John VanDyke of Medford Loses His Life Sunday.

John Van Dyke, a prominent and popular young business man of Medford, was drowned in Rogue river on Sunday at the point known as the "Big Rock," about two miles above the Bybee bridge. He was with a fishing party, his companions being J. E. Bodge, Guy Childers and Will Isaacs, all of Medford. All of the party were equipped with hip wading boots and were in the stream. Van Dyke, who was not an experienced wader, stepped into a hole in the rock bottom of the river and the undertow carried him off his feet and swept him over into one of the deepest holes in the river. He was out of sight before his companions scarcely realized his mishap and he never rose to the surface. Bodge hurried to the nearest telephone office and sent the news to Medford and a searching party started immediately, but the body was not recovered until about noon Monday, and was found at a point 60 to 100 feet below where the disaster occurred.

John Van Dyke was the head of the Van Dyke mercantile firm in Medford and was a successful business man. He was the son of John G. Van Dyke, one of the well known pioneer residents of Jackson county. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Minnie Cox, to whom he was married less than a year ago.

SOME LIVELY RUNAWAYS

Several Have Occurred in Town This Week.

Several exciting runaways occurred in Grants Pass this week. On Tuesday, Joe Russell's team took a lively spin through town which was brought to a close when the wagon became wedged between two trees in the bicycle park. No serious injury was done to the team, though the wagon was somewhat damaged.

Wednesday morning the pony team of Panky, the fisherman, ran away from the rear platform of the depot, where their owner had just unloaded a stove. While Mr. Panky was in the depot, the team took the opportunity of starting and were under headway before he could reach the vehicle. They turned east into Front street and raced up that thoroughfare at lightning speed. Just in front of the Abby bakery, they slowed suddenly to one side to dodge a tree and the light hack was thrown into the air, all except the front wheels and tongue being deposited on its back in the street. The front wheels were left a little farther on and the team creased into a fence near the pipe needle factory and came to rest with a horse on each side of the fence. The horses were somewhat scratched but were not otherwise injured. The wagon was a total wreck.
