UNCLE JOE CANNON

LEAVES NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Uncle Joe Cannon will soon be gone. Cannon, the czar, former speaker, watch dog of the treasury; Cannon the reviled, and, to many, old Uncle Joe, will leave Washington tonight.

Cannon's exit from public life after 38 years' service will be without ceremony or ostentation.

"My departure will be adieu, not goodbye," was the grizzled veteran's farewell remark today. "You know, I may 'come back.'" he said jokingly with the old familiar twinkle in his half-closed grey eyes, sparkling above ruddy cheeks and close cropped grey beard, head "cocked" on one side.

But the vein of levity vanished as the personification of "Cannonism" seriously disclaimed any future political ambitions or reprisals.

"I am going to stay in politics—as a citizen," Cannon declared. "I'll never lose interest in politics until—well, until I'm dead."

"Uncle Joe" said he was not going to re-engage in active business.

"I've got a little land, a few farms," he said, "and some bank stock and some other things. I'm going to look after them and the things on the farm. Then I hope later to go down in the Yazoo and St. Francis country in Mississippi and Arkansas, where a lot of Illinois folks are investing, and look over the land there."

When asked if he intended to revisit Washington often, Cannon said: "I'll come back maybe to the Gridiron club dinners, if they invite me. I'm a member of the Lincoln Memorial commission, but that will not bring me back often."

Cannon said he was glad he was "going back home" to a house he owns.

"I've lived in a rented house for ten years—paid over $40,000 rent," said Uncle Joe. "I'm much ahead of the game at that, having had no taxes to pay."

Cannon said his personal effects had all been moved except one small packing box of papers he was storing in the capitol.

"I've sent off a carload of books, and things, to schools, libraries and societies since last fall," said the veteran. "My, but it was a job. I perspired a-plenty. I found some letters I have had for 15 years and newspaper clippings, cartoons—yes cartoons that I liked."

Cannon's official adieu had been said long before today. Final honors to the patriarch had been accorded in congress and privately. Today's leave taking was confined to a few intimate friends and other associates at the capitol.

For the quick cure of colds you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

MILLION YOUNG CHINOOK AT JONES CREEK HATCHERY.

More than a million young chinook salmon are now in the troughs at the Jones creek hatchery awaiting liberation in the Rogue. The little fish are now about an inch and a half in length, and will be turned out to shift for themselves within a few more weeks.

Henry J. O'Malley, superintendent of the United States bureau of fisheries, visited the hatchery Wednesday, and later left to inspect the hatchery at Elk creek. In speaking of the work being done on the Rogue Mr. O'Malley says:

"Approximately 8,500,000 salmon fry and in the vicinity of 3,000,000 steelhead and rainbow trout fry will be hatched at the Elk creek hatchery and liberated this spring and summer in the Rogue river and its tributaries.

"In the neighborhood of 5,500,000 early chinook salmon eggs were taken last fall at the Elk creek hatchery. Approximately 1,000,000 chinook salmon eggs were taken at the Ament dam and 2,000,000 silverides. Already 400,000 steelhead trout eggs have been taken at the Applegate station, and 2,000 trout are being held for ripening. We should take at least 3,000,000 trout eggs.

"This trout work is all done at state expense, the state fish and game commission furnish the funds. The Macleays own the hatchery and the government operates it. We are preparing to take rainbow trout eggs in the Klamath country, particularly at Spencer creek, which will be hatched and liberated in the Rogue. We will not operate in Fish lake in the Umpqua this year.

"All of our fish are being held until they reach the fingerling stage, and we confidently expect, within a few years, to make the Rogue the best stocked trout stream in the country.

"The steelhead taken this year are the largest we have ever had, averaging over 12 pounds in weight. The cessation of commercial fishing for steelheads is beginning to tell in increased quantity and size of fish."

WOMEN ASK HELP OF PRESIDENT WILSON.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Plea to President Wilson to have him urge a constitutional amendment for woman suffrage throughout the United States were personally made today by Mrs. Ida Husted Harper of New York; Miss Mary Dixon of Maryland; Mrs. Claude V. Stone, wife of Congressman Stone of Illinois; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley of Philadelphia and Miss Alice Paul of Washington.

Mrs. Harper told the president that his book, "The New Freedom," carried strong arguments in favor of suffrage.

"We only ask you to take every word of what you have said for the political liberty of men and apply them to women," she declared.

The delegation was introduced to the president by Congressman Raker of California. President Wilson replied that if he did not incorporate a suffrage paragraph in his message to the special session of congress, it would not mean he is opposed to suffrage. He explained that the special session will be devoted mainly to the tariff and other important matters.

"The president was courteous and sympathetic throughout," declared Mrs. Harper after the conference. She then declared that President Roosevelt was appealed to without result to provide for suffrage, and that the suffrage plea to President Taft had also fallen on deaf ears.

YOUNG BOY KICKED IN FACE BY COLT.

The three-year-old son of J. E. Davidson, of Gold Hill, was kicked in the face by a colt about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The child was brought to Dr. Findley who immediately took him to the South Pacific hospital where, assisted by D-s. Loughbridge and Stricker, he operated on the unfortunate baby. Several pieces of bone had to be removed from the eye cavity and much suturing had to be done, but there is hope of saving the eye, so it was not removed. While every effort was made to re-shape the face, the loss of bone will make some deformity unavoidable if the child recovers. The patient is resting well at present and the symptoms are favorable.

MRS. W. A. HURD.

The death of Mrs. W. A. Hurd, wife of Rev. Hurd of Williams, occurred at the South Pacific hospital Sunday afternoon, of blood poisoning after a short illness. She was 39 years of age and leaves a husband and four small children, the oldest being 9 years of age. Five sisters also survive her, being Mrs. Fred Merrill of this city, Mrs. Chas. Hurd of Medford, Mrs. Maude Burdick, Mrs. Elmer Herring and Mrs. E. Tyer, all of Spokane. Mrs. Maude Burdick arrived from Spokane Monday.

The funeral will be held at Williams on Tuesday afternoon, with interment in the Williams cemetery.

The jurors were ordered not only to investigate the charges that manufacturers defrauded the government, but also to determine whether certain government officials were involved in the conspiracy.
