Mr. Baldwin is enthusiastic over the looks of the country and predicts great development here within the next few years.

L. F. Lozier, one of the leading fruit growers of the Medford vicinity was in Grants Pass Saturday. He reports the quality of fruit there is fine and where not struck by frost the yield will be large. He also states that this is the last season they will be bothered with frost as all the commercial orchardists are preparing to smudge for frost.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kinney and daughter Marjorie and son Paul returned Sunday from Ashland, where they had been attending Chautauqua and visiting old friends. They also stopped off at Jacksonville where they visited both with Miss Amelia and Emil Britt, old friends. This stop included a stroll through the Britt park planted originally in 1853 and which contains a great variety of trees, including Lequoia Gigantic or California big tree which is 46 inches in diameter and 175 feet tall, is still growing and bids fair to rival its cousins in California. The grove also contains palm trees and the largest fig tree in the Rogue River valley. Mr. Kinney reports the roads for the most part in good shape though some points are needing attention.

Attorney Robert G. Smith went up to Medford Tuesday morning to look after legal matters.

LOCAL EVENTS.

R. C. Gilfillan is improving his residence at the corner of B and Fifth street by raising the roof and constructing cool and commodious sleeping apartments.

The Southern Pacific Co. has had a crew of men busy raising the siding at the Grants Pass Box Factory, which is a great convenience to the factory hands in loading cars.

Editor W. O. Span of the Sisson Headlight, died Thursday last week of peritonitis at the age of 60 years.

Funeral services were held on the following day under the direction of the Masonic lodge of which he was an honored member.

C. H. McKee, colporteur missionary for Southern Oregon, in charge of the colporteur wagon of the American Baptist Publication Society, arrived in Grants Pass Thursday evening from McMinnville, leaving the next day for Medford, which will be his headquarters for this district.

Supt. Turner announces that school will open September 14th. During the summer vacation he has been looking after his fruit farm two miles southeast of town where he has out 25 acres of apples, five acres Tokay grapes and five acres of cherries and peaches, which he reports are doing nicely.

County Judge Jewell succumbed to the warm weather last Wednesday and spent a good portion of the day in bed. However, he is on deck at his office this morning awaiting the pleasure of those young people who contemplate entering the matrimonial world and other official duties.

It is estimated that Medford and vicinity will ship 400 cars of fruit this season not withstanding that the late frosts bit some of the orchards. Some orchards not touched by the frosts, however, will produce a record crop this season. The pear crop will be somewhat lighter this season than usual.

Fritz Dean, while at work at the Cold storage plant last Monday night, about midnight fell from the roof of the building and as a result has since been confined to his home, Dr. Van Dyke who has been in attendance says the young man is getting along nicely and will soon be about. Miraculous as it may seem, no bones were broken.

Word has been received in Ashland that the petition asking for the consent of Alkader Teuble for the establishment of a temple of the order at Ashland, to be known as Hillah, has been granted. A committee of Portland Shriners will confer with officers of the new temple as to the jurisdiction of the latter, which may include all Southern Oregon south of Eugene and portions of Southern Oregon. Just when the new Shriners will be instituted cannot be told but it will be in the fall perhaps. Anyway it will be quite an occasion and will call for a pilgrimage of the Shriners from Portland to Ashland.

Five car loads of baled hops were shipped from this city last week for the London market. These hops were raised by Messrs. Flanagan and Cornell on their ranch west of town. The selling price was but five cents per pound, whereas the cost of raising is variously estimated at from 7 to 10 cents per pound. In the earlier days when prices were good, many men made immense sums of money growing hops in Josephine county but during the past few years prices have declined to such an extent that numerous hop growers have lost heavily and many vineyards have been dug up and the land planted to fruit and other crops.

Campers, have your wants supplied at Cramer Bros. Hardware Store.

R. H. DeArmond, who has been engaged in farming and cattle raising in Malheur county for a number of years, has just sold his holdings in that part of the state and arrived in Grants Pass last week to locate permanently somewhere in Josephine county. Mr. DeArmond is a brother-in-law of Supt. of Streets C. E. McLane of this city. During the past few days Mr. DeArmond has been interviewing farmers and others whom he has met relative to the organization of a co-operative company among the farmers for the construction of a supply irrigation ditch. No definite locality has been discussed. The principal thing is that irrigation is needed in Josephine county to bring out her possibilities. While a large amount of fruit of various kinds has been raised here without irrigation, it is quite generally conceded that irrigation would more than double the yield of the present acreage under cultivation.
