been prompt, careful and diligent and the disease has been thoroughly under control at all times. Herbert Smith, chairman of the health committee of the city council, has devoted a great deal of time to looking after these cases, giving a part of every day to this duty, and his service in this mat ter has been of a character that should be appreciated by the city.

The referendum is a weapon which is put into the hands of the citizen for the prevention of injurious legislation and it should be used when oc casion arises. There are now at least three bad laws for which the referen dum should be invoked. The first is the repeal of the $300 exemption clause in the tax law, a law which places a burden of taxation on those least able to bear it. Then there is the corport tion tax law which is a discourage ment to mining investors and under the pretense of collecting taxes from alien stockholders, fleeces the home incorporations, while those whose stockholders live outside of the state can always find ways to evade the law. The appropriation for the portage railway is another movement that should be killed, because it is throwing money away. The, voters should examine these propositions and sign the petitions. The lades of the Woman's club have been circulating a petition this week among the taxpayers, asking for a two mill tax levy for the maintenance of the Carnegie library. They have found almost unanimous support among the taxpayers whom they have approached and the movement has met with almost universal encouragement. The ladies have been somewhat annoyed by statements which have appeared in Fortland papers and have been seized upon with avidity by papers in some other South ern Oregon towns that the library project was being opposed and that the opposition was emanating trom another organization of ladies in town, presum ably meaning the Ladies Library club state emphatically that there is Miss Prue Angle, Medford no opposition whatever; that they have found a very few objectors but that Miss Elakhurn, Gold Hill Miss Lou Briggs, Ashland none of there are among the indice of Miss Carrie White, Grants Pass
