The series of races for the American cup, between Lipton's challenger, Shamrock III and the defender, Reliance, is now on. Thus far the American boat has shown a decided superiority and it seems certain that the result of the races will be the same as that of the previous occasions in which contests for the cup have taken place.

Lou Dillon, a California trotter, is now the world's champion and has made a new trotting record, a mile in two minutes flat. It is not many years ago that sportsmen gave it as their opinion that the two minute mark could never be reached by a trotter. Lou Dillon made the last quarter in 29 seconds.

The present condition by which the army is commanded by a chief of staff, who is directly subject to the secretary of war, is one that will make all sorts of trouble for us if we should ever engage again in a serious war. The regulation is well enough perhaps, in time of peace, but in war time, when errors are costly, we should soon find out the disadvantage of having the army hampered and impeded by bureaucrats and politicians instead of being commanded by warriors.

"A mustache protects the eyesight. It is only men with smooth shaven lips, in nine cases out of ten, who require to wear glasses," says the Philadelphia Record. This strange statement was made the other day by an oculist. "There are certain delicate little optic nerves," he went on, "that are connected with the upper lip, and every time the lip is shaved, the nerves are hurt. A light shave with a good razor, hurts them only a little. A close shave hurts them very much. Since these nerves are in direct communication with the eye, whatever they suffer, the eye suffers, and that is why when the razor hurts the lip, such a flood of tears comes gushing forth. Because it is fashionable today to have the lip shaven, the wearing of glasses among men has increased. But notice some time the men with mustaches, and you will see that not many of them have weak eyes."

The city council held no meeting on Tuesday evening, the reason for the failure being that old, well worn and thoroughly familiar condition, "no quorum." Two of the councilmen were out of town and under the existing conditions this is all that is necessary to block all proceedings. It takes five for a quorum. When there is a full council of eight members, a quorum is almost always obtainable. Now, when there are but six members, a quorum seems to be an exceptional occurrence. The council makes no move toward filling the vacancies and it is well understood that no such intention is entertained. Yet the majority of the council, we understand, are in favor of filling the vacancies. They are restrained from any action by the minority, who, having the power to block all the city business, are able to dictate terms in some measure to the entire council. Unless the citizens manifest their displeasure at this course by mandamus proceedings or some like measure, this is the condition that will prevail to the end of the year.

As the anniversary of the disastrous forest fires of last year approaches, the subject comes to the front and the newspapers, not only of Oregon, but of many other states are discussing plans for minimizing this danger. The failure of present methods to accomplish their purpose is admitted everywhere, but the remedies advanced are few. To increase the penalties for setting out fires, is the only improvement that seems capable of entering the minds of the greater number of the legislators. An individual, if he has a timber tract, that he is exceptionally anxious to protect from the flames, will go around at the proper season and set fire to the brush heaps and inflammable accumulations, and so will place his property in some degree of safety. With some similar plan to this cannot enter the minds of those who look after the interests of a commonwealth, and receive at least consideration, is one of the unsolved enigmas.

THE SUICIDE AT AGER

Duncan Stewart Hears Bad News and Shoots Himself.

Particulars of the suicide of Duncan Stewart, of Astoria, at Ager, just over the California state line, last Friday, have been received. Stewart was engaged in the employ of the Southern Pacific railroad company as time-keeper of a gang of Greek laborers employed in laying new steel across the Siskiyou between Ager and Hornbrook, and had only been on duty a day or two when he received some bad news from home by mail. He was greatly depressed by it, and the next thing that was known he had secured a rifle, secluded himself, and placing the muzzle in his mouth, pulled the trigger with his toe. The charge blew the top of his head off. An inquest was held, and the remains were forwarded to relatives of the unfortunate man at Astoria.

HEPPNER YET TROUBLED RAILROAD MAN INJURED

No Water for Washing and Little to Drink.

Heppner, which attracted such widespread sympathy and attention because of a cloudburst that swept away a large part of its population, is again stricken. This time much inconvenience to the people and suffering to animals are being caused by a water famine. The pump at the water works broke several days ago, and cannot be repaired until the parts are secured from Chicago. In the meantime water for drinking purposes is being hauled a long distance, and is apportioned out in the smallest possible quantities. There is absolutely no water with which people may wash their faces, and animals are turned loose to hunt pools in which to slake their thirst. This condition of affairs is working a serious inconvenience to the entire population of the town.

Physicians and Druggists.

