Entered at the post office at Grants Pass, Oregon, as second-class mail matter.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1935.

An extra session of congress has been called by the president to convene on November 9, for the purpose of considering commercial convention with Cuba.

Much interest throughout the world is being taken in the experiments in rapid electric traction at Berlin, the terrific speed of 125 miles an hour having been attained.

Grants Pass is one town where the citizens work together to build up their town with the result that that town is having a splendid growth and on solid lines. The postal receipts for the past year amounted to $7,173, while for the previous year they were $6,371. The public school enrollment reached 860.—Jacksonville Sentinel.

The reports that were so persistently circulated during the Hume-Chausse suit to the effect that Mr. Hume had bought the Courier plant are without foundation and were probably circulated for reasons best known to the party who started the report. We know of no reason for it ourselves. The Courier is owned and published by A. E. Voorhies and probably will be for years to come.

The Alaska Boundary Commission has reached a decision whereby all the American contentions are sustained with the exception of those in relation to the Portland Canal, which Canada wins. All that now remains to be done is for the commissioners to affix their signatures to the decision and complete the map which will accompany it. On the map will be marked the boundary line, definitely fixing the division of American and British territory on such a basis that no American citizen will lose a foot of land he already believed he held, while the United States will get all the waterways to the rich Alaskan territory with the exception of the Portland Canal, which gives Canada the one outlet she so much needs.

MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS
Land Commissioner Richards
Annual Report.

In his forthcoming annual report, Land Commissioner Richards will present a forceful argument in favor of the radical modification of the timber and stone acts. He builds his argument upon the showing of rapidly increasing timber entries in late years. Out of 19,741,180 acres of public lands entered during the past year, 1,765,222 were covered by timber entries, or more than three times the area of timber entries in the preceding year. This growth is the better appreciated when it is known that in the 25 years the timber and stone acts have been operative less than 7,000,000 acres at all, have been entered under its provisions.

Commissioner Richards objects to the timber and stone act because it allows entrymen, largely speculators, to acquire for $2.50 an acre lands that are easily worth $100, so he says. "When one observes the character of claims that are being filed," said Commissioner Richards, "little argument is needed to convince him that these lands are being taken up for the benefit of syndicates and corporations and not the individual claimants. For example, a carload of people will leave Michigan, cross the continent and scatter in the hills of Oregon. Immediately we will receive claims for 160 acres of land, the number of claims corresponding exactly with the number of passengers that boarded the west bound train. Each claim will be accompanied by a check for $400, and on investigation we find that many of the claimants have never been known to have that much money at one time in their lives. Naturally, we went collation, and all the claims are held for further inquiry."

IN NEW SCHOOL BUILDING
School Began in New Brick Monday

The tones of the bell at the new $10,000 brick school house called the scholars together Monday morning, for the first time. Since last Christmas, the hall over the city engine house has been used for school purposes—last year by one grade and this school year two grades have been occupying the small hall. It was inconvenient, but the increased number of school children made it necessary. The building of the new brick has been hastened with all possible speed and the school board deserves commendation for the way in which they have pushed the work and the splendid results they have accomplished. There are six rooms in the building, two of them being occupied. The remainder of the rooms will be fitted up with school furniture as soon as requested.

The ladies of the Newman M. E. church gave a donation party at the parsonage last week, for the benefit of Rev. Beatty, Klamath mission, and Rev. Pepper, Fort Bidwell. The donations were numerous and valuable. A good time was enjoyed by all present. J. A. Turner last week sold John Stanfield place to Mrs. J. L. Damm. Blue Print Paper by the yard or roll at the Courier office.

DON'T FISH AFTER NOV. 1
Season Closed From November to March.

If you care to fish for trout, you must do it now, for the season closes in less than two weeks. November 1 is the date and the closed season will continue until March 2. Water Bailiff, Wm. Cheshire does not wish to make any arrests, but he will enforce the fish law.

