SYNOPSIS

I-Grenfall Lorry, a American globs trotter, into acquaintance with a terminal trotter.

stumbles luto acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair are left behind when the flier stops for repairs in West Virginia. Chapter II—Lorry wires alread to hold the train. He and the unknown girl ride twenty miles at a tearing pace in a mountain coach. There is no lovemaking, but a near approach no lovemaking, but a near apprendit to it as the rolling stage tumbles the passengers about.

old gentleman, but in such a way that Grenfall had a distinct feeling that it was be who was to be honored. Aunt Yvonne smiled graciously, and he took his departure. While Hedrick was dressing the jagued little cut Granfall complacently surveyed the patient in the mirror opposite and said to himself a hundred times; "You lucky dog! It was worth forty gashes like this, By Jove, she's divine?

In a fever of eager haste be buthed and attired himself for dinner, the imperturbable Hedrick assisting. One query filled the American's mind, "I then: "I have set beside her! There can never again be such delight!"

It was 7 o'clock before his rather unusual tollet was completed. "See if they have gone to the diner, Hedrick." he said to the munservant, who de-"I don't know why he should be so very polite," observed Lorry, gaslag wonderingly after him. "I'm not a king. That reminds me. I must intromyself. She doesn't know me from Adam."

Hedrick returned and announced that they had just gone to the dining car and were awaiting him there. He hurried to the diner and made his way to their table. Uncle Caspar and his nicce were facing bim as be came up between the tables, and he saw, with no little regret, that he was to sit beside the nunt-directly opposite the girl, stood before them, howing. He saw the expression of inquiry in those deep, liquid eyes of violet as their gaze wandered over his bair.

"Your head? I see no bandage," she said repreachfully.

"There is a small plaster, and that is all. Only heroes may have dangerous nds," he sold laughingly.

"Is herolem in America measured by the plaster?" she asked pointedly. "In my country It is a joy and not a calamity. Wounds are the misfortune of valor. Pray be sented, Mr. Lorry-is tt not?" she said, pronouncing it quaintly. . He sat down rather suddenly on hearing her utter his name. How had she learned it? Not a soul on the train

"I am Caspar Guggenslocker, Permit me, Mr. Lorry, to present my wife and my niece, Miss Guggenslocker," said the uncle more gracefully than he had ever heard such a thing uttered before.

In a daze, stunned by the name-Guggenslocker-mystified over their acquaintance with his own when he and been folled at every fair attempt to learn theirs, Lorry could only mum ble his acknowledgments. In all his by. life he had never lost command of himself as at this moment. Guggenslocker!
