THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1902.

A lively municipal election was held at Milton in this state recently. The issue was the saloon question and the election was won by the prohibition element. The W. C. T. U. held continuous prayer meeting and the church bells were rung every half hour, lest the voters forget. One anusual and somewhat startling feature was the dragging of small-pox patients from their beds, fumigating and then voting them. The saloon men of a neighboring town, it is said quietly worked for the prohibition party in Milton, that they might continue to receive its whiskey trade.

Judicial lightning has struck in high places in the city of Portland and a number of well known men among whom are Ex-Municipal Judge McDevitt and Councilman Fred T. Merrill, are held to answer before the grand jury to the charge of gambling. A short time ago, Municipal Judge Hogue and B. B. Beekman indulged in a sight seeing tour among the came to the ears of District Attorney Chamberlain, governor-elect, who best properties of southern Oregon. indicted them as witneses and made them tell what they saw This they were very unwilling to do, as they did not like to get their friends into trouble. It required a threat of contempt of court and the county jail to make them talk. As a result of the crusade gambling as a business is below par in Portland at the present time and many of the operators are seening locations elsewhere. The determined action on the part of the district attorney recalls the opposition that was made to him in campaign times It was said that he was such a "good fellow" that he could not act contrary to the wishes of any one.

The Venezuelan "incident" has become an "affair." The warships of England and Germany have fired or Venezuelan ports and have roused the Spanish-American ire to a high pitch. The Venezuelans are determined not to yield. The trouble is over an alleged debt, not acknowledged by Venezuela. A wave of indignation is, as a result sweeping over all South America and Chili and Argentina, two of the most powerful nations, talk of taking a hand in the struggle. should there be one. The United States takes the ground that the Monroe doctrine is not applicable in cases like this one, where the collection of debt is the issue. In case of any attempt to seize territory, this mation might be obliged to interfere The isthmians believe that it is the scheme of the allies to get a hold on Patos island. There is quite a strong feeling in England that the matter has been bungled and that due consideration of the step has not been made. Many of her statesmen con demn the alliance with Germany and deem it a mistake to jeopardize the friendship of the United States. An out further violence.
