

HENOLOGY OR POULTRY RAISING FOR PROFIT

Member of Fruitdale Grange Gives Some Good Pointers on the Subject.

In all fruit and farming sections poultry raising is a very desirable and profitable adjunct, and this portion of Josephine county is keeping abreast of other parts of the state in raising good fowls...

Henology is a new science. Every farmer is or should be interested in it. Heretofore he has left it to the women folks or the oldest boy; now he has found that he can make $1 a year per hen by a few simple rules...

The hen house was fixed up so that plenty of good fresh air was procured by having one side of the house open. The next thing he sprayed the henhouse thoroughly with a good lice killer...

Every morning when I go out to my hen house I find three or four of the hens turned on their backs, legs curled up, never to rise again. Please tell me what is the matter with them. After thinking long and earnestly over the matter a bright thought entered the head of the man into whose hands the letter had fallen to answer, and seizing a pen he wrote: "Dear Madam, your hens are dead."

Skimmed milk is very valuable for laying hens, so instead of wetting the mash with water he used milk. The Department of Agriculture has received a report from West Virginia which says, in the first test of 122 days 23 hens fed skimmed milk laid 1244 eggs as compared with 906 eggs laid by 212 hens fed by the mash mixed with water.

When he fed the hens he threw the grain among some straw and litter that he had placed on the floor of the shed. This gives his hens plenty of exercise during the winter months. He selected eggs from his best hens and hatched in the incubator. This he set very early so that his chickens came off the first of April. The pullets were fed so they would not be scrawny, and he was paid for his trouble by getting eggs the middle of October. He did not use any poultry tonic to weaken the digestive organs of his chickens, but kept them busy after their feed so they were t over fed but alert and active.

He has found out that cleanliness is the watchword. Hens do not get sick without a cause. The feed troughs should never be left with food to decay in them. Another thing, he found that all grit should be placed separate and not mixed with the food. His hens were fed alfalfa, cabbage leaves and clover. Too many cabbage leaves will cause the eggs to have a cabbage flavor. The average farm flock should lay an average of 150 eggs per year, even if there are some unwilling layers.

Why Suffer? Breathe Hyomei and Kill the Loathsome Catarrh Germs. Demaray makes this square deal offer because he is authorized to do so by the makers of Mi-o-na tablets and he is willing to have his system appear in the Courier because he knows the offer is genuine.

And while it may be that there are about eight cases in 100 that are too far gone for Mi-o-na to cure, we are willing and ready to take all the chances, and if Mi-o-na does not cure any dyspeptic can have his money back. Even with this liberal offer, Demaray will not have to refund but a very small percentage, because the incurable dyspeptics will find so much relief in Miona that they will once again look upon the sunny side of life and will continue to use Mi-o-na.

Now, reader, you may say how can the makers of Mi-o-na make such an offer. How do they know that 92 per cent of the users will be cured and that the other 8 per cent or the incurables, will be relieved? Why, it's all very simple. We've made this same offer in 1000 towns before we made it here, and we have figured out the percentages, so that when we make the statement we know it to be absolutely true.

"Mi-o-na tablets are truly great for anyone that has stomach trouble. I can not praise them too highly for what they have done for me."—Mrs. D. W. Bennett, Bucksport, Me. The price is only 50 cents a box. 11-20-20

The One He Liked Best. A country clergyman on his round of visits interviewed a youngster as to his acquaintance with Bible stories. "My lad," he said, "you have of course heard of the parables?"

"Yes, sir," slyly answered the boy, whose mother had inducted him in sacred history; "yes, sir." "Good!" said the clergyman. "Now, which of them do you like best of all?"

The boy squirmed, but at last, heeding his mother's frowns, he replied, "I guess I like that one where somebody loafs and fishes."—Argonaut.

New Hampshire. New Hampshire was first called Laconia, or Lacedaemon, a scholar among the New Englanders remembering that the Peloponnesus, the home of the Spartans and Argives, was mountainous; so was a portion of New Hampshire, hence the propriety of the name.

The men were holding an animated discussion. "You're a liar!" suddenly shouted one of them. "Well," responded the other, "make less noise about it. If you were a liar you wouldn't want the whole crowd to find out it, would you?"

"I tell you," said Simick, "men are getting so confoundedly deceitful these days that you can't trust your best friends." "And, what's worse," interrupted Borroughs gloomily, "you can't get your best friends to trust you."—Exchange.

"Edmund is the smartest child I ever saw," boasted the fond mother. "He is as keen as a razor." "Yes," spoke up grumpy grandpa; "he reminds me of a razor." "In what way?" "Why, he needs a strapping."—Chicago News.

"Ma, why don't you keep out of the parlor? Things are running smoothly now."

Electricity From Human Body. That electricity, heat and ether are one and the same fluid is the assertion of Frederick Hovenden of London, who also claims that every person exhales electricity from the finger tips and that he can take moving pictures of the process. To do this he fills a square glass box with cigarette smoke mixed with air. The experimenter thrusts a finger through a hole in the bottom of the glass box, and a powerful arc lamp is immediately seen issuing from the finger tips and photographed.—Popular Mechanics.

Saved the Edition. Sir Frederick Gori Ouseley used to tell a story about the famous Clarendon Press, at Oxford, which shows how very easily serious blunders may be made. It was when a new edition of the Bible was coming out, and not till the final revision of the text, when in another moment it would have been irrevocably fixed in immortal type, that the printer was discovered to have given the following "free" rendering of 1 Corinthians xv, 52: "The trumpet shall sound, * * * and we shall be changed."

The Usual Treatment. "Look at that boy!" I exclaimed. "Sherlock Holmes' keen gaze followed my own. The urchin now sketched in pencil on the drawing room wall. Now he carved his name on the piano. Anon, laughing lightly, he spilled milk on a Louis Seize fauteuil. "In heaven's name!" I cried. "Calm yourself, my dear Watson," Sherlock Holmes interposed. "There is no need for interference here. Do you not understand? That villa has been rented furnished for the season."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Not if It Were My Boy." Some years ago the late Horace Mann, the eminent educator, delivered an address at the opening of some reformatory institution for boys, during which he remarked that if only one boy was saved from ruin it would pay for all the cost and care and labor of establishing such an institution as that. After the exercises had closed, in private conversation, a gentleman rallied Mr. Mann upon his statement and said to him: "Did you not color that a little when you said that all that expense and labor would be repaid if it only saved one boy?" "Not if it were my boy," was the solemn and convincing reply.

An Amazed Woman. A woman who had an Arabic glass cup of the fourteenth century and did not know its value took it to the British museum. After due consideration the expert, to her surprise, said that, though the museum did not want it, it might be worth $2,000. The woman shuddered, because she had been carrying in a crowded London omnibus a bit of glass worth so much money and it had miraculously escaped smashing. Finally, wanting money more than Arabian glass, she sent the object to an auctioneer's. Fancy her amazement when, starting at $2,500, the Arabic cup went by leaps and bounds and was finally knocked down for the nice sum of $6,500. The bidding of two rival collectors did the business.
