be attractive. The itinerary would then include Crescent City, showing the harbor project and the easy accessibility from that direction to this national park and game refuge and also to the hunting grounds throughout the district.

Hunting Scenes Available.

It would be our plan to go to the mouth of Rogue river and there take pictures of the fish industry and from there up Rogue river and stop at Bear Camp, and have previous arrangements made for some excellent hunting and camping scenes, showing both the deer and bear having been bagged and in camp. This feature would also be shown all along the route, as the first of the month there would be hunting camps everywhere and no doubt an abundance of game, and many valuable pictures along this line could be secured.

This trip would take us through the best hunting and fishing grounds, both the winter and summer grazing for the elk and the best scenery in southwestern Oregon and northwestern California. Moving pictures taken could be used throughout the country. It is desired that at least 5,000 feet of film be used in one continuous feature, which would be taken over the country by a lecturer and shown at places where it would do the most good. When the question of this national park, game refuge and playground is taken up at Washington the moving pictures and slides will be taken there and shown to the representatives in Congress.

In this section is the Crater Lake National Park and in making the Marble Caves a national park and game refuge both could be seen on one trip. The sentiment of the people upon the subject of "Seeing America First" will be stimulated by this movement and an impetus added for eastern people to make their vacation journeys to the Pacific coast. The close proximity of two national parks surely would be an attraction.

RIDDELL WILL QUIT AVIATION GAME.

John Riddell, the farmer-aviator who was billed to fly here on the 4th and 5th of July, has smothered his ambition to become a birdman, and will hereafter stick to the plow and the reaper. The following dispatch from Monmouth tells the story of Riddell's rise and fall in the ranks of professional aviators:

"Monmouth, Or., Aug. 4.—John Riddell, of this city, the Polk county aviator who made several flights on the Riddell farm west of the city and in Grants Pass recently, has sold his newly acquired 50-horsepower biplane to a Japanese in California. Mr. Riddell, encountering danger and expense, has decided to quit aviation, and after delivering his machine to the purchaser in California, will return to the farm here, and assist as before in the sheep, goat, clover and grain raising business. While preparing his machine for a flight one evening some time ago, west of this city, Mr. Riddell said:

"I don't expect to be in the flying business long. Like many other persons, I wanted to learn its operation."

Mr. Riddell had just graduated from an aviation school in California and met with success in flying, although he found conditions in this section at times unfavorable for flights. In one flight here he attained 65 miles an hour.

"An interesting tale has developed concerning the start of John Riddell as aviator. Mr. Riddell in a letter to his father, William Riddell Sr., head of the firm of William Riddell & Sons, prominent goat men, requested that $1,500 be sent him. The father replied with $1,600, saying the $1,500 was being sent, together with $100 extra to pay burial expenses.

"But Aviator Riddell has not met with even a serious accident yet."

MOST MODERN DAIRY BARN AT ARDENCRAIG.

The most modern dairy barn in the state of Oregon is to be erected as the home of the premier herd of Jerseys recently purchased by K. M. C. Neill, proprietor of Arden Craig, on the Applegate river, the plans for the barn including all the latest ideas of dairy barn construction.

The barn, which is to be 59x136 feet in size over all, is of two parts, the main structure being 31x59, and two stories high, the upper portion giving loft room for one hundred tons of hay. The portion in which the dairy cows will be stalled will be 35.7x104 feet, a single story in height. The floors throughout will be of concrete, and all the stalls will be of sanitary construction. In the main building there will be stall room for nine head of horses, together with box stalls for hospital purposes. In the cow stables stalls are arranged for forty animals, with a box stall for an ailing bovine.

The entire barn will be equipped with labor saving devices for the handling of feed stuffs, and a concrete mixing room is provided in which the feed will be prepared. Trolleys through the stable will also facilitate the cleaning of the building, cleanliness and sanitary arrangement being the uppermost thought in the planning of the structure.