Jones Loses Suit.
At 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening, the jury in the suit of Rupert L. Jones vs. the Southern Pacific R. R. Co. for $15,000 damages for injuries sustained in a wreck near Myrtle Creek, this county, Jan. 1, 1922, brought in a verdict for the defendant. The jury had deliberated for eight hours before reaching a verdict.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

Cast iron blocks are to be used in paving Huddersfield (England) tramways. The microbe of tuberculosis may live as long as 103 days, as has been shown by experiment.

Manchester, England, is to test the utility of a system of wireless telephony by a series of practical experiments. In Nuremberg, Germany, 300 workmen are employed making lead soldiers and lead toys. They turn out about 100,000 lead soldiers a day.

A new disease of the horse has appeared in the Darling river district, Australia. It makes the horses almost blind for a time, but recovery is usual. Asiatic Turkey is to be rescued from semibarbarism by the construction of $10,000,000 worth of railroads, one of which will run through the Taurus mountain valley from east to west. The new roads will follow the old caravan routes and they will touch all the principal cities and towns of little lands.

A new lightning apparatus for restoring hearing consists of a light rubber sheet furnished with a miniature microphone, which is connected to a small galvanic battery. It is claimed that the microphone causes even the softest speech to repeat on the auditory nerve of the deaf when the apparatus is placed to the ear.

Excavations in southern Germany have apparently established the fact that in prehistoric times Europe was inhabited by pygmies. Remains of a piglet race have also been found in Switzerland and the Pyrenees. The skeletons which have been found are so small that they can be placed in an ordinary museum drawer. None of them is longer than 55 inches, and many are smaller.

Leland Siftings.

The foliage is turning yellow, but so far we have had no frosts to cut the garden track.

Our merchants are so busy they had to dispense with the telephone, so it is located in the Hotel Leland.

A new strike on Grange creek, near the Howard mine. The owners can pound out gold enough from the rock to pay the running expenses.

Virtue & Mackin's delivery wagon took a spin last week in the vicinity of Milton avenue. The wagon is a subject for the junk pile.

Some new developments on Mt. Reuben the last week. To see the amount of freight that goes from our town every day is surprising.

We have no sickness to report. Everybody is well. No friction in our peaceful vicinity. Farmers are busy; our school will open tomorrow.

People live easier here than in the eastern states. As we don't have the cold weather here, buildings don't have to be so warm to shelter stock, if they have sheds they are in luck.

Our merchants are doing a big business as miners are laying in their supplies. Virtue & Mackin sell as cheap as any store in Southern Oregon. Wilson also carries a good stock of goods.

We read of different rivers north of us that have fewer grays. Our creeks and rivers here are pure and free from all fever germs, as we have no stagnant water. The streams are fed by large springs.

We are very much surprised at an editorial in the Oregonian, regarding pension legislation, pensioning the old veterans of '91 to '93. A good reprint paper should print editorials in favor of the old veterans.

The Browning brothers are prospecting for the Lewis Co. They have got some good traces also one good ledge that promises to be a good strong one. Those boys understand their business, having been born and raised amongst the quartz.

Robert Crockett has returned from the north. We did not learn how far north he went, but it was surmised that he went to find the north pole. We think Robert will find the pole as soon as Lieutenant Perry with less expense.

We see Bryan keeps up his free silver talk. After election, when we elect a republican president, then he will ask his faction of the democratic party what he shall do next, for he will be at sea. When he, and others of the democratic party see the amount of money they use in the U. S. treasury, that should be a lesson for him, also others.

We are having nice, warm weather, good for vegetation, also grass. When we read of the great floods in the eastern states, also other places, we are thankful that we are in Oregon, the land of promise. This country has been settled in parts since '48, although some came here earlier, and since the earliest settlement we have never had a failure of crops—always enough and some to export. We have never had any cyclones; stock in a big degree, makes its own living, as some cattlemen never provide for their stock, their loss is small.

