Leipzig University in 1822.

The Burschenschaft Blatt in an article devoted to Leipzig university publishes the "students' debt restrictions" which were in vogue in 1822. According to this, a student's debts were limited as follows: For books, $12; music and musical instruments, $4; writing material, $1; wearing apparel, $20; material for clothes, $5; watchmaking and other artisan labor, $6; bookbinding, $3; shoemaking, $12. The list also limited the student's debts for beer to $10 and for all other beverages to $1 a year. As to luxuries, no student could remain in good standing if he owed more than $4 in a year for articles coming under this head.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Ten of the young friends of Miss Ella Kenyon gathered at her home on Foundry street Wednesday evening to help celebrate her sixteenth birthday. The event was given as a surprise to the young lady and was a decidedly successful and pleasant affair. Miss Kenyon was remembered with several beautiful and useful gifts, which were gratefully received and appreciated by her. Jolly games, music and refreshments made the time pass merrily away, and when the guests departed for home it was with a feeling of having spent a most delightful evening with their young friend. Those present were Misses Ella Kenyon, Verda Gilman, Ollie Patterson, Edna Crawford, Florence Buell, Marjorie Wilcox, Hilda Lamphair; Messrs. Herbert MacKenzie, Willard, Wilson, Chas. Leech and Gordon Paxton.

The people on Tenth street invited their friends to come to the grove and celebrate on the morning of the Fourth. The result was a turnout of about 90 people, big and little, old and young. The entire grove was very prettily decorated with flags, bunting and big red, white and blue stars. Seats had been arranged, a platform built and an organ brought for the occasion. The entire day, beginning at 10 o'clock, was one round of thorough enjoyment. A program was rendered, consisting of addresses, readings, songs and recitations. A surprise was sprung on all by the reading of a lengthy paper which purported to be an interview with most of those present to learn how much they knew about the Fourth. The result was surprising. At noon a big dinner was laid, after which all who wished repaired to Blanchard's field and had a game of ball. We don't know how many errors there were. They were the most important, being the most frequent. After the game the company consumed eight gallons of ice cream, sang songs and then had supper, which was as plentiful as the dinner. After playing games, there is no way of telling what would have come next, but darkness fell and home the crowd went.

Wednesday evening, June 29, was the second anniversary of the First Oregon Legion, National Protective Legion and in honor of the event the members gave a rousing celebration at the M. W. A. hall on Front street. The hall was decorated in a manner which caused much admiration from members and visitors, presenting a beautiful sight to over 100 people on their arrival. A splendid program had been prepared for the occasion and this was rendered in a most praiseworthy manner, consisting of devotions, instrumental and vocal music, dialogues and tableaux. After the rendering of the program the guests were bidden to the spacious banquet hall, which was twice filled before all had been served from the tempting array of good things spread before them. This evening's entertainment was counted one of the most thoroughly successful and enjoyable events that has occurred in lodge circles for many days and all present are loud in their praise of the entertaining ability of this order. The legion was instituted in this city June 29, 1908, with 16 members. It now numbers over 100, with a rapidly growing membership and is in a prosperous condition.

One of the exceptionally pleasant picnic parties which left this city July Fourth was the crowd of twenty-two young people who went to Woodville to spend the day. The party, chaperoned by Mrs. Ernest Lister and Mrs. A. H. Gunnell, went up on the motor car at 7 o'clock in the morning and picnicked in the cool, pleasant grove at Woodville, returning to Grants Pass on the late train. A part of the day was spent on Evans creek, where the picnic dinner was served and fishing and various other sports indulged in, after which the young people came up to town and took in many of the Fourth of July sports, and the whole day was given over to a rare, good time, with the result that the picnic was one of the most thoroughly enjoyable events ever held by the young people of this city. Those in attendance besides the chaperones were Misses Iva Gunnell, LaCosta Mangum, Alma Wolke, Fanchon Shinn, Cornelia Vivian and Julia Galbraith, Merle Caldwell, Geneva Myers, Helen Lister; Messrs. Henry Norton, Fritz Dean, Roy Cheshire, Don Calvert, Roubais Richey, Clark Morey, James Groves, Geory McCracken, Roy Baynard and A. H. Gunnell.

The reception tendered by Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Leech to the members and congregation of the New-man M. E. church on Wednesday evening was one of the most delightful events which has occurred in the social line of the city for some time. The reception was given at the parsonage and this is the first time that the minister and his wife have entertained in their new home. The hours were from 8 to 10:30 o'clock and during that time fully 250 people were welcomed and served with dainty refreshments. Besides the pastor and his wife the reception committee consisted of the heads of the different departments of the church, who were lined up on the verandah to welcome the guests as they arrived. The affair was charmingly informal and all present were delighted with the pleasant social evening so thoughtfully planned by their pastor and his wife. This Thursday afternoon Rev. and Mrs. Leech will hold another reception, this one being for the children of the Sunday school under 15 years of age and it is sure to be a very pleasant affair as Rev. and Mrs. Leech excel in the art of entertaining and all who visit their home are certain of a welcome.

