. This will be done in order that the Board of Trade may get work on the rights of way along the line. When this work is finished in the local field, the surveying party will at once proceed to complete the survey between the Edgerton ranch and Waldo.

While in waiting here, Mr. Wetherell spent much of his time looking over the ground along the proposed route of the road and will consequently be well prepared to select a feasible route.—Crescent City News.

The Latest Yarn.

A Pittsburg drummer tells this yarn, I always carry a bottle of Kemp's Balsam in my grip. It take cold easily and a few doses of the Balsam always makes me a well man. Everywhere I go I speak a good word for Kemp. I take hold of my customers—I take old men and young men, and tell them confidentially what I do when I take a cold. At druggists, 25c. and 50c.

TIMBER LAND IN DEMAND.

According to advices from other localities, the unprecedented rush for timber claims by Eastern and local timbermen continues throughout Western Oregon. For years this land has laid vacant in the surrounding hills and no one has cared to take any but the very best and most accessible. But what a wonderful change has been wrought in the last few years! Timber is becoming more scarce while the demand for it is steadily increasing. Good claims are already becoming scarce and the hills are full of earnest and locators patting men into the few remaining tracts. "Ere long not even an eighty will remain subject to filing. It is the same in nearly every locality in this part of the state. At Grants Pass much dissatisfaction has arisen among the mining men because of it. They fear that much mineral land will be taken up, thus interfering with prospecting and mining. There has been strong talk here of calling a mass meeting of Southern Oregon miners for protection of mineral lands from timber locators. What the results of such meetings will be remains to be seen. But surely the expressed fears are groundless as can be readily seen from the fact that much mineral land is scanty indeed. In this locality there is no need whatever of apprehension as nearly all the mineral land is situated in the government forest reserve and not subject to location.—Bohemian Nugget.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the friends who so kindly helped us during the sickness and death of our dear brother Martin, Elsie Hammond, Lethor Williams.

Reveals a Great Secret. It is often asked how such startling cures, that cure the best physicians, are effected by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Here's the secret. It cures out the phlegm and germ infected mucus, and lets the life-giving oxygen enrich and vitalize the blood. It breaks the inflamed, cough-worn throat and lungs. Hard colds and stubborn coughs soon yield to Dr. King's New Discovery, the most infallible remedy for all Throat and Lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c. and $1. Trial bottles free at Dr. Kremer's.

YOUTHFUL INCENDIARIES.

The prevailing tendency on the part of street urdians toward incendiarism had its example in Eugene, recently, when two little fellows were seen to deliberately set fire to a car of excelsior at the depot "just to see it burn." This is a dangerous phase of juvenile curiosity and should be summarily curbed before it becomes more vicious and extensive. The destruction of a barn by fire in the center of town yesterday cannot be laid to any known cause at this time although it is not beyond the pale of possibility that its origin could be traced to the same source.—Eugene Register.

W. C. U. Column

(Articles for this column are contributed by the Women's Christian Temperance Union.)

A Mothers' meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. C. Terrill, July 11th, at 2:30 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all and especially do we urge mothers to come as the meetings are always helpful and it is good for us to meet together.

What Schuyler Colfax says of temperance—"We speak of the horrors of war, and there are horrors in war. War may be a necessity for saving a nation's life, but it fails in all its horrors, compared with those that flow from intoxication. We shudder at the ravages of pestilence, and famine, but they sink into insignificance when compared with the sorrow and anguish that follow in the trail of this conqueror of fallen humanity. I see before me many distinguished in political, social and business life; and some of them I fear are today voluntarily enrolled in the great army of moderate drinkers. When you appeal to them to give the force of their influence and example to the prevention of the evil, their answer is that they have strength to resist—they can quit when they please. You say you are strong. I can point you to those stronger tenfold over than you, who began as you have, and who lost the power of resistance before they knew they were in the power of the tempter. He only is fortified who has determined not to yield to the first temptation.

There is but one class whence he has never drawn a victim. That class has defied him, and will to the end. It is we who stand, God helping us, with our feet on this rock of safety, against which the waves may dash, but they shall dash in vain. I implore you to come stand with us. I plead with you to come, for I believe that all mankind are my brethren. I believe in the fatherhood of God and in the brotherhood of man. When I see an inebriate reeling along the streets I feel that, though debased and fallen, he is my brother still, created in the image of God, destined to an eternal hereafter, and it should be your duty and mine to take him by the hand and seek to place his feet on the same rock on which we stand.

How many of you have gone to your fellowman when you have seen him on the shores of destruction, and tried to save him? Not one! Not one! How dare you on your knees ask God to bless you and yours, when you have not thus proved that you love your neighbor as yourself? More than all things else in the land we need a temperance revival. Whom would it harm? No one.

Choose you this day whether you will stand with us on this rock, defying the snarls, and evil, and misery and woe, and desolation of the tempter, or whether, pursuing your present habit, you will go down the easy descent, till at last, dishonored and disgraced, having lost the respect of others, and your own self-respect, you end a miserable and gloomy life by a home in the tomb, from which there is, if inspiration be true, no resurrection that shall take you to a better land."

There is a Class of People Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called Grain-O, made of pure grains that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 1/4 as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for Grain-O.
