A CEMENT PIPE AND BLOCK FACTORY

The ground has been secured and the machinery has been ordered for one of the most modern cement pipe, cement building block, pressed brick and general cement and manufactured stone plants on the Pacific coast. The pipe machine will have a capacity of 7500 lineal feet per day of drain pipe, from four up to sixteen inches in diameter, and 1500 feet per day of 24 to 48 inch pipe. This means steady employment for from eight to twelve men, with no doubt an increased force later on, as many people are contemplating building pressed brick and cement block houses during this summer, to say nothing of the large amount of drainage, sewer and tile pipe to be used by the city proper, as well as by South Grants Pass, where, we understand, that a complete system of piping is to be laid.

This plant, when completed, will represent the outlay of many thousands of dollars, all of which shows the unlimited confidence that some of our old residents have in the future of Grants Pass.

The gentlemen who have undertaken this enterprise are: E. T. McKinstry, C. W. Courtney and J. E. Hair, all of whom have been residents of Grants Pass for some years, watched its progress and are showing their foresight by their faith in its future.

tions for cement sewer pipe.

The matter of safety of public buildings was reported verbally by the fire and water committee. It was stated that the skating rink had no rear exit and that the front doors instead of opening outward were sliding. The committee also reported that there were no fire escapes attached to the Grants Pass hotel and that the rear stairway at the opera house was not properly lighted and was often blocked.

Instructions were given to the street superintendent to notify all owners of barns to clean up the alleys near their barns of all refuse and to keep them clean.

The auditor and police judge was instructed to proceed at once with a collection of all delinquent sewer assessments.

An ordinance requiring anyone wishing to construct any kind of building to first secure a permit was passed. The kind of building, approximate cost and where it is to be constructed is to be specified. A permit to move any building is also required.

The First National bank was granted permission to remodel their bank building and to J. L. Calvert to remodel the Hotel Layton building.

The auditor in his monthly report stated that the collections amounted to $808.91. Of this amount $222 were for licenses and $9. for fines.

DIED

GALVIN—At Portland, Ore., Monday, February 27, 1911, Mrs. Helen Galvin, aged 58 years.

The remains were brought to this city Tuesday and funeral services held at St. Ann's Catholic church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Father Frances Mayeur officiating. Mrs. Galvin was a noble woman who was esteemed and loved by all who knew her. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. May Norris, of Portland, three sons, Thomas Galvin, of this city; John Galvin, of California, and Maurice Galvin. Her husband died in this city several years ago, and the remains of Mrs. Galvin were laid to rest by his side at Granite Hill cemetery Wednesday morning.

J. M. Simmons was in from Waldo Thursday and was doing business with the Grants Pass merchants and shaking hands with friends while here.

Miss Vi Thompson came down from her home at General Point Wednesday and on Thursday left for Crescent City, where she is to teach school.

Dr. C. H. Smith came down from Gold Hill Wednesday evening, bringing with him Gee Soon, a Chinaman who had recently located at that place. The Chinaman was suffering with pneumonia and was brought to the hospital in this city for treatment, but the case was too far advanced for medical aid and he died Thursday morning. Relatives in California have been notified.

The George Cramer house on Third street, just above A street, was sold yesterday to Dr. H. C. Dixon. It is understood that the doctor intends to thoroughly modernize the exterior of the house and greatly beautify the grounds. As bituminous macadam will be used on Third street Dr. Dixon gets a well located home. A. N. Parsons negotiated the sale.

The Bishop clothing store has an unusually artistic window decoration today. No special occasion is featured, but the attractive arrangement of the fine array of spring clothing causes the passers-by to stop and "take notice." In the north window is a catchy display of shirts. The south window contains a line of choice underwear and the center glass covers outer garments, which are arranged in a manner that proves the ability of the window dresser in showing to advantage the style and elegance of the suits, footwear, etc. A large bunch of carnations in each window gives an added artistic touch. Bishop & Company's store is known for its beautiful, modern window dressing, which is in keeping with the up-to-date way of the Southwestern manager, has of doing business.

