* WHAT PEOPLE SAY

In conversing with the Courier ewsgatherer, Chas, Kingwell, the experienced florist who located in this city, last spring, took occasion to comment after this fashion: "I think Grants Pass has one of the ideal sites for a picturesque landscape to be found anywhere. Why, I have been over Europe, through Southern California and in various parts of this and other countries, where they boast of their scenery, but nowhere have I found anything that would surpass what we have right here at Grants Pass. But say, how I do wish that the citizens would beautify their home places. There is nothing they could possibly do that would cohance the attractiveness of the place more than to tear down the old fences and fix up neat lawns and make their yards beautiful. And it would pay them well to do so, for it would cause newcomers to stop and regard their place and should they desire to dispose of the same, these slight improvements would add very materially to the desirability of the property. And say, just one more thing let me suggest and that is that we all pull together. Let us silence the knockers and croakers and then we will soon build up a fine city, for we bave everything else to be desired. Nature has been bountiful in bestowing upon us all the resources beart could desire and now it devolves upon us to get in and put our shoulders to the wheel and make things go."
