elebration of the birthday of the King of Siam, and character of the by Charlton Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Perkins of this place :

Bangkok, Siam, Nov. 16th, 1905. His Majesty, Chulalongkorn, King of Siam, celebrated his 52d birthday, and 37 years of reign over the Kingdom of Siam, the country of the saured white elephant.

Each year on this occasion the city is simply turned into a fairy land, everyone dons their best clothing and each tries to ontdo the other in decorating their homes and places of business. Every conceivable object part in the great drama of national held to be good in every way, but was decorated, while at night the city was aglow with millions upon millions of tiny cocoanat oil lamps, making a most weird scene as they twinlked in the breeze. The decorations this year far exceeded those of any previous year. Several of the large Wats (Pagodas) were covered with thousands of these tiny lamps, and as these structures towered above the surrounding buildings they appeared as tremendous pillars of fire.

The Siamese flag, red field and white elephant, decorated every conceivable object, and everywhere were to be seen the words "Long live the king!" The many street cars were so decorated that they seemed but a garland of flowers and shining beads speeding through the streets. On the front of one was a working