MANY RICH MINES

mile apart. The first one, which is near the river, is called the "Yank" ledge. This is already famous because of the rich mines which have been opened on it. The largest vein so far discovered is the Alameda, the Rand and the Allen, all belonging to the same company. The next ledge has the Sugar Pine, one of the first quartz mines to be worked. Dan Green and his brother, George, took a large amount of gold out of this property in the early days with an arrastra and the mine is said to be very rich. The Oriole is on this same ledge and is already a producer and a paying proposition. Only a short time ago a strike was made on this property which has made for it a great reputation. The Golden Wedge is another mine on this same ledge and this Mr. Harvey thinks will become a producer when sufficient depth is reached. This mining man says that Galice will be one of the best mining camps in the world when development work extends down from 1000 to 2000 feet. He speaks in the highest terms of the Oriole, because its managers are doing intelligent development, and he gives the Alameda as an illustration of what depth will do. This mine has a shaft which has reached a depth of something over 600 feet and the history of its sinking is that the ore has improved as depth was reached. This practical miner loses no opportunity to advise mineowners in the Galice district to spend their money in going down. He believes in the old saying, "Sink deep to find the gold." The Alameda has been doing this and Mr. Harvey is of the opinion that it will become one of the richest producers in the whole country.

He talks most interestingly of that famous mine, the Old Channel, which he recently sold to eastern parties. The mine he tells about has been worked continuously for sixty-four years and has enough rich gravel to last a hundred years more. There is another property, the Lewis and Jewell mine, which is a dredging proposition. This has very rich pay dirt and at one time returned from $75 to $125 to the man. The owners last year made a test with a small dredging machine and it was so successful that they were encouraged to install a large up-to-date dredging machine. In his talk he mentioned the old Greenback mine, 18 miles northwest of Grants Pass, which was a great producer for a long time, when it fell into inexperienced hands and the ledge was lost, but the original manager is again in charge and he is producing gold as of yore. This, he thinks, is evidence that experience is highly important in every mining proposition.

On the same ledges with the Galice district, and toward California, are to be found some very valuable properties in the Waldo district. The Waldo section has a history that goes back into the seventies. It has deep gravel and the whole district is rich in placer gold. A few months ago the several properties in the locality were taken over by the Waldo Consolidated Mining company, of which O. A. Turner is president and Colonel Frank M. Leland general manager. They have under this company the Wimer, the Osgood placer and the noted Simmons-Cameron-Logan property. The business of mining will be carried on a large scale in the future and by the latest and most popular methods. This particular company has men of experience in this kind of work and it is expected that the coming season will prove highly satisfactory in gold production. The values in the ledges spoken of, extending the whole distance from Galice to the California line, are sufficient to pay the national debt if they could be saved. The gold and other valuable minerals make Josephine county the leading mining section in Oregon. This great wealth can be secured by men of experience who have the necessary capital to develop these properties.

Space will not permit us on this occasion to mention many other mines and mining sections tributary to Grants Pass, but that nearly every part of Josephine county has developed gold in paying quantities is a fact well known to mining men.

KERBY HEARD FROM

Away back in the fifties little old Kerby was singing to the tune of the pick and shovel of a thousand miners. For a long, long time the world thought little old Kerby was dead, and she was dead to the world. She laid the shovel and pick beside her and slept the sleep of an age till now a new generation is awaking her with the sound of the new miner's drill, and little old Kerby will dance again to the jingle of gold like Feather River, the Comstock, Tonopah, Alaska and the African dyke—Little Old Kerby has got the be heard. It will be something new—fruits and flowers and—mines! In the good old days Kerbyville mines were a long ways from home like all good mines should be. Not so now! Every mine has been a surprise. Boys! boys! Kerbyville on the banks of the Illinois! MAX FIGURES. Grants Pass, Ore.

Miss Mattie McGee went to Ashland Friday morning to spend several days with relatives.

W. H. Wann returned Friday morning from his business trip to Salem and Portland, where he had spent several days with W. B. Sherman.