The Grange creek bridge has been raised so the high water will not carry it away. Grass is growing nicely. Wide Awake.

Wilderville Notes.

Little Mildred Lovelace was on the sick list a few days last week.

Miss Pearl Lewis was on the sick list a couple of days last week.

Bird Boath of Grants Pass visited a few days last week in our vicinity.

Miss Ethel Robinson has been quite sick the past week, but is improving at the present.

James Hocking and Edna Woodard left here the first of the week for the Newhope mill, where they intend to log a few days.

Married—At the home of the bride's parents, October 14, Miss Mollena Joss and Mr. Breauste. The former is well known in this neighborhood and we wish the young couple a long and prosperous life.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis and little daughter arrived Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Hays at Murphy. It being the 30th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hays wedding. Young Mr. and Mrs. Hays returned with Mr. Lewis to visit for a few days.

A STING IN HIS WORDS.

The Manly Conduct of a Police Officer Who Might Be Retaliated For Abuse.

By far the most humiliating incident connected with the downfall of F. C. Andrews, vice president of the City savings bank of Detroit, was the manner of his arrest, says a Chicago paper. One of the many officers held by Andrews was that of police sergeant. He was a stern disciplinarian and had little pity for members of the force who violated the rules. Andrews' exposure of his $1,500,000 in bonds, most of which he had secured on occasion to rebuke one of the city detectives for some alleged neglect of duty, and he berated the officer roundly, giving him what is known in police circles as a severe "dressing down." By chance it became the duty of this same detective a few days later to take the bank officer into custody. Policemen who knew of the terrible scolding the officer had received from Andrews looked for a bitter retaliation in the way of words, but nothing of the kind occurred. The officer was polite and deferential in making the arrest, almost as much so as if he were taking orders from his superior instead of conveying him to jail. "I'm really sorry to do this, Mr. Andrews," he said, "but it's my duty." There was a sting in these simple words, however, that the bystanders did not appreciate, for in the scolding the detective had received from Andrews while police commissioner great stress was laid upon the necessity of a policeman doing his duty without fear or favor.

CONFISCATION IN MOROCCO.

When an Official Dies His Property and That of His Relatives Belongs to the Crown.

It is a custom in Morocco that all the property of an official reverts to the crown. The property which leads to such a result is simple, for the government argues that all fortunes thus accumulated consist of monies illegally retained by the authorities. A governor when appointed is probably possessed of no considerable assets. When he dies he may be a millionaire. Whence came this wealth? Squeezed most certainly from the tribes under his authority, and therefore amassed only by the prerogatives of the position in which the sultan had placed him. It has never at such a time that the government meant that these great fortunes might more honorably be returned to the people from whom they were stolen. The result is entire confiscation to the crown, including often such private property as his governor has appointed himself to possess before his appointment, not to mention, too, of the property of his relatives.

When the night falls in Morocco the crash brings down with them their families, even uncles and cousins and all connected with them, and it is not seldom that the sons of great governors who have been brought up in the luxuries of slaves and horses and retinues of mounted men, have to be begging in the streets.

WAY TO SAVE MONEY.

Young Man Who Wishes to Marry Takes to Shabby Dress of the Professional Cut.

"Perhaps you have noticed that I am doing the artistic stunt in the matter of my attire and personal appearance," said the engaged young man. "I have come to the conclusion that if I am ever to get married I must save money, and the only way I can save money is by denying myself things I like."

"Now, I have always been fond of dressing well, but that is a thing of the past. Instead, I am doing the genus pose. Notice my unkempt appearance. I wear my hair long and am raising a beard. I never learned to shave myself, you know, and that in itself is a considerable saving. I wear shabby black clothes, a flowing Windsor tie and an old soft hat with a very broad brim—the broader the better."

"The people who do not know me may take me for a tramp," he said, with a smile, according to the Philadelphia Record, but for their opinion I do not care. The people who do know me merely think I am becoming eccentric. In the meantime I am saving money, and that's the main thing."