On last Friday afternoon Mrs. Fred A. Williams was the charming hostess at her home on M street, entertaining in honor of her cousin, Mrs. Bertram Stone, who has been visiting in this city. The Williams' home was decorated in an artistic and patriotic manner with roses, sweet peas and the national colors, the whole presenting a scene of beauty and showing an admirable spirit of loyalty which added much to the pleasure of the occasion. The entertainment of the afternoon was in the form of a progressive whist party, and the guest prize, a beautiful hand painted picture, was awarded to the guest of honor, Mrs. Bert Stone. Mrs. C. L. Clevenger received first prize, a lovely hand painted dish, while Mrs. M. Clemens was consoled with a bunch of fire crackers with which to celebrate the Fourth. Mrs. Williams served her guests with delicious ice cream and cake and entertained in so pleasing a manner that the afternoon passed all too quickly to those in attendance, who were, besides the hostess, Mrs. G. H. Carner, Mrs. P. B. Herman, Mrs. G. H. Donnell, Mrs. Bertram Stone, Mrs. F. B. Olding, Mrs. H. N. Starr, Mrs. James Holman, Mrs. Arthur Harth, Mrs. Harry Andrews, Mrs. Jos. Moss, Mrs. M. Clemens, Mrs. H. C. Sampson, Mrs. Anna Horn, Mrs. Roy Bartlett and Mrs. C. L. Clevenger.

The members of the Salvation Army and their friends held a pleasant Fourth of July picnic in the Rogue River park on Monday. The day was spent in pleasant social converse, with games for the children and a picnic dinner at noon.

The members of the Loyal Bereans (Second Timothy, 2-15) of the Christian church held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Macy on Fifth street, Tuesday evening. The novel and pleasing part of the meeting was the taking of refreshments by every member, these being spread on a long table on the lawn, where supper was served. The supper was heartily enjoyed, both from the fact that it was served in the open air with all the good things imaginable on the board and also on account of the happy, light-hearted spirit which prevailed, making the evening one of pleasant social pastime. After supper the business was attended to and all departed for home, as most of the company were rather tired from the effects of their Fourth of July celebrating, therefore the meeting did not hold so late as usual.

Arthur Conklin and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Field, Misses Edith Bannard and Edna Carrick composed one of the numerous Fourth of July picnic parties that enjoyed the day on the banks of Rogue river. The greater part of the day was spent at Savage rapids, where a picnic dinner was enjoyed. Later they drove up the river, and returning home crossed the river on the new bridge at Woodville, enjoying the hospitality of that town for a time, and returned home in the cool of the evening.

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN NEAR CENTRAL POINT

On Tuesday evening a man was killed one mile west of Central Point by one of the passing trains, presumably the first section of No. 16. The head was severed completely from the body and the left arm torn off, while the whole body was frightfully mangled. Nothing definite has been learned of the man except that the name Thomas G. Smith was found on papers in his pocket. When picked up a bottle of liquor was found with the body and it is presumed that the man was in an intoxicated

The inquest was held at Central Point this Thursday and the firemen and engineers of the two sections, together with other members of the train crew were in attendance.

DELIVERED ADDRESS AT EARLY CELEBRATION

Dr. D. S. Holton, of Merlin, attended the Fourth of July celebration and in a conversation he referred to the first celebration held in this section at Brownstown, now in Josephine county, but at that time in Jackson county, in 1857. The doctor delivered one of the addresses, the other being given by "Gov." Geo. E. Briggs, who settled in the Alt-house district, where his family was raised. At this celebration Jos. K. Vincent read the Declaration of Independence.

The doctor wore the uniform which characterized him as a military man, and he can tell many tales of interest and of great historical value. His military career commenced when a mere boy, but it was short lived. He enlisted at Lake county, Ind., 1846, in Capt. Jos. P. Smith's company of 120 men, but before they left for the front the war had ceased.

Public libraries keep boys home at night by giving them good stories of adventure. They give pupils interesting books to aid their school work in history and geography and make better citizens of them by enlarging their interests in knowledge of their country and its growth.

We learn that there was a large gathering of picnickers at Mr. Bratton's on the old J. K. Moore place near Wilderville the Fourth.

Three Generations Celebrate.

There were three generations on each side of the house represented at the Fourth of July celebration held at the Emmett Conger home on Applegate Monday, the event being also the celebrating of Mrs. Conger's birthday. There were also present numerous relatives and friends. They all enjoyed the visiting and games and when the dinner was spread under the old maple tree, all responded promptly and the good things for which that section of the country is famous disappeared rapidly. A big swing was erected and helped to entertain. When the day was spent all returned home, after wishing the hostess many happy returns of the day.
