

THE LEONARD ORCHARD CO.

Successful Chicago Builder Developing Great Tracts of Rogue River Lands, Establishing Orchards, Dairies and Diversified Farming.

The faith in the soil and climate of the Rogue River valley has brought about results in fruit growing and general farming which have surprised specialists in these lines in many sections of the country and given this part of Southern Oregon a reputation second to no part of the Pacific coast. Among the men who have been attracted to this country is C. M. Leonard, of Chicago, who had made a reputation as a practical builder of many structures such as the Multnomah Hotel in Portland and large buildings in other great cities. Last season Mr. Leonard became the purchaser of land in Josephine county and made arrangements to have it improved. Among other properties were the Moses and Heath ranches, adjoining places at the confluence of the Applegate and Rogue rivers, five miles below Grants Pass. This latter property extends west to the Applegate river and the two contain 310 acres. He also secured the Penn-Oregon ranch, a finely located property containing 1,500 acres, but his first work was the improvement of the farms first named and the wonderful development which has been accomplished within the last few months is the admiration of the people of Grants Pass and in fact the whole county. It has certainly attracted attention far and wide. The work was done in the name of the Leonard Orchard company. There had been but little clearing done on the property and therefore it presented a broad field of achievement in the line of development. At this point it became necessary to procure the services of a man who could handle the work. Mr. Leonard, being a man of experience, accustomed to large undertakings, knew how important it was to secure the right person for the place—one who could do the practical part and would not need looking after. His experience with this class induced him to select T. E. Hill, a man who in his time had built irrigation ditches, constructed railroads, and been a man experienced in many lines of work. He had been accustomed to the handling of men and was practical as an organizer.

Arriving on the grounds, it was not long before Mr. Hill assembled his tools and machinery and made his plan of operation. His men were engaged on January 12 and the work of clearing the land was commenced with a well organized force. There were two donkey engines and these were lined up to the virgin forest, many of the trees of which were from two to four feet in diameter. The donkey engines not only pulled these trees over, but took them out by the roots. The stumps were cut from the trees and the logs were cut into cordwood and stove wood lengths with a drag saw operated with a gasoline engine. The wood was split and hauled to being piled up out of the way. At the present time there are 2,000 cords of this wood on hand ready for the market. The stumps were hauled away and piled up by the monster donkey engines, which in turn went forward to pull out other trees then followed the motor and axe in hand, cutting and grubbing the roots if any were left, thus making ready for the breaking plow. Then came the drag, levelers and roller and when this was completed the soil was in fit condition for whatever crops were desired for planting.

This work was followed during the mild winter weather for which this valley is noted. By the time spring came there were 200 acres of this cleared land put in crops of various kinds. Some of it was sown to cow peas, which crop grew luxuriantly, and it was turned under and the land planted to other crops. The peas put the soil in the condition and made it available for whatever uses it might be desired.

There were forty acres of the old cleared land in hops at the time the farm was purchased. The new crop is 40 acres in corn, 25 acres in stock beans and mammoth Chilian squashes, pumpkins and sugar cane. There were thirty acres in Lady Washington bush beans, 150 acres in potatoes. Besides these, many small crops were put in as an experiment with a view to knowing what will pay best next year.

The work of clearing will be continued until all the land is available for agricultural purposes except 40 acres in a slightly location, which are to be reserved for a park. New roads through the property will be constructed and these follow the line of a private telephone system which has already been built and installed. This connects all parts of the two ranches with the manager's office and will soon connect with the Grants Pass line. Everything on these two places is done in a practical way and the management is as rigid as that of a military organization.

It is the purpose of the company to next year raise crops which prove best adapted to the land. The whole property, as far as cleared of timber, is under irrigation. The Heath ranch comes under the Red Bluff ditch system, which takes its water from the Applegate several miles above, and the balance is under the new system which has been installed by the Leonard Orchard company, the water for which is pumped from Rogue river and stored in part in a large reservoir, located on the highest point, which has a capacity of approximately 2,000,000 gallons. From this it is piped to the land at such times and places as may be desired. This irrigation plant is put in in a practical way and is doing the very best kind of service and furnishing an abundance of water.

The Leonard Orchard company has in view the installation of a canning factory on the Moses ranch, which will can peas, beans, tomatoes, pumpkins, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, loganberries and various other vegetables and fruits. They also expect to do a considerable business in raising onions from the seed and from sets, beets, carrots and potatoes. These will be shipped in carload lots to the best paying market available. It is believed that by practical and careful management a paying business along these lines can be built up.

