

W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. meets this Friday, January 8, and every alternate Friday during the year. Let our white ribboners resolve this first week of the new year to make it the best year we have yet known.

Our Loyal Temperance Legion was ever more promising and the members are looking forward to a year of profit to themselves and of help to others.

Medford is to have an election Jan. 12th. They are to vote on an amendment to the Charter which, if carried, will give that city no special privilege to sell liquor.

The liquor men there are using for argument the fact that "blind drunks" are tolerated in our own city.

Last year there were 32 applications to the Salvation Army for help as against 11 this year. Will the men who believe that only as saloons are allowed, can people live, please explain why the number applying for relief, has decreased nearly two-thirds?

Bankers tell us that deposits are better than formerly; and when they take into consideration the financial panic just passed, they can attribute it to no other cause than the fact that Josephine county has no legalized saloons.

Organizers say that where the licensed saloon is it is almost impossible to organize fraternal orders, whereas, in places without the legalized curse, prosperous lodges have been organized without difficulty.

A saloon keeper, talking to a group of men gathered in front of his business, said: "I believe this county will be dry and I don't care if it is. I hope the whole state will go dry, then I'll go into some other business."

We wonder why this man waits for the people's votes to put him out of his present business? Is it because he wants to serve a little longer the master whose product he sells?

An amendment by Mr. Houston of Tennessee was adopted by congress without opposition making it an offense to deposit in or send through the mails intoxicating liquors.

Two more Ohio counties dry—2295 majority. Suffolk, Va. voted out saloons by 257 majority. Gov. Campbell of Texas is determined to enforce the Sunday closing law. San Antonio is reported as having all saloons closed December 20th, the first time in over a century.

Twenty of the 30 cities in Massachusetts and 260 of its 321 towns are "dry."

Let us look forward in our vision of the "Morning Star and Promised Land, thus shall the New Year find itself in ever widening glory which invests the higher fulfillments of life.

If one has a dairy of from twenty to thirty cows there is little question that a milking machine of some responsible make would prove both a time and money saver.

The three e's—cows, corn and clover—constitute a triumvirate of agricultural influences that mean contentment and prosperity for any section where they are duly and properly recognized.

While the state of Michigan is not a leader in stock raising, grain growing or dairying, she does lead in the production of the white bean and of celery and ranks second in the production of sugar beets.

New York ranks first both in the number and value of her dairy cows. Iowa comes second, Wisconsin third and Illinois fourth. In New York the average value of dairy cows is placed at $33.50, in Illinois $35, while in Wisconsin and Iowa it is $30.50.

The strong flavor of several kinds of wild fowl may be reduced to a minimum by drawing carefully and just before cooking soaking for an hour or two in salt water. Until the game is drawn it will keep best by hanging in a cool place where the air is stirring.

The scrub bull is at once the cheapest as well as the most expensive animal which can be kept on the farm—cheapest because he can be had for a song and most expensive because he has few or no valuable traits to transmit to his offspring, which, like him, can only be scrubs.

If the working team which has been on a heavy ration is given a layoff it is well to reduce the bill of fare materially, especially if corn has been quite a part of it. A beef steer can stand over a corn trough all day long and experience no trouble, but it is different in the case of a horse. He is often upset if he gets just a little too much hearty feed.

Keeping the house at 68 degrees F. during the winter months may seem a trifle cool at first, but when one gets used to it it is a much more whole-some temperature than 72 to 74, a degree of heat that is to be found in all too many homes. Moreover, one who breathes the cooler air in the home is much less likely to contract colds on going out of doors.

It is usually safe to buy land in sections where hard wood timber abounds and where clover and blue grass find a congenial home. They indicate fertility of soil as well as a sufficient rainfall, both of which are necessary in successful farming.

Plans for the winter care of the flock of poultry should include provision for a scratching shed in which the hens may exercise every day when the weather will permit. Scatter their grain in the litter and note the apparent enjoyment which they get in digging it out. It will be surprising, too, how many days of the winter months they will spend in such an open shed.

A winter ration for the milk cow that will answer the purpose very well is one-half pound of oil or gluten meal, two pounds of ground oats and corn and two pounds of bran at a feed twice a day, the amount fed depending, of course, somewhat upon the assimilative capacity of the cow and the amount of her milk flow.

It is a rule generally accepted by raisers of cattle and hogs that to realize a fair profit from his efforts the farmer should receive as many dollars per hundredweight for his beef and pork as the corn fed is worth in dimes.

It is always a disappointment to the passerby as he views the farm premises to see things about the place wrong end to—a lot of slovenly willows in the front yard, where the lawn ought to be, and the area used as a runway for pigs, ducks and chickens and a harbor for all kinds of played out machinery instead of being fenced off and devoted to shapely trees, flowers and shrubs.

She doesn't regret to being inconspicuously conspicuous when she is sure that her own sense well, her hair is well done and her military becoming. Anything is a miracle that you never thought about and can't understand, but that has never- less come to pass. The way to be happy is to tell trouble and worry to go hang and, having told them, see that they do it.