Ford & Sturgeon, a prominent drug firm at Rocky Hill Station, Ky., writes: "We were requested by Dr. G. B. Snigley to send for Herbine for the benefit of our customers. We ordered three dozen in December, and we are glad to say, Herbine has given such great satisfaction that we have duplicated this order three times, and today we gave your salesmen another order. We beg to say Dr. G. B. Snigley takes pleasure in recommending Herbine." 50c bottle at Slover's Drug Store.

Thrown From a Velocipede Near Upton, Cal.

Friday, Roadmaster Weiland, of Hornbrook and Section Foreman Bird, of Sison, and Peter Schultz, who is making the pump connections for the oil tank in Ashland, while traveling on the roadmaster's gasoline velocipede, were derailed near Upton. The accident occurred sometime between 10 and 11 o'clock, about half a mile the other side of Upton. The machine was going at a high rate of speed, when, in rounding a curve there, it left the track.

All three were badly bruised and hurt, but Weiland is the only one whose injuries are serious. The machine fell on him and it is reported he only gained consciousness next morning. He was spitting blood and it was feared he is badly injured internally. He was taken to Sison where the company has an emergency physician, and the section foreman also went there, which is his home. Schultz returned to Ashland Friday night. His nose is badly skinned and he received other bad contusions.—Tribune.

Watch for a Chill.

However slight at this time of the year and in this climate, it is the forerunner of malaria, disposition to yawn, and an all tired out feeling even comes before the chill. Herbine, by its prompt stimulative action on the liver, drives the malarial germs out of the system, purifies the blood tones up the system, and restores health. 50c at Slover's Drug Store.

DROWNS IN NEWPORT SURF CHEAP EXCURSION RATES

Wm. Kleemann Ventured Too Far And Lost His Life.

Friday about 11 o'clock, William Kleemann of Portland, was drowned while surf-bathing off the ocean beach at Nye creek near Newport in full view of a thousand horror-stricken and excited spectators. The surf was light and the enjoyment of riding over the swells tempted the young man to venture out too far from shore. He soon became exhausted and cried for help, which was at once promptly responded to by C. A. Burden, professor of physical culture at the University of Oregon, Eugene, and Mr. Bush, of Salem.

They succeeded in reaching Kleemann. Burden taking hold of his arm on one side and Bush putting his hand on Kleemann's shoulder, they made heroic and desperate efforts to make the shore but the current seemed to set off shore, and they could make little or no progress. They continued, however, to struggle and encourage the now almost helpless young man, until they, too, becoming exhausted from their fearful exertions, were compelled to give up their task and battle for their own lives with the tremendous current.

While the three men were fighting bravely for life in the surf, others rallied to the bathroom for life-preservers and lines. In the quest for lines much precious time was lost. Several pieces found were fastened together, and one end taken by Kent, of the lifesaving station, who swam with it toward the drowning youth, while, to lengthen the line other bathmen joined hands and formed a human life-line extending into the surf as far as safety could permit. But even with the human extension the line proved about 30 feet too short to reach the doomed man. Dr. Wallace, of Albany, Mr. Regal, E. L. Farr and E. J. Beardon, of Oregon City, C. D. Hare, of Portland, and S. E. Houston, of Hillsboro, made noble efforts to rescue Kleemann, but before they could reach him he went down and was seen no more.

BOILER SAFELY LANDED

Granite Hill Machinery Is Removed to the Mine.

The big boiler for the Granite Hill mine was landed on a heavy wagon on Thursday and on Friday, drawn by eight horses, started for the mine. The knowing ones prophesied that the equipment would come to grief on the steep pitches and sharp curves with which the Louse creek road abounds. While the removal was attended with some difficulty and delay, no serious trouble was experienced and the boiler was on the ground Sunday evening. The rest of the machinery was moved with less difficulty.

A new ledge, 11 feet wide and carrying good values, was discovered last week in running a drift. It is parallel to the vein of the Granite Hill proper and the discovery is an important one.

CAUGHT HIS NOSE IN GUN

Peculiar Accident Which Happened to John Frink.

While out hunting a few days ago, says the Oregonian, John Frink, farmer residing near Ambey, Clark county, Washington, stumbled and fell upon his shotgun. The gun was cocked, but although the hammer descended the weapon was not discharged, for the old muzzle-loading affair and the hammer, Frink's nose was caught, breaking the bone of the nose and tearing through the flesh in such a manner as to disfigure the unfortunate hunter's nasal organ for life. He was brought to this city and taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital, where, under a doctor's care he is rapidly recovering.

BROKE A SHOULDER BONE

Ward Crawford Thrown From Bicycle and Severely Hurt.