The plans are now in the hands of the contractors, and contracts will be closed Monday for the immediate construction of this model of dairy architecture.

DOG CAUSES SERIOUS AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT.

Roseburg, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Helen Wilbanks was probably fatally injured and Herman Marks and Fendel Sutherland were seriously injured early today when a touring car, carrying nine persons turned turtle and crashed into a fence. Others in the party were badly bruised.

A large silver passed entirely through Mrs. Wilbanks' lungs. Marks suffered probable internal injuries and Sutherland's jaw and collarbone were broken.

The party had left Roseburg early in the evening for Oakland, and were returning when the accident occurred.

When within two miles of Roseburg the car struck a dog which caused the driver, James Hildeburn, who owned the car, to lose control. The machine swerved from one side of the road to the other for a couple of hundred yards and then overturned as it struck the fence.

REFUGEES FROM SOUTHERN REPUBLIC IN SAN DIEGO.

San Diego, Aug. 7.—Travel-tired and wan from the effect of hardships endured before they fled into the United States, 500 Mexican refugees of both factions are in San Diego today, being placed on the military reservation near Fort Rosecrans, where they will be kept until conditions in their own country permit their return.

The refugees arrived last night on two special trains from El Paso, Tex., and Nogales, Ariz. On the train from Nogales, in charge of Captain McConnell, was Col. Emilio Kostelitzky, Polish soldier of fortune, who has seen much fighting in Mexico. Col. Francisco I. Escabon was the most prominent refugee in the El Paso train.

In San Diego the refugees are in charge of Captain Page and Lieut. McCune of Fort Rosecrans. On the reservation the refugees will be taught many of the sanitary regulations observed by Uncle Sam's soldiers. They will live in army tents and will feed on army rations. Things will be made as comfortable as possible for the women. The men, however, will be expected to put up with unembellished military life. In the bunch of refugees are delegations of soldiers for both elements in Mexico. As yet they have shown no disposition to carry their fight this side of the line.

Lind today wired Secretary Bryan that he would sail from Galveston this morning for Mexico on the battleship New Hampshire.

JOHN LIND SPECIAL EMISSARY TO MEXICO.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Confronted on the one hand by the announcement of President De Facto Huerta of Mexico that John Lind, President Wilson's emissary to Mexico, will be persona non grata unless he recognizes Huerta, and on the other hand by open opposition of a large section of constitutionalists to Lind's mission, the administration here today is admittedly puzzled as to a way out of an apparently serious situation.

The biggest suspicion is entertained in administration circles that Huerta is bluffing—and this is not unmingled with hope. Officials in touch with the president and Secretary Bryan declare that Lind's mission is one about which Huerta has nothing to say, and they profess not to regard seriously suggestions that Lind may not be allowed to proceed to Mexico City.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan held a long conference today on the Mexican outlook. The embassy in Mexico City has reported at great length and in confidence to Bryan on the situation in the southern capital and while no official statement was made, it is understood that most of the business men of Mexico City will welcome Lind, hopeful that he will be able to arrange some plan by which the strife in the republic will end.

Paris, Aug. 7.—Hot protest against the mission to Mexico of John Lind as peacemaker, and protest against what they term interference, was made here today in a statement issued by the Paris Junta of the Mexican constitutionalists. It read:

"We learn that John Lind has been sent to Mexico as a mediator, practically representing President Wilson. Constitutionalists here, while appreciating the correct attitude of President Wilson, energetically protest against this pretended mediation by America. We wish no foreign intrusion. Americans were never more interested in Mexico than now and if they think their interests endangered, almost the worst means they could take to protect themselves would be to wound Mexico's self-respect by semi-official pressure. Only military intervention could be worse than this attempted mediation, as that would mean war."

SPRECKLES RENIGS ON PAN-PAC. SUBSCRIPTION.

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—Suit against Rudolph Spreckles, San Francisco millionaire, for $17,500 with interest at 7 per cent per annum and costs, brought by the Panama-Pacific exposition company, is on file here today in the superior court.