Coffee Cigarettes.
They are the newest sort of smoke in Paris, and have been invented by intending beneficiaries of the human race who consider nicotine is deterring modern man. A correspondent explains that the new cigarettes contain a compound made of the ground bean, as might be imagined, but the leaf of the tree, fine, coarse or any cut, or manipulated after the birdseye method, according to taste. Coffee leaf smoking is said to be not only perfectly harmless, even if indulged in to the wildest excess, but it possesses the property, deemed by the inventors an unquestionable advantage, of imparting to those who practice it an intense and lasting desire for the flavor of tobacco. Lovers of the weed should beware how they trifle with the coffee cigarette.

Living in New York.
The question has often been asked how much it costs to live in New York city. It costs as much as one is willing to spend. One can live in a surprisingly small space. The rates are varying. The latest complaint puts the minimum figure at eight dollars a week for beds and food. The people who do not live in Madison avenue, the high-toned boarding house addresses ask $30 a week. Rooms also can be had at all prices. You pay in advance for everything.

Charles Dickens' office table, chair and looking glass and another high-back chair he used in the editor's office of All the Year Round were sold at auction in London lately for $23. The chairs were given by Dickens to his housekeeper, and sold by her to a collector.

WANTED—All persons knowing themselves indebted to E. J. Mahan on accounts, notes, etc., to call and settle for same. E. J. Mahan, Grants Pass, Ore.

It is rather needless to say that Marconi's splendid demonstration of trans-oceanic signaling means, in the near future, a big reduction in cable tolls. Marconi himself says that a word is worth a mile. But even this is a purely arbitrary figure. In England, where the public telegraph is not run to enrich rich people, it is possible to send a 12-word message anywhere in the kingdom for sixpence. There is no good reason why, with how they communicate, a 20-word message from New York to London, Paris, or Manila should not be sent and delivered for a dime, or for that matter, anywhere in the United States, says Paul Snyder in the monthly Review of Reviews.

The first coat is small. A wireless telegraph station is more complicated than an ordinary radio station, and costs more. But, needing neither cables, wires, insulators, nor poles the stations are practically the whole of the expense. Such an installation as on board the ocean ships probably would cost $200 and $300, at retail. The largest expense is a good industrial coil, which, for a 12-inch spark, costs between $150 and $200; the rest of the apparatus, any clever mechanic, once he has seen it and read the descriptions of which the scientific journals can, can rig up himself.

And the field is free. The shower of patents has been large. Sig Marconi alone has taken out 112. But they relate chiefly to minor improvements and special devices, which, while they often affect individual sales, are not a block, to others to try their hand. If, for example, Prof. Branly had patented his discovery, and had applied it to the reception of signals himself, instead of leaving that to Prof. Lodge and other, then we might have had another Bell telephone monopoly. As it is, wireless telegraphy has been made possible by men who do not take out patents, and whose work is not done for money.

HOW SHE RAISED THE FEE.
The Bride Was Determined to Get Married and She Paid the Priest's Hat.

A poor couple living in the Emerald vale went to the priest for marriage and were met with a demand for the marriage fee. It was not forthcoming. Both the consenting parties were rich in love and in their prospects, but destitute of financial resources. The father, who returned with the sum of money and the consent of all, when the party was taking place the newly made wife seemed a little uneasy.

"Anything on your mind, Catherine?" said the father.
"Well, your reverence, I would like to know if this marriage could not be spoiled now?"
"Certainly not, Catherine. No man can put you asunder."
"Could you not do it yourself, father? Could you not spoil the marriage?"
"No, no, Catherine. You are just my own now. I have nothing more to do with your marriage."
"That does me mind," said Catherine, "and God bless your reverence, and the ticket for your hat. I packed it up in the lobby and pawned it."

And the interest, too.
"The widow seems to take great interest in old goldware."
"She thinks that if she takes interest now she'll have the principal later," Stray Stories.
