"PRIMROSE PATH" MAKES GOOD STORY

Telling in absorbing fashion its romantic tale of two young people who fall in love without understanding its power, "Primrose Path" co-stars Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea in what is said to be one of the year's most dynamic and realistic dramas.

The pair fall in love almost on first sight and Ginger marries him, hoping he will never find out what her family is like. But inevitably he does find out, and in disgust tells Ginger he never wants to see her again. The stirring results, influenced by family dissension and jealousy and the stubborn pride of both the young principals make for the compelling suspense and drama of the story.

"Primrose Path" comes to the Cave City theater Saturday and Sunday, August 10 and 11th.