The complaint alleges that Spreckles subscribed for funds to the exposition in the sum of $25,000. Spreckles recently notified the exposition directors that the conditions under which his subscription was made had not been complied with and he refused to make further payment after making payments of $7,500.

CELEBRATION CASH FOR FREE LIBRARY

The city library commission is after that $250 that was appropriated by the council for the Fourth of July celebration and unused, and that is now resting quietly in the bank to the credit of the celebration committee. By resolution adopted by the council at its meeting last night the committee was asked to return this sum to the library commission, the resolution setting forth the fact that the appropriation had been made upon the representation that it was needed to defray the expenses of the celebration, and that whereas through the failure of the aviation attraction to make good the funds were not needed, city appropriation should be returned.

Librarian's Salary Fixed.

Salary for a city librarian was also fixed by the council at $40 per month pending further action. The commission is now selecting books for the free public library, and a librarian will be named soon.

New Lights Authorized.

The committee on street lighting was authorized to have better lights placed at the Fourth street crossing of the S. P. tracks, at the city hall corner, and on the steel bridge at the end of Sixth street.

Ordinance Defeated.

The "stewed" boozier can still make the saloon his hang-out if he desires regardless of the fact that he is unable to purchase the goods and wares of the institution, the city council having defeated an ordinance that had been before it to prohibit the blacklisted ones from entering or loitering about the thirst parlors.

Change Circus Licenses.

The city attorney was instructed to prepare a new ordinance making changes in the license fees charged traveling shows and circuses. The present license is $100 per performance, which is prohibitive in most instances. The new ordinance will have a graduated scale of licenses, according to the magnitude of the show. A special license of $5 was made for a small circus now showing in the city, and special provision will be made for the show billed for next week.

SOCIALISM DEFINED BY EX-CONGRESSMAN BERGER.

+ SOCIETY WHEREIN A NATION WILL OWN THE MEANS OF PRODUCTION AND DISTRIBUTION, OPERATED CO-OPERATIVELY BY THE DEMOCRACY.
+ Socialism is a system of society wherein a nation will own the means of production and distribution, operated co-operatively by the democracy.
+ There are two schools of socialism, the historical school and the hysterical school.
+ I believe that humanity has reached a point where we can make changes without killing people.
+ When there is over-production, the workman suffers. He goes barefoot because there are too many shoes.
+ We build 300,000 automobiles a year. The fortunate few ride in them and 98,000,000 people dodge them.

is of socialism that I am to speak," said Berger in his lecture last night.

"Socialism is a system of society wherein the nation will own the means of production and distribution, operated co-operatively by the democracy. There are two schools of socialism, the historical and the hysterical schools, but I shall concern myself only with the historical school."

Berger then traced the growth of the social instinct in man from the earliest times down to the present.

Discusses Wage System.

"We are living now," he said, "under the wage system. The free wage worker is infinitely better off than the slave or the serf, but his condition is far from ideal. He cannot employ himself. He can work only when somebody else will employ him, which causes many to designate him as a 'wage slave.' Modern scientific machinery has led to over-production and the strange paradox of people starving in the midst of plenty. It was over-production that caused the hard times of 1893. The foreign markets were supplied and we could not sell the surplus at home. The superficial thinkers of the time tried to find a solution. Some of them said that the workingmen should spend more money and take up the surplus. Others said the trouble was that he spent too much. He should be thrifty and save his money. And so, because there was over-production, the workmen suffered. Because there were too many shoes they went barefoot."

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—Prolonged salvos of cheers and applause from an audience of 4,000 people responded to J. Stitt Wilson's introduction of Victor Berger, socialist, former congressman from Wisconsin, as the "man who made Milwaukee famous," at Berger's first appearance here.

The socialist leader today is in consultation with San Francisco leaders of his party. He will leave tonight for Los Angeles.

"First of all, I presume that you wish me to define socialism, since it
