INCREASE IN LUMBER CUT AND THE REASON

Oregon and Washington produce more lumber than any other two states.
Figures of the lumber cut in 1907 compiled by the Bureau of Census and the Forest Service showed the largest total ever reported in the United States, exceeding by over 7 per cent the cut reported for 1906, until then the record year. This does not necessarily show a larger actual cut than in 1906, for the returns obtained last year were more complete than ever before. The figures themselves disclose some interesting facts.
In 1907, 28,850, mills made returns, and their production was over forty billion feet of lumber. This is believed to include 95 per cent of the actual cut.
In 1906, 22,398 mills reported about 37,500,000,000 feet. Since according to these figures nearly 29 per cent more mills reported last year than the year before, while the increase in production was only a little over 7 per cent, it might be thought the amount actually manufactured must have been greater in the earlier year. This however, would be a too hasty inference, it is almost wholly among mills of small individual output that the amount actually manufactured must have been greater in the earlier year. This, however, would be a too hasty inference, for it is almost wholly among mills of small individual output that the gain the number of establishments reporting has been made.
A classification of the returns by states and regions throws additional light on the situation. Individual changes, as for example the remarkable rise of Texas from eighth to third place among the lumber-producing states, are doubtless accounted for primarily by the greater accuracy of the 1907 figures; but in the majority of cases the advances and declines can be traced to specific influences.
Before the year closed the general business depression was severely felt in the lumber industry. It was not, however, the most important cause of falling off in the production of the year where a falling off occurred. For decline in production took place only in certain regions. The South is the region of greatest activity in lumber production and yellow pine the most important wood, forming 33 per cent of the entire cut of this country. The cut of yellow pine reported shows an increase of 13 per cent over that of 1906. In the early part of the year many of the southern mills cut so heavily that, in spite of the curtailed output which followed the business disturbance later, the total was greater than ever before. But in both the Lake states and the Northwest a smaller cut was reported than the number of mills reporting increased.
In the Lake states the falling off evidenced the waning supply of white pine. Michigan, which for many years led all the states in lumber production, and then gave way to Wisconsin, sank in 1907 from fourth to seventh place, while Wisconsin went from third to fifth. Minnesota as late as 1905 held fourth place. Last year it went from seventh to ninth. It was not until the latter '90's that the South displaced this group of states as the most important source of lumber supply. Since Southern pine is abundant in all the Atlantic states from the Carolinas to Texas, the region as a whole will doubtless maintain its leading position for some years, in spite of the fact that at the present rate the bulk of the timber will be gone in another decade; but in totals of production by individual states the leadership has since 1905 been held by Washington.
The figures of production show that during 1907 Washington fell off very decidedly from its huge cut of 1906, while Oregon is credited with a slight increase in its total. In the early part of the year Washington suffered from a car shortage and at the end the combined effects of business disturbance and higher freight rates had brought the industry to paralysis. Oregon kept up its cut because of its larger proportion of coastwise and foreign trade. These two states [together] produced more lumber than any other two states in the Union. It is a striking fact that though lumber prices have been steadily going up during the last half century, the per capita consumption of lumber has also been going up. In 1860, according to the best figures obtainable, the average consumption to each person in the country was 250 feet; in 1900, 460 feet and in 1907, 480 feet. This illustrates what has been found true the world over—that with industrial progress the demand for wood becomes greater and greater.

RELIEF CORPS AND G. A. A. NEWS NOTES

Southern Oregon Encampment Will Be Held at Jacksonville Next Year.

The Woman's Relief Corps held their semi-monthly meeting in their hall on Front street Saturday afternoon, September 12. A large membership was present.
The reports of the various Relief committees were most satisfactory, each member taking a just pride in her special work and last, but not least, is the social hour spent at the close of each corps meeting consisting of a short literary program and refreshments served by a prearranged committee in alphabetical order.
The Southern Oregon encampment G. A. R. held at Central Point last week was well represented by the Posts and Corps of the Rogue River Valley. The visiting G. A. R. from Grants Pass were Comrades Alverson, Holman, Morris, Mott, Moore, Peterson and Wade. From the W. R. C., President W. R. C., President Mrs. Goodnow, S. V., Mrs. Alverson J. V., Mrs. Morris, secretary, Mrs. Mary Hildreth and Mrs. Moore. The encampment next year will be held at Jacksonville, a unanimous invitation having been sent by the business men of Jacksonville to that effect.
Last week at Toledo, Ohio, there assembled in National convention, the 42d annual encampment of the Grand Army veterans and the 26th annual convention, Woman's Relief Corps. It is estimated there were fully 25,000 Civil War Veterans in line and what a parade it was! Says the Toledo Blade: "Spectators looked on with tear dimmed eyes at the broken ranks of a once glorious army—an army composed of loyal sons of a dauntless people—an army of heroes with a hero's soul in every eye and with hearts fired with a heroes purpose. Instead of the gallant host that in 1861 marched away to the beating of drums and carrying the flag they loved better than life, was a body of old men, lame and halt, weak and emaciated, bent with the weight of years."
Nearly every state in the union was represented, 44 departments being in line. Many of the old men were unable to complete the long four-hour march with its continuous ovations, and were forced to drop out, but each was tenderly cared for. Some of the more notable features of the G. A. R. parade: "As the veterans passed the High School, 120 girls, dressed in white, strewed their path with flowers, nature's beautiful emblems of love and peace. Before this ceremony, each of the marches had been given a boutonniere by the young ladies of the city as they formed in line."
It was, however, when the parade reached the junction of Collingwood and Jefferson avenues that the most inspiring sight of all met the gaze of the veterans, arranged in the form of a flag on a great elevated stand, were 3000 children in red, white and blue to represent stripes and the blue field. As the soldiers passed the children sang Freedom Triumphant and national airs to the accompaniment of deafening cheers from thousands of throats. The sight was one of a life time, never to be effaced from the memory of those who were present.
The 43d annual encampment will be held at Salt Lake City, next year. The new Grand Army officers are: Commander-in-chief J. Rent Hamilton, Toledo, O.; junior vice-commander-in-chief, Charles C. Rayce, Chico, Cal. surgeon general, G. Lane Taneyhill, Baltimore, Md., re-election; chaplain-in-chief, John F. Spence, Knoxville, Tenn.; On the morning of the parade the Woman's Relief corps through its new national secretary, Elizabeth Brown Daggett of New York, accompanied by the new national president Mary L. Gilman of Massachusetts presented the Grand Army of the Republic with a check for $1000 for its permanent fund. Mr. Daggett was applauded to the echo in her remarks which showed that since the organization of the Woman's Relief Corps it had expended over $3,200,000 in its work that it has a membership of 163,353 has no liabilities and has assets of over 25,000.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

"An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wecott, Vt. For sale by M. Clemens.
