CHARLTON PERKINS PUBLISHES NEW BOOK

"Travels," From Grandeurs of the West to Mysteries of the East.

Is the title of a new book of travels, which has just been completed on the H. S. Crocker Press, of San Francisco. The author, Charlton B. Perkins, is well known in Grants Pass and for many years was a resident here, but of recent years his time has been taken up in traveling to various parts of the world, and in the past six years he has made three and a half circuits of the globe in gathering data and information for his present book.

This third issue, contains 482 pages of interesting text of sixteen different countries, with over four hundred instructive illustrations of these various countries. It is a book that gives delightfully crisp and concise essays of historical, geographical, commercial, social and hundreds of other facts which will not be found in any other publication of the world today. The present book is the original idea of the author and was compiled after close observation as to the requirements and knowledge necessary for the around the world travelers, and the book marks the first one of its kind ever published, and has met with great success, being endorsed by Charles Scribner & Son, Brentannos, Thos. Cook & Son and by several of the leading educational institutions of the United States.

Mr. Perkins' descriptive writings, which have become very well known during the past few years, make you imagine yourself actually before the objects of which he writes, and his present book will be found intensely interesting and to those who would know more of the world on which we reside and they should, by all means, possess a volume of these travelogues.

The countries embraced in the present publication are North America, Hawaiian Islands, Japan, China, Trans-Siberian Route, Philippine Islands, Cochon China, Kingdom of Siam, Straits Settlements, Island of Java, Burma, India, Egypt, Europe, Paris, London, New York City, Seattle, San Francisco.

The lurid Orient, with its mystic lands, has stood sponsor during centuries of slow advancement for the most remarkable epoch in the annals of the world's history. It has been the mother of invention, of highly accomplished arts, education, and the cradle of the great religions of Mohammed and Buddha.

This descriptive book has a distinct educational value for the home and the school. It affords the young people an opportunity to become familiar with the quaint people in various foreign lands. It provides travel, not for the body, but for the mind. You feel yourself actually present and knowing accurately famous scenes—scenes characteristic of various nations thousands of miles away—all to be seen and enjoyed without leaving your comfortable fireside.

One of the neatest things in the way of conveyances seen around the streets lately is the wagon and goat rig belonging to Naomi McGrew, daughter of N. E. McGrew. This little Miss drives through town as proudly as though she had a coach and four and excites a great deal of admiration from people on the street. The driver, the goat and the wagon make a very attractive combination.

The S. P. bunch of baggagemen are getting back where they belong this week. Herman Wallace, who had been excused for a few days to nurse a damaged eye, has resumed his duties of juggling baggage between here and Dunsmuir.