The Penn-Oregon ranch will be devoted largely to the dairying business and it is the intention to furnish it with 150 cows of the best dairy breeds and to build a creamery on the place. This ranch is noted for its rich soil and abundant crops. At the present time there are 225 acres of wheat which the best judges claim will average 50 bushels to the acre. There are 125 acres already in alfalfa which is producing heavy crops. There are 50 acres in hay meadow and a considerable acreage in red clover. There is a 45-acre apple and pear orchard, 35 acres of which are in full bearing; the crop for this year is estimated at 15,000 boxes of merchantable apples and pears. This ranch is all under irrigation and it has the reputation of being one of the most valuable in the Rogue river valley.

Raising Horses and Mules.

It is the purpose of the company to raise horses and mules of the best blood and they have already purchased a jack from the well-known mule raising state of Missouri, the animal being selected from the choicest stock that could be found there. He is certainly a fine specimen and cost the round sum of $2,000. It is the purpose to secure a large number of well bred mares and these will be kept on the place as breeding stock.

A Hog Raising Venture.

The company has determined to go into the business of raising hogs on a liberal scale and has chosen the Berkshire type as the most promising. They have started in with a boar which has many blue ribbons credited to him during the past season. Five brood sows have also been purchased and these, like the boar, belong to one of the best Berkshire families. On a farm where alfalfa is one of the principal products the hog business partakes of nothing in the order of an experiment and success is assured from the very start.

Experiments With Potatoes.

Manager Hill is making an experiment with potatoes this year with a view to determine the best time to plant the tubers. He commenced early in the season and has planted every two weeks, keeping a careful record of the time it was done. When they are dug it will be determined not only the best time to plant, but the soil best adapted to the potato. He is also making experiments with cabbage and kale and these will be carried on with a view to keep them growing all winter. He is also making a test with sweet potatoes and other crops.

Town Office Opened.

The company has recently opened an office in town in the apartments of the Riggs-Lucas Land company, which is in charge of the well known hustling young business man, Elmer Balsinger. It is their purpose to direct the sales of their various property from this office, which is connected by telephone with the office on the ranch. They also have leased from the Southern Pacific a lot of ample size for the purpose of storing wood and other commodities which may be hauled during the season while the roads are in fit condition for heavy tonnage, which commodities will be available for sale in the local market or shipment by rail in carload lots.

It should be mentioned that Mr. Hill has given great attention to the selection of his assistants. The work was placed in charge of experts as far as it was demanded. The well known firm of Whistler & Stubblefield, of Portland, had charge of installing the irrigating plant, while the surveying and location of the ditches was in charge of W. H. Gillman. Watering the different lands is under the direction of A. P. Stover, an engineer and soil expert who has few superiors. He was in the employ of the agricultural department of the government for many years, but on account of failing health has retired to his ranch, Berkeley Orchards, near Medford, where he is doing editorial work for the government and is experimenting on the desert for the state. Mr. Stover spends a part of each week during the season at the Leonard Orchard company, thus dividing his time between the two places. This gentleman, it is well known in Grants Pass, has great ability in the line of irrigation and few men stand higher in this important work.

Mr. Hill is ably assisted by such men as Edward Estes, who many of us know as one of the best informed hop men in the valley, having planted this hopyard eight years ago and been almost continuously in charge ever since. Hops he grew in 1910 were awarded the first premium in the London markets. Mr. Estes has charge of all other crops grown on the home ranch also.

The crops of the Heath ranch are in charge of Thomas Middleton. His specialty is potatoes, onions, cabbage and other garden vegetables. The results shown are certainly wonderful.

A. P. Barney of Medford has the care of the Penn-Oregon ranch. His long experience in handling large orchard tracts has well fitted him for the management of this very promising property.

R. W. Sawyer Jr. and H. A. Gifford are in the office and handle all matters relating to the books, records and other matters in a prompt and efficient manner.

Every drain pipe in the home—sink, toilet, bathtub—should be flushed once a week with hot water and Babbitt's Lye. This little attention means cleanliness, purity of atmosphere; often saves plumbing bills and prevents sickness. A mere disinfectant destroys only the odor while the dirt and grease remain.

Babbitt's Lye

dissolves the filth and removes the cause of bad odors and disease germs.

The Babbitt Pry-off-top Can keeps the Lye good until used.

Trade-marks from all Babbitt Cleaning Products are good for valuable premiums.