Ward Crawford was the victim of a very troublesome accident on Tuesday while riding into town from one of the mills on the Applegate. He was riding on a "blind" road and suddenly ran into a deep rut while under a good head of speed. He was thrown off with violence, striking on his left shoulder, breaking one of the bones at the shoulder joint. The injury is quite a troublesome one and he will be incapacitated from work for some time to come.

Glendale Items.

Mrs. Seth Upton of Wolf Creek, visited Dr. and Mrs. Bowersox Friday. Mrs. C. Clarke and daughter, Jeanie, visited several days last week at Celestine Springs, a famous summer resort in the Siskiyou mountains. The S. P. steam shovel gang expects to arrive here this week from Siskiyou, and will spend the next couple of months at work between Glendale and Wolf Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Nail have sold their farm on Williams Creek, Josephine county, and have come to Glendale to spend the balance of their days. Their son, Charles T., the nephew, will at once build a neat cottage for them, on a lot near the school house. Another son, William L. Nail, also came up from Williams Creek, and no doubt will locate here.

Dr. Kitchen and wife will also visit relatives in Grants Pass before returning home. Dr. Bowersox and his brother, hunted deer a couple of days on upper Windy Creek, with what success we have not learned.

Leland Siftings

Our rain has passed off now. We are having nice sunny weather again.

Quite an influx of lower Grave Creek people are in town to lay in their supplies.

The hay crop is good on Grave Creek. A. A. Porter, shipped a car load of hay to the Pass last week and got a good price for it. Others here have a large amount of hay to sell.

We are having a nice easy rain. It will stop the forest fires, also will be beneficial to the range, as grass was beginning to dry up. People who had been irrigating, can now take a rest.

In going down Grave creek one day last week, the writer saw a man coming up the creek. He was desirous of entering into a conversation. He said he was a German, although he talked good English. He said he was looking for a location for a colony. Being a man of leisure, with plenty of means, he was taking observations regarding the people of Oregon. He traveled through the country learning the ways of the people. In some houses he finds people of great intelligence. There, he says, on the table will be found the Rogue River Courier, the Oregonian, the Call, also some farm papers. At other houses he says, he finds light literature. With the last named people he could not enter into discussion for the people were not posted, reading novels, also cheap story papers. He wishes to marry an American girl but so far as his observation goes, he thinks he will go back to Minnesota or Wisconsin, as those people seem to be more industrious, more like the people in Germany. He says as soon as the girls in the states get their kitchen work done and sit down, then they take up their knitting, comprising socks and mittens for the family. Here he says the parents go to the stores and buy all such things. Then again he says back in the states he sees grown girls working in the garden, as a rule the gardens are free from weeds. Here, he says, the weeds predominate. He wants to know what we could raise here on a farm. I told him we could raise anything here that could be raised anywhere, even to raising mortgages, on some farms, but some farms could propagate mortgages but could not raise them. He said "as you have been here a long time I would like to come up to your ranch and see you and have a farther talk with you." I told him I would like to give him more information. So perhaps next week will have more to write regarding this German gentleman. Wide Awake.

COW MILKED BY A HOG

How the Days Creek Swine Rustle for Livelihood.

Floyd Patrick has a very interesting snap shot photo which he caught near Days creek, Douglas county, showing a hog in the act of milking a cow. This is one of the things which a person often hears of, but seldom sees. The cow wears a patient though worried expression while the attitude of the hog is that of enterprising stabbiness.

Oregon Information Bureau

Among the newly arrived curiosities at the Oregon Information Bureau at the Terminal Depot is a stuffed specimen of a two headed kid, presented by a friend who lives near Forest Grove. Samples of new grains from Washington have also arrived. These past few days many Eastern visitors have called at the bureau for information about Oregon to give to their friends when they go back East, and they did not seem to be souvenir hunters, either. Over 80 visitors called last Friday, and the secretary shook hands and talked with each one. They took with them a good bunch of literature advertising Oregon, and said in parting that they had been pleased with their visit to California, but that they saw better scenery in Oregon and were better treated here—Oregonian.

The Wilderville Discard.

We are in receipt of a communication from Rev. Joseph Sims in regard to the Wilderville episode. He places the matter in another light than does Mr. Robinson's statement as he says that the road in question was outside of Robinson's fence and that he had permission from Wagner to pass through his field. Mr. Sims story of the fight also differs very materially from that given by Mr. Robinson. Our space is too limited to publish the letter in full, especially as we feel that rather too much space has been devoted to this subject already.
